One of the biggest jig-saw puzzles in America today is the government's economical system.

* * * *

Seems like Alabama's lieutenant governors can never learn to save their money. They always desire to be elected governor but seldom are.

Chilton County may develop an inferiority complex if industries don't stop shying away from us.

In case you are looking for someone Thursday and can't find them, go out to the Circus; they'll probably be there.

TEN AMENDMENTS

On December 15th the voters will go to the polls to vote on 10 amendment proclamations. Of these ten amendments only two are statewide in interest.

Number 1 and Number 2 are amendments to change the poll tax laws of the state. Heretofore to be eligible a voter had to pay the current year plus all accrued poll tax at the rate of $1.50 per year since becoming 21 years of age. The new law would permit anyone to vote with the payment of two years poll tax taking into consideration that all other requirements had been complied with.

The other amendment with state-wide application would remove the expense and inconvenience of holding an election to fill a legislative vacancy when there is an unopposed candidate for the office.

Here are the other eight amendments in a nutshell:

No. 3 would permit Franklin County municipalities to issue interest bearing warrants to attract industries and promote their further development.

No. 4 applies to Talladega County and would authorize it to increase local property taxes to build schools and roads.

No. 5 would allow Russellville in Franklin County to issue bonds up to $150,000 to build plants in an effort to attract new industry.

No. 6 is a Lawrence County proposal and would let it designate one or more additional school districts and sell bonds for new buildings.

No. 7 would permit diversion by Mobile County of the five-mill road and bridge tax to finance bond issues for a new courthouse and jail and schools.

No. 8 would give Marshall County authority to levy new taxes for school construction.

No. 9 would let Chambers County increase property taxes for new school buildings.

No. 10 would permit Chambers County to take officials off the fee system and put them on salaries.

PRISONER 'SCALPED'

Miami, Fla. — Detectives C. C. Papy and R. J. Myers were taking two women to jail when they began to fight. Papy, in the front seat of the car, reached back and caught one of the women by the hair, trying to restrain her. To his horror, the hair came off in his hand—it was a wig.

HIKER, 85, RETIRES

Detroit, Mich. — Mrs. Sylvia Marie Carlen, 85-year-old grandma, reluctantly announced that her recent almost 60-mile hike to port Huron to celebrate her 85th birthday, would be her last such venture.

TOGETHER AGAIN

Baltimore, Md. — A brother and sister who last saw each other in a small village in Sicily 50 years ago, are enjoying a reunion here. Frank Lomagro, 93, who came to this country as a small boy, and his sister, Mrs. Bertha Trovato, 82, who has lived in Chicago, found each other through mutual friends.

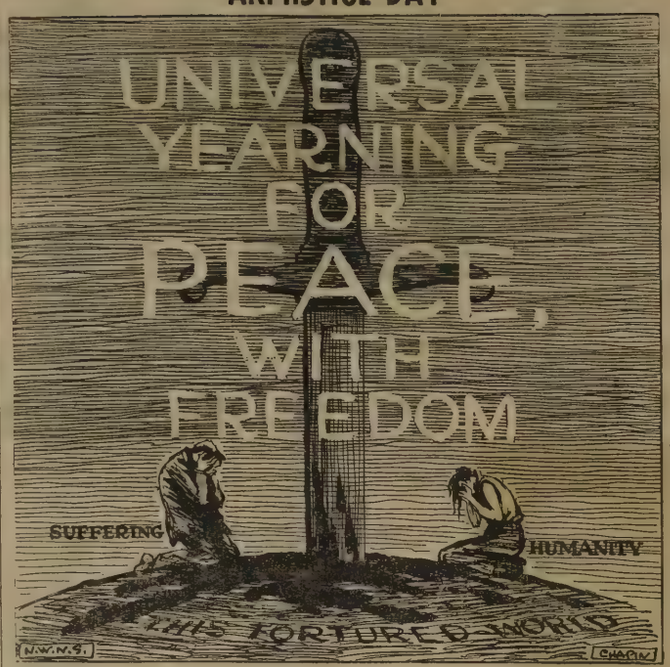
ARMISTICE DAY



Made Visit To 'Turnaround'

THE ALUM ROCK

Down from the Alum Rock,
Is a little narrow creek.
It sang and it whistled,
And we had to take a peep.

As the sun shone down
On the pretty little creek,
It whistled and it bristled,
So we had to take a peep.

The sun shone down,
As we walked the mountain high,
Looking far, far down,
Then far upward to the sky.
Linda Faye Sanders.

THE TURNAROUND

The leaves are red, brown, and yellow.
The creek is talking as fellow to fellow.

Autumn flowers sway in the breeze.
And rocks rise up and tower o'er trees.

There we are climbing to interesting places,
And finding out what God has created.

THE TURNAROUND

The leaves are brown, red, and green.
The creek's the prettiest I've ever seen.
All this makes the place so nice.
At lunch we had cold drinks from ice.

The flowers were yellow down near the creek,
And for such beauty I like to seek.
There stood in silence Picture Frame.
We knew of course, just why that name.

We also found a great, huge locust.
Whose eyes, I think, could not quite focus.
Charles Taylor

TURNAROUND

Along the banks of Chestnut Creek
I, with my friends, contentment seek.
We hear the troubled waters roaring
Then see it onward gently flowing.

The pines are tall, and dark and green,
And grow enormously by that stream.
The flowers and shrubs are bending low,
Because the breeze is blowing so

We quietly listen to the call,
A Bobwhite's sending to us all.
A Whip'o will is calling, too,
And beaver's work is in full view.
The woodland folk are building nests,
As we go strolling with the rest.
Paul Burks

AT THE TURNAROUND

As we walked through the leaves, red, yellow, and brown,
We observed how softly they fell to the ground.

The trees, I observed, were all in a shiver,
Dreading, it seemed, the coming winter.
Nellie Fay Kenney

NOT SO GOOD

Belleville, Ill. - Mrs. Marie Reichling was standing in her kitchen when a novice driver made a wrong turn in a car, smashing in the front of Mrs. Reichling's house. While Mrs. Reichling was not struck by the debris, she was taken to a hospital, suffering severe shock. The driver of the car was uninjured.

If you've been unsuccessful in trapping mice, try using cotton soaked in lard or bacon grease; mice like lard as a food and cotton for their nests.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician and the health service of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

NUTRITION

Nutrition means the ability of the body to absorb and assimilate the necessary foods. Interestingly enough, more attention has been directed at nutritional standards in recent years; and our knowledge of nutrition is recognized as of great importance in relation to health and disease. The application of this knowledge to the treatment of disease is becoming more comprehensive each year and diet therapy is found to be an important factor in the treatment of many diseases with which it had not been associated previously.

To have good nutrition, a person must eat a diet containing certain essential requirements such as adequate protein, mineral elements, vitamins, sufficient calories for energy requirements and water.

The term protective foods has been applied to meat, milk, eggs, fruits, and leafy vegetables. Foods not included in this category of protective foods are conducive to early degenerative diseases. Provided no expedient exists, such as a diseased condition calling for a special diet the right quantity of the protective foods is one pint of milk for adults, one quart for children, and three or four glasses or more in pregnancy; one egg; one or more servings of meat, fish or fowl; three large servings of vegetables, one a green, leafy vegetable, besides a potato; two or more servings of fruit, one raw; one tablespoon of butter; one serving of whole grain or enriched cereal, and three slices of whole grain or enriched bread.

By eating these necessary protective foods, a person receives the necessary elements and, if his health permits, may eat other foods that he chooses.

Diet is important, but good nutrition can be obtained only through eating adequate amounts of the protective foods, to be supplemented only when a medical need exists.

Remember that a shot or pill will not take the place of proper feeding and management.

Local Accounting and School Lunch

The Local Accounting and School Lunch section also handles the distribution of USDA Donated Commodities. Such commodities are classified according to the section of the act which provides for the distribution.

Section 6 of the National School Lunch Act provides money with which to purchase foods of high nutritional value to supplement lunches served in schools operating school lunch programs in accordance with the terms of the National School Lunch Act.

Section 32 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act provides for the distribution to eligible outlets of foods acquired as a result of the operation of the price-support and surplus-removal programs. These are known as "surplus" commodities and may be distributed to institutions and other non-profit organizations as well as all types of public and non-profit private and parochial schools.

Agreements are signed by a representative of the State Department of Education and officials representing county and city boards of education, as well as other organizations, for participation in the commodity distribution program. For a number of years large quantities of food have been made available through this program. Grades and qualities of foods have improved over the years until we are now receiving the very best of each commodity. A number of protein foods have been included in these distributions and these have been of much financial assistance to the operation of the school lunch programs in the State.

Examination revealed she had a fractured skull, broken left ankle, fractured fingers on her right hand, scalp cuts and bruises. She fell from the roof while sweeping leaves.

Send Sheep Into Cold Weather In Good Shape

Auburn, Ala.—Now's the time to give sheep a head start on winter, according to R. C. Farquhar, API Extension assistant livestockman.

Early in November treat each animal with phenothiazine to combat stomach worms. Ewes within four or five weeks of lambing should not be treated until after the lamb is born, warns the farm leader. This is also a good time to give the ewes their final drenching of the year.

Another November recommendation is tagging. This consits of shearing off surplus wool around tail and udder to reduce chance of infection and make it easier for lambs to nurse. After sheep have been treated, says Farquhar, turn them into a good pasture and give them hay when grass gets too short.

DENTAL PAIN KILLER

San Antonio, Tex. — A new pain killer for dental patients — hydrocortisene — was recently described here at the annual convention of the American Society of Dental Surgeons. It was reported to be "not only very useful in reducing pain, but in reducing the excruciating pain in the jawbone point just in front of the ear."

Sheep require more fencing than cattle but much less than goats; they can be controlled with a woven wire fence or with five strands of barbed wire placed eight to nine inches apart and drawn tight.

Buying Feeder Pigs Risky Says This Hog Expert

Auburn, Ala.—Buying feeder hogs is still a common practice among many Alabama farmers. But it's also a dangerous one from a disease standpoint, says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

"Hog growers can raise their own feeder pigs at less cost than they can hire someone to do the job for them," he explains. "And at the same time they can be sure the animals are disease-free.

"The livestockmen must buy feeder pigs, they should purchase them from a neighbor or from some other source known to handle only healthy stock. And regardless of its previous home, any hog brought onto the farms should be separated from all other animals for at least three weeks."

SHELL WOUNDS BOY

Houston, Tex. — Walking home from school, a small boy found a round of small arms ammunition. Shortly afterwoods, he met some schoolboy friends, who were throwing rocks to knock down pecans. So Lloyd (Sonny) Newburn,9, began throwing at the pecans, too, with the live shells. A shell bounced to the cement sidewalk and exploded, sending Sonny to the hospital with a shell fragment wound near his left ankle.

Soil Tests Show More Lime Needed

Auburn, Ala.—Added proof of the need for more lime on Alabama farms was given here this week in a report by J. C. Lowery, A P I Extension agronomist.

He said that almost half of the more than 2800 soil samples analyzed so far this year by the soil testing laboratory at Auburn showed a lack of lime. The samples, sent in by farmers from almost every county, indicated a need for three-fourths to one and a half tons of agricultural limestone per acre to correct the soil acidity.

"The acute need for more lime, explained Lowery, "is due to the increased use of legume-grass pasture mixtures, soil building legumes, and acid-forming sources of nitrogen. Use of acid-forming fertilizers if not accompanied by correct lime applications will result in reduced crop yields."

"In recent years a number of Alabama farmers have run into overliming trouble because they applied too much lime, especially on the lighter soils. For that reason, as well as to avoid inadequate liming, growers should have their soil scientifically tested in the state laboratory. Then they will know exactly how much lime to apply per acre in accordance with soil needs and crop conditions.

"There is a conclusive, practical advantage in applying lime by test results, instead of by guess work," concluded Lowery. "One application at the right rate meets soil needs for a period of from five to ten years."

To prevent tears in linoleum, which usually occur first at the corners, apply strips of adhesive or cloth masking tape along the underside edges of the linoleum.

More Feed And Forage Crops Can Lower Your Costs

Livestockmen looking for ways to offset declining prices or to reduce operation costs should consider lowering feed costs through the production of more feed and forage.

"Seed supplies are ample and prices are more favorable than those of last year," reports Ralph Jones, API Extension seed crops specialist.

"Compared with prices last fall, current retail prices are lower for 24 of the more important grass and legume seeds. Several of them are more than 25 per cent cheaper. Heaviest declines have occurred in prices of alfalfa, tall fescue, and ladino clover.

"Alabama farmers can profitably capitalize on their natural weather advantages," concluded Jones, "thru an expansion of feed and grazing crops."

WOULD-BE THIEF HAS $11,425

Boston. — Police holding Chester Sargent, 60, who had tried to steal a $25 topcoat from a department store found $11,425 in cash in the man's wallet. Sargent expressed surprise when told how much he had in his wallet, saying he thought there was about $5,000, but he wasn't sure because he hadn't counted it lately.

4-YEAR-OLD CRIMINAL

Worcester, Mass. — Patrolman John J. Barry saw a 4-Year-old boy running away from a small variety store which had an accusing hole in a window. Barry caught the youngster, who readily turned over the loot—59 cents. The child had tossed a stone through the window, unlocked the door and snatched the money.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Alabama was represented in the Mexican War by a large number of volunteers. They were also one regular regiment, one battalion, and a few independent companies mustered into service from the State. The First Alabama Volunteers of the Mexican War was commanded by Col. John R. Coffee. The regiment was mustered into service in June, 1846, at Mobile.

Battalions of Alabama volunteers in the Mexican War were commanded by Major John J. Seibels and by Lt. Col. P. H. Raiford. A gallant Alabamian, who lost his life fighting in the war, was Lt. Q.M.P. Inge. Many officers and men who participated in the Mexican War later saw service in the War Between the States. Many also had a prominent part in the political life of the state in future years.

Col. William Barrett Travis, of Conecuh County, Alabama, made an illustrious name during the Mexican War. Because Travis was gifted in leadership he was soon placed at the head of forces, organized to combat the Mexican leader, General Santa Anna. When this leader marched upon San Antonio, Texas with 4,000 Mexicans, he found Colonel Travis in command of the opposing forces which consisted of only 145 men.

Determined to hold Fort Alamo, Col. William Barrett Travis, a native of Conecuh County, Ala., refused to surrender even when faced by 4,000 Mexican soldiers, under General Santa Anna. After a heroic defense the Americans were attacked and the brave adventurers were massacred. Colonel Travis fell near his cannon early in the assault, but his courage and messages to Santa Anna immortalized his name. In the state capitol at Austin, Texas there is a monument commemorating the stirring episode in the state's frontier history. The inscription says: "Thermopalea had its messenger of defeat; the Alamo had none."

In 1872, an institution at Auburn known as the East Alabama Male College, established by the Methodists, was offered as a desirable location for a new Alabama Land Grant College. The offer was accepted by the trustees of the new institution, and the faculty of the old school was retained. In 1889 the legislature officially changed the name of this college to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

FEWER FARM FOLKS

...but more farm telephones

Since the end of World War II, rural telephone construction has surged ahead at a record-breaking pace. Today over half a million rural phones are served by Southern Bell, and new ones are going in at the rate of 6,500 a month.

This record of rural progress is even more amazing when you consider that the South's farm population has actually decreased, largely due to mechanized and more efficient farming methods.

But farmers need and use the telephone more than ever before. That's why providing them more and better service is one of our most important jobs.

JUST THE TYPE

By F. L. Rowley

SHERIFF GILES leaned wearily against the closed ticket window as the long passenger train came to a gasping stop. Rainwater dripped from the poorly lighted sign above his head—the ragged lettering on the sign stated simply: HILLCREST.

Sheriff Giles sighed. His incurious gaze took in the same drab scene night after night. He longed for the old days when people had some spunk. He looked scornfully at the spineless specimens of humanity trudging across the little causeway that led to the street; backs bent, collars up.

The good sheriff shook his head sadly. He was preparing to follow the group of sleepy commuters when his ears caught the sweetest sound he'd heard in years:

"Say Spike, when do we get the loot?"

Sheriff Giles' heart began to beat again. He heard another voice reply softly—"tomorrow," then all was quiet. Presently he saw two men emerge from the shadows of the baggage shed. This was by far the most exhilarating thing that had happened to Giles in years. He straightened his tie, tugged at the brim of his hat, then crept along in the wake of the mysterious strangers. Giles was not an impetuous man. He planned to give these characters plenty of rope. Rain and darkness enabled him to step within earshot of the two shadowy figures.

"When do we shoot, Spike?" the short man asked.

"As soon as I get the layout," answered his tall, thin companion. "I understand there's a sheriff in this one horse town. Maybe we can shoot him."

Sheriff Giles nearly swallowed his plug. This was even better than he had hoped. It would be a real pleasure to toss these rogues into his emnity jail. He could picture Mayor Cook shaking his hand and retracting the nasty statement he'd made about Giles not being able to recognize a crook if he saw one.

The two men turned into the only hotel in Hillcrest. Giles, peering through the lobby window, marvelled at their cool appraisal of the small room—this was what his city friends would term 'casing the joint'. When they had gone upstairs Giles let himself in quietly to check on their room number. The sleepy clerk handed him the key to the room adjoining theirs.

Giles, his ear pressed against the cold wall of the dark room in the Hillcrest Hotel, listened in amazement, his lower jaw dropping to his chest—

"Say Spike, when does the mob get in?"

"Tomorrow morning," replied the soft voice. "Tell the boys to leave the powder, dynamite and heavy equipment at the station. We'll pick it up when we're ready for the bank robbery."

"How about the sheriff?"

"See if you can get him—it'll save me the trouble."

Sheriff Giles had heard enough. He was dealing with hardened criminals this time. He had until one o'clock tomorrow to swear in a few good deputies. He'd show crooks that they couldn't thrive in Hillcrest!

It was exactly one o'clock the next day when Sheriff Giles led his little band of nervous deputies in a surprise raid on Spike's 'gang'. Giles himself was the first to burst into the room, his gun poised for action.

The room was crowded. Well dressed men and lovely girls turned appreciative eyes on Giles. "Wonderful!" one girl cried. "—just the type."

Sheriff Giles flushed. "Wha—what's going on?" he stammered.

"How'd you like to play the part of a sheriff in a western movie that we're going to shoot here in Hillcrest?" Giles recognized the voice—the big man who faced him was Spike.

"But—the powder? The dynamite?"

"Just fireworks for the bank robbery scene," the big man explained. "How about it? Will you take the part?"

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Ed Sullivan, in his presentation, Toast of the Town, TV program on Sunday evenings at seven o'clock, has announced that on next Sunday evening he will feature Metropolitan artists from the Metropolitan stage. It will be of deep interest to the many admirers of Edwin Steffe, baritone, that he will be among the artists presented from the "Met."

Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Levine were dinner hosts to Mr. Steffe and wife at the recent appearance of his concert in Clanton.

What is it about a circus parade that electrifies the atmosphere? Thursday morning for an hour and a half before the King Bros. Parade the streets were lined with eager watchers and the air was charged with excitement. We well remember when we waited hour upon hour for the annual circus parade and then when it had passed we would follow the elephants to the circus grounds and spend the rest of the day seeing its wonders. And then did you ever go out early in the morning after the circus left town and comb the sawdust for loose change that had been lost by the merrymakers?

Doggone that Raz Langston.

Rev. M. K. Vickers sure isn't letting anyone say they had a previous engagement and couldn't attend the revival services at Clanton Methodist. He announces this week that Dr. Pearce Harris, of Atlanta, will be at the Clanton Methodist Church the third week in June, 1954.

It is so terribly easy to blame our shortcomings on someone else.

Buck Roberts says he is not guilty as charged. The letter coming from his office kidding us about the spelling of "Tax Assessor" was not of his writing. And of course we knew it wasn't. It could only have been the work of a member of the 'fair sex" and she hails from over Stanton way. Miss Ruth Hicks was just having a little fun at our expense and we didn't mind the expense at all.

That contest has started at the Upchurch Drug Store. It has got all the boys and girls excited who are under sixteen. That is the age limit to enter the contest. And who wouldn't be excited if they were under sixteen. The contest started on November 1st. and will end on December 18th. Grand prize is a new bicycle with all the trimmings. A lot of other prizes are to be given away too. Ask Ralph Johnston about it.

"We don't need none of them new-fangled scales" said the bright young man. "There's an easy way to weigh a pig without scales. You get a plank and put it across a stool. Then you get a pig stone. Put the pig on one end of the plank and the stone on the other end of the plank, then shift the plank until they balance. Then you guess the weight of the stone and you have the weight of the pig."

CENTRALA SUB-DISTRICT MEETING WAS HELD

Our Sub District monthly meeting was held on November 2nd at Mt. Pisgah Church. We were very glad to have Verbena MYF to join and be with us. There was a total of 122 present, being from Pleasant Grove, Cedar Grove, Walnut Creek, Lime Springs, Mt. Pisgah, Verbena and Mt. Nebo Churches.

Mt .Nebo was in charge of the program. The theme for the program was Thanksgiving.

The next meeting time and place will be on Dec. 7th, at Walnut Creek Church with Lime Springs in charge of the program. Come and join us in these meetings. Everyone will be inspired by this fellowship together.

After delicious refreshments and recreation the meeting was adjourned.—Judeen Culp, publicity chairman.

Methodist Annual Bazaar And Church Supper To Be Held Next Tuesday

The sixth annual bazaar and church supper which takes place on Tuesday, November 10th, have all of the Methodists in Clanton busy as bees. A project of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, this affair has drawn on the time and talent of the young people and the men to assure a great success.

The harvest season will be the theme of the decorations. The bazaar booths, made by the men, will appear as country stores. There will be an array of gay and colorful aprons, some practical and some airy as a dream.

What is the color scheme of your kitchen? Select an apron-to match it—one with fancy machine scalloping and pockets that are appliqued tulips. How sweet of the Methodist fathers who were baby sitters while their young wives sewed together, learning intricate machine stitches from that certain most helpful and utterly facinating man.

Aprons for the little girl and a matching one for her favorite doll. Company aprons and every day aprons. Every kind of apron.

Dolls, dolls; rag dolls, young lady dolls in party dresses. A beautiful Christmas angel doll! A cunning Little Red Riding Hood! Dresses for the Toni dolls. And dresses for the infant! Pillow cases! Pot holders Many more articles made by nimble and artistic fingers.

The gardeners eye and heart will be caught by the variety of house plants, cut flowers and bulbs. Christmas decorations? Just the huge pine cones you have longed for. And for the song birds in your garden a gourd to nest in. Or the gourds make charming planters for your kitchen windows.

Always the candy booth attracts with the dainty sweets that have made the Methodist women rather renowned. Leave an order for a pound cake to be delivered at a future date. Pound cakes like grandmother kept on the pantry shelf under lock and key.

For fun there is the surprise package, and the parcels post package. Take home several surprise packages. See if you can wait that long to peep inside. What fun! The surprise, element and suspense.

The children clamor to go fishin'. Fishing will be fine.

The Hobby Room has grown into a unique "know your neighbor better experience. It has become a gathering place of those with similar interests, and of those who wish they also had a hobby. The one who makes things and the one who collects things find themselves enthralled as they linger in the Hobby Room.

And of course the supper will be delicious. There will be a choice of turkey and dressing or ham and candied yams, pecan pie or chocolate cake, Et Cetera, Et Cetera'. Such a quandary, this choosing. Have some more hot coffee while you decide on the dessert. The men will be carving turkeys and hams and helping behind scenes in the kitchen.

Are you wondering why the Methodists in Clanton are so busy and so eager for the bazaar and supper to be a tremendous success this year? They are proud of the beautiful Steinwy grand piano that has been placed in the sanctuary and they want to finish the payments on it.

During Tuesday evening the guests are invited to hear an informal piano concert that will be given by several gracious and generous musicians of the community. You are invited to drift in and enjoy music before supper and again afterwards.

CONTEST STARTS AT UPCHURCH DRUG STORE

Ralph Johnston announces this week the starting of a contest that should interest all the boys and girls under 16 years of age. Johnston stated Tuesday the contest run like this:

"During the contest, one vote can be cast for every penny spent in our store. For example, if your family needs aspirin, ask Mother to buy a bottle of Rexall Aspirin (100's) at our store for 54c. This purchase will entitle her to cast 54 votes for you—one for each penny of the price. If your relatives, friends, neighbors (and others you may ask to help you) buy their everyday needs at our store, their purchases could easily build up into a staggering total of votes in your favor. And remember this: During the contest, there will be bonus votes on selected merchandise from time to time. Be on the lookout for these specials and have your friends buy them. It will mean extra votes for you!

"The sooner you get started in the contest, the more votes you'll pile up. Get your Nomination Blank now and have someone fill it out for you today!"

Selden Speaks To Bank Group At Thorsby

Hon. Armistead I. Selden, Jr. Congressman, spoke at Thorsby last Wednesday night to the Stockholders of the Bank of Thorsby.

One of the nicest affairs to take place in Thorsby this season occurred on last Wednesday night, when the Bank of Thorsby entertained its Stockholders at a dinner party.

The dinner was given at the Institute dining hall and was served banquet style. The food was delicious and was prepared by the members of the Ladies Guild under the able supervision of Mrs. Chas Howard. Girls from the Institute served as waitresses. The tables were decorated with fall flowers and the Hallowe'en color scheme was carried out throughout the spacious dining hall.

Mr. J. Archie Ogburn was master of ceremonies and Congressman Selden was the guest speaker of the evening.

Besides stockholders with each a guest, other invited guests were representatives from the other three banks in the County, also The First National Bank of Montgomery, Central State Bank of Calera and The First National Bank and Birmingham Trust National Bank of Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. C. L. Walton of Jemison led the group in singing. It was indeed a happy occasion for all who attended. There were about 100 guests seated at the tables.

ARE YOU AFRAID TO READ A BOOK?

Montgomery, Ala. — Are you afraid to read a book that has been read by a friend who has tuberculosis or some other communicable disease? Do you pass up the opportunity to read such a book because of the danger of getting your friend's disease?

There is no occasion to do so, according to Alabama's State Health Officer. Dr. D. G. Gill pointed out today that such a danger is so remote as to be virtually non-existent.

"Doctors do not recommend the extensive fumigation that was practiced in the past," he said. "Disease germs outside the human body are not as hardy as they were once believed to be. In most cases it is sufficient precaution to leave the books out in the sunlight for a while. If you wish to be extra safe, you may wipe the covers, both inside and outside, with a soapy cloth and then do the same thing with a damp cloth. Then leave the book to dry in the open where it will receive plenty of sunlight."

LICENSE EXEMPTIONS OF WORLD WAR II VETERANS EXTENDED FOR 6 YEARS

Francis W. Speaks, Head Teacher for the Veterans General Continuation Class of Chilton County, Alabama, discloses that many World War II Veterans are paying business and occupational license taxes unaware of the fact that by recent actions of the Legislature they are exempt from these taxes for a period of six years from July 24, 1953.

This Act which is an amendment to Title 51, Sec. 864 of the Code of Alabama, and which is styled Act 229, exempts many Veterans from State, County and Municipal business and occupational license taxes.

The part of this act which primarily pertains to the exemptions of Veterans from license taxes reads as follows: "Upon the production of an honorable discharge from or other proof of the honorable termination of such service, be exempt from business or occupational license taxes for a period of six years after his or her discharge from or termination of service, whichever is later."

This exemption does not apply to rolling stores or for any license tax for the registration or operation of any motor vehicle, unless otherwise provided by law.

THEME FOR YEAR, "GOOD SCHOOLS ARE YOUR RESPONSIBILITY"

American Education Week is a time when the spotlight is turned on public education and it's contribution to the American way of life. The history, aims, achievements, needs, and problems of our schools and colleges pass in review.

During this Education Week the schools of Chilton County will be holding open house for all parents and friends to visit in the classrooms and see just how the schools are operated.

Will you as citizens and interested people of the communities, visit the school nearest you and acquaint yourself with the work that is going on there? It will help you as a supporter of the schools and will also bring about a closer relation between you and the teachers, making you realize the truth in the theme for this year, "Good Schools Are Your Responsibility."

Early History—

On July 8, 1921, a report on Americanism and Education by a special committee appointed to cooperate with the American Legion was adopted by the Representative Assembly of the National Education Association in convention assembled in Des Moines, Iowa this action led to the establishment of American Education Week. The report recommended cooperation "in securing for America a program of education adequate to meet the needs of the twentieth century and which will give every boy and every girl that equipment in education and training which is his right under our democratic government and which will make of all, whether native or foreign born, good American citizens." The program designed to accomplish these ends included a recommendation "that an educational week should be observed in all communities annually for the purpose of informing the public of the accomplishments and needs of the public schools and to secure the cooperation and support of the public in meeting these needs."

As a result, the first observance was held December 4-10, 1921. At the 1922 convention the committee reported that the observance had been "effective, inspiring, and worthy of continuance." Approval was given to the recommendation that Education Week be continued under the joint auspices of the American Legion, National Education Association, and the Federal Bureau of Education. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers became the fourth sponsor in 1938. The observance was started and has been held yearly under the basic principle that the education of people is the government's first obligation to its security and perpetuity.

Purposes—

The purposes of American Education Week have been broadened during the years in the light of changing conditions and needs. But the basic aim remains unchanged and the drive to improve health conditions and bring good schools within the reach of all never stops. The observance comes alive under the impetus of several specific objectives. Some of these are: To increase understanding and appreciation of the public school as the bulwark of our free government; sow how modern schools are conducted; give pupils deeper insights into the values of education; provide special opportunities for the discussion of school tasks and problems; step up all year interpretation; bring about closer home-school-community relationships; and develop greater citizen participation in planning new programs and securing needed school improvements.

THE POLL TAX AMENDMENT

On December 15 the people of Alabama will vote on an Amendment to determine where we will continue under the accumulative poll tax law, or amend the law to collect only two years back poll tax as a requisite to voting.

We are of the opinion that the old law should be repealed and the new two-year law enacted. As the law now stands a stranger coming into our state and staying two years can vote in our elections upon qualifying and paying three dollars poll tax. A native Alabamian, living here all his life, must pay all years since reaching the age of 21 which can amount to $36.00. Does this sound like a fair law? What is your opinion?

U. S. SECURITY FORCES FAIL

The tragic part of the revelations now coming from Ft. Monmouth, N. J., show that espionage has probably been carried on there since the middle of World War II on an uninterrupted basis. There are indications that U. S. plans for defense against atomic attack have found their way from Fort Monmouth to East Germany and Russia.

The record of U. S. security forces since World War II leaves much to be desired. First, the Russians copied the major heavy bomber of the U. S. Air Force and reportedly had plans of it very early in the development stage. Next, the Russians obtained atomic bomb blueprints from the U. S. and proceeded to produce atomic bombs. They also are believed to have stolen H-bomb secrets from the U. S.

Now it turns out that they have been operating an espionage ring in a vital nerve center of the Army. It would seem that we in the United States are incapable of keeping our secrets and that our security forces have failed miserably in protecting the country's military secrets. The people of the United States will not be overly interested in the reasons for this failure but they should demand a tightening of security and a better record of accomplishment from the security forces.

In view of the sorry record of the security forces since World War II, it would be fitting for President Eisenhower to instigate an investigation of the entire set-up, with the purpose of finding out why U. S. security and military secrets cannot be properly protected. Not only do these flubs cost the taxpayer billions of dollars in new expenditures, which are necessitated by rapid Russian progress in the field of atomic weapons, but they tend to demoralize our allies and encourage the Communists in believing they can obtain any information they desire from traitors in the United States. The investigation should be a hard-hitting one, and some members of various security organizations are probably due for a quick sacking.

Caution Urged With Fire Used Near Timber

Montgomery, Ala. — Serious drouth conditions in two-thirds of the State's area brought an appeal from Earl M. McGowin, Director of Conservation, today that all persons exercise caution with fire near Alabama timberlands.

The drouth which extends throughout most of the nation at the present time is particularly felt in the northern half of the State, where it has been 30 days or more since as much as one-half inch of rain has fallen.

Forest fire incidence in most Alabama counties is about normal, although the woods are very dry.

McGowin said, "If we continue to get cooperation in local areas I do not anticipate the necessity for any drastic action such as postponing the hunting season as some other states have already done.

"We do want to keep the people informed of the fire danger and to appeal to them to refrain from burning brush or trash, building campfires, tossing away lighted cigarettes and matches or any other action which might lead to fires."

Fire conditions at present are worse in Alabama than during October last year when the State was going into one of the worst fire seasons ever recorded here. Each day woods and fields are getting drier.

Jefferson and Walker counties have been major "hot spots" for woods fires so far this year but many other counties are suffering drouth conditions at the present.

McGowin said hunters can help a great deal not only by being careful not to use fire in the woods but by acting as volunteer fire fighters. Every hunter should report fires and help whenever possible to extinguish woods fires.

HUDOBA TO SPEAK AT WILDLIFE FEDERATION CONVENTION

Montgomery, Ala. — Michael Hudoba, Washington correspondent for Sports Afield magazine and secretary of the Outdoor Writers Association of America, will be principal speaker at the annual Alabama Wildlife Federation convention here November 7-8.

Hudoba is noted widely for his excellence in making talks on conservation and is one of the most sought after speakers in the country. His address will be delivered before representatives of conservation clubs from most of Alabama's counties.

Also featured on the two-day program will be Claude D. Kelley of Atmore, Alabama, President of the National Wildlife Federation. Kelley is a former president of the State group, and is recognized nationally as an outstanding leader in conservation.

Hudoba's address will be delivered in the Blue-Gray Room of the Whitley Hotel the night of November 7. Kelley will speak before a luncheon meeting earlier that day.

The eighteenth annual Federation convention will hear panels discuss current problems in conserving game and fish. The discussion on fish will be conducted by Prof. H. S. Swingle of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Dr. A. H. Weibe, chief of fisheries research for the TVA, and I. B. Byrd, Principal Fish Biologist for the State Department of Conservation.

The game panel will include Dr. A. O. Haugen, Leader of the Alabama Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Ralph H. Allen, Jr., Game Management Biologist of the Alabama Department of Conservation, and Frank W. Fitch, Jr., of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Two other officials in the conservation field in Alabama will deliver addresses at the convention. Frank L. Haynes, Education Specialist for the Department of Conservation, will speak on, "The Advantages of a State-wide Federation," and J. M. Stauffer, State Forester, will talk about Alabama's forestry program, emphasizing forest fires. Thomas A. Ford, Alabama Wildlife Federation President, will preside at the convention sessions.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From J. B. Weaver, Fort Worth, Texas: I remember watching my mother cook meals 84 years ago in the biggest fireplace I ever saw. It had iron hooks and rods for hanging and placing pots and kettles. There was a heavy three-legged oven similar to a modern frying pan with a cover which was put on and off with an iron hook or poker. Coals of fire or burning wood was placed around and under the oven and on top of it. Heavy tongs and a poker were essential parts of the cooking equipment.

There wasn't a cook stove in all that part of Chambers County, Alabama. It is not too much to say that the bread, biscuits, cakes and pies turned out by the good cooks of that day equalled anything of the kind prepared in modern kitchens.

From Mrs. S. P. Hudson, Green Forest, Arkansas: I remember when all the children of the family took their dinner to school in one big bucket or basket. Each always had a bottle of milk.

MY PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

MY WIFE thinks I'm getting too fat. Perhaps I am a little large compared to her 5 feet and 98 pounds. But after all, I'm 6 feet and 195 pounds of muscle, even if she does say most of the muscle is now around my middle.

As a result of her unreasonable attitude, I am on a diet. To attempt this torture was the only way to keep her silent.

The first two days were not so bad. I wasn't really hungry. But, man, that third day. I woke up about 2 a. m. and patted my stomach and it was so hollow it sounded like a bass drum.

I sneaked out of bed and into the kitchen without awaking her. I opened the refrigerator and stood there gazing in admiration at the remains of the roasted chicken we had had for dinner. (My part was one thin slice of the breast—so thin, in fact, could easily have read a newspaper through it.)

Honestly, for all of three minutes I stood there fighting that devil called temptation. He won without raising a sweat. I reached for a drumstick.

"Oh, no you don't," says the wife. "Come on, Rover, back to bed with you. You're on a diet, remember?"

"Yes, my love," I mumbled and shuffled off to the bedroom.

You know, that woman doesn't trust me. She locked the bedroom door and put the key under her pillow.

Today is the fourth day and I'm still on that diet. That is I'll be on the diet for another 5 minutes. As soon as this column is finished I'm going across the street to the restaurant and order a steak.

I realize, of course, that if she persists in my dieting it is going to be very expensive. Three meals of lettuce a day at home; two T-bone steaks between meals at the restaurant

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—As Chief Justice, is Earl Warren getting a raise over his salary as governor of California?

A—Yes, $500-a-year. As Chief Justice, Warren will get $25,500 (Associate Justices are paid $25,000). In terms of over-all benefits, however, he will probably take a cut. As governor, he lived rent-free in the executive mansion in Sacramento and was allowed $12,000 in servants salaries, plus a $7,500 expense account. He was granted a per diem travel allowance of $16-a-day while in California and $18-a-day while outside the state. The California National Guard provided him with a personal plane; and two limousines—in Sacramento and Los Angeles—were made available to him by the state. Under terms of a pending Senate bill the salary of the Chief Justice would be raised to $40,000. Warren will receive a $10,000-a-year pension from the state of California beginning March 19, 1954.

Q—Will Oregon's former Republican and new Independent Senator, Wayne Morse, become a Democrat?

A—Morse announced Sept. 28 he would vote with the Democrats to organize the Senate in the 84th Congress if the 1954 elections result in an evenly divided Senate. He has said he will campaign for the Democrats in 1954.

Q—How much money was spent electing a President in 1952?

A—About $18 million was spent in the Presidential contest, according to a Congressional Quarterly survey of reports filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives. Approximately another $5 million was reported spent in the Congressional races.

Q—Who spent more on the 1953 elections? The Republicans or the Democrats?

A—The CQ tabulation showed Republicans reported spending about $13.8 million, while Democrats said their campaigns cost about $6.2 million. Another $3 million was spent by labor groups, minor parties and unaffiliated political groups.

We were sorry we were unable to have the church heated Sunday, but maybe it will be heated next Sunday. Even though the church may be a little cool, we hope you will come with your hearts warm.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT WEEK, NOVEMBER 1-7, 1953

Cows Grazing Button Clover on the J. N. Dennis Farm, South Clanton, Ala.

PROMOTING TEAM WORK FOR WISE USE OF LAND & WATER RESOURCES

Alabama's soil resources are our greatest natural assets. Our soils constitute important foundations of the state's economy and contribute materially to the Nation's prosperity and well-being. The improvement and maintenance of our soils in a high state of productivity is essential to the well-being of every citizen. Since the function of land resources is to serve the wants of people, the objective of land use is to increase and improve the products yielded by the land in response to human effort, in the form of labor, management and capital. The purpose of conservation then is not just the preservation of land; it is to use it in such a way that people will enjoy sufficient and continuous supplies of food, fiber and services, which come from the land. This is no easy job. Fine starts have been made. But, the job ahead is as tremendous as it is important. It calls for reliable information to be used on all the lands of the state.

To discover this information, get it in the hands of landowners and operators and assist them in applying it, requires the help of agencies, of local, state and federal governments, school people, business and professional groups and others. The job ahead also calls for cooperation between all these people, who share the responsibility for finding and encouraging better land-use practices. In short, the job ahead demands team-work with many members on the team, working together toward a common goal—better living, which cannot be achieved without good land use and soil conservation.

Soil Conservation districts were created as devices for dealing first-hand, effectively, democratically, and right down at the grass roots, with the matter of taking care of the land resources. The primary function of the districts is to encourage and develop team-work of people aimed at making the wisest use and management of our soil and water resources.

The purpose of Soil Conservation Districts' Week, November 1-7, is to develop further public interest, understanding and support of soil conservation districts for the development of a sound agriculture based upon the conservation and wise use of soil and water resources.

R. O. Williams is District Supervisor for Chilton County.

A PROCLAMATION
BY THE

WHEREAS, the well-being of our people depends upon the production of ample supplies of food, fiber and other products of the soil; and

WHEREAS, the quality and quantity of these products depends upon the conservation, wise-use and proper management of the soil and related resources; and

WHEREAS, our people have a mutual interest in the land and share the responsibility of preserving its productivity; and

WHEREAS, soil conservation districts provide a practical device through which landowners are taking the initiative to conserve and make proper use of these resources; and

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gordon Persons, Governor of Alabama, do hereby proclaim the week of November 1-7, 1953, as a period when our citizens should cooperate with the districts in giving special emphasis to protecting and making wise use of our soil and water resources.

Indications are that there is greater interest in this contest than ever before.

The basic subject is: "How Can We Have Prosperity with Peace?" Contestants may use the basic subject, one of the suggested topics, or a topic of their own selection, provided it is sufficiently related to the basic subject.

Schools of this county already enrolled in The Birmingham News oratorical contest are as follows:

Combined schools which have both senior and junior high departments may compete in both contests, provided they enroll in both. Grammar schools which have junior high work may compete in the junior high contest.

State finals for both senior and junior high contests will be held at Birmingham-Southern College. Birmingham-Southern will award tuition scholarships valued at $3,600 to State Finalists in the senior high contest. A LETTER TO THE EDITOR A STORY OF TWO PERSONS

(Yes, friends, we will call them Shepherd and sheep.)

They were very fond of each other, and worked together for several months; then the Shepherd was called to another field of work.

Then the sheep read in John 14:15, If ye love Me, keep My Commandments, then he (the sheep) began to search for light as he felt he had been wrongly instructed.

Then after having read I John 2:3-4, he was shocked off his feed.

Verse 3. And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments.

Then comes verse 4. He that sayeth, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him.

The sheep remembered that he had read in Matt. 18:16 that in the mouths of two or three witnesses every word may be established.

Then the sheep wondered where he could get these witnesses, then something said to him, why worry? You have the three most obtainable.

(Here they are): Jesus spoke, The Holy Spirit inspired the Prophet wrote.

Now the sheep once more thought of his friend (the Shepherd) not knowing just where he lived (and felt too timid to call him over the telephone), but by chance he saw the Shepherd's good wife, and told her to tell him to come, or stop by in passing and read the Bible with him.

For some cause the Shepherd did not accept the call.

Time passed and the two friends (the Shepherd and the sheep) did not get to read the Word together.

Time still went by and the sheep still searched the Scripture, and found the following:

"Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ."—I Peter 1:13.

"Humble yourselves therefore, under the Mighty Hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time."—I Peter 5:6.

"Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the Righteous Judge, shall give me at that day (Day of Redemption) and not to me only, but unto them also that love His Appearing."—II Tim. 4:8.

Then this poor humble sheep said something that the Shepherd did not agree with: (Yet, he never went to the sheep and said, Bro. you are wrong, and I came in love to show you and pray with you, and let you read this proof I have.)

No. He just called that poor old humble sheep an awful name, and the sheep said: Lord forgive him for he knoweth not what he hath said.

Friends, I am leaving this for you to solve; it might sound like a riddle, yet it is a true story.)

Your most unworthy friend,
LEE A. POPWELL.

ACCOUNTING SECTION

One of the main functions of the Accounting Section is to account for all funds appropriated by the Legislature to the State Board of Education for the operating cost of State schools and the State Department of Education in terms of statutory budget requirements.

The Accounting Section receives and disburses Federal and other trust funds in terms of the purpose for which such funds are allocated to the State Board of Education. In all, there are twenty-one funds, of which four are State funds, six Federal funds, and eleven Foundation and Special Trust funds.

Budgets are prepared for those funds, the use of which is not otherwise specified by law. These budgets set out in detail the funds and purposes for which they are to be spent.

The Accounting Section is primarily responsible for the preparation of budgets for the various divisions of the Department of Education. These budgets are the basis for biennial appropriations by the Alabama State Legislature for the Department.

Budgetary statements are prepared monthly. The preparation of these statements enables the Department to give information at any time on all Federal and State Funds, Trust Funds, and Department Costs at a moment's notice.

The Accounting Section assists in an advisory capacity all county and city boards of education with their accounting problems; State Teachers Colleges, Trade Schools, and other institutions under the control of the State Board of Education.

The personnel of this Section is composed of a chief accountant, a principal accountant, a machine equipment supervisor, a bookkeeping machine operator, accountants, account clerks, clerk-stenographers, clerk-typists, key-punch operators, and tabulating equipment operators.

Nutrition experts have expressed concern over the decline in sweet potato production from 61,000,000 bushels in 1946 to 28,000,000 bushels in 1952. They say that of 28 common fresh vegetables, sweet potatoes contain the lowest percentage of carbohydrates and the largest number of calories per pound.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Nearly every time the postman comes, he leaves a bright catalog of Christmas toys, and these publications have made me mighty apprehensive about the coming Yuletide season.

I look hopefully through each new arrival, but so far I've found no toys that fill the requirements I've set up for the Santa Claus who serves our house. What I'm interested in finding is toys that are silent, unbreakable, impossible to lose (seems I spend hours each day looking for lost toys), completely fascinating for all age groups—and inexpensive!

Those catalogs have scores of items in them which no sane Santa would include in his pack. Can you imagine anything worse for a four-year-old boy to find under the Christmas tree than a Junior Rock Drill, said to be "a real working model which produces the motion and sound made by real drills"?

Almost as unwelcome would be a Golden Trumpet on which "a child can toodle dozens of bugle calls, marches, etc. in loud, clear tones." There is also a big drum which, presumably, the child can beat with one hand while he tootles his Golden Trumpet.

After living for months surrounded by swarms of junior grade cowpokes, I had thought nothing was worse than the noise of cap pistols. How wrong I was! Now some inventive genius (doubtless childless) has produced a gun which not only bangs out also puffs real smoke when the trigger is pulled. And smoke for 5,000 shots is included with the rifle. Five thousand shots.

Even the Frontier Smoker, as it is called, would probably be more desirable than the Western Marshall Water Rifle capable of squirting streams of water 20 feet and shooting 1,000 times on a single loading.

Whew! Looks like a rough season for Santa Claus.

The next door neighbor, being a very far-sighted person, has been getting ready for Christmas since last December 26.

When we stopped by the other morning, she was putting the finishing touches to some stuffed animals she has made for the small children on her gift list. She collected old nylon hose for several months to use as stuffing for the toys. She says the nylon dries quickly when the toys need washing, making it much better to use than ordinary cotton.

The one-year-old has finally become reconciled to wearing shoes, but she takes strange delight in pulling the laces out and throwing them away.

The neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, came by one morning when I was searching for a lost lace and told me how to put an end to that nuisance.

"Tie knots in the laces after you put them through the first pair of holes," she advised. "Then your one-year-old can still unlace her shoes, but she can't pull the laces out and lose them."

When cold weather comes, our good cook neighbor pleases her family with a bean and frankfurter casserole made like this.

Brown 1-3 cup onions in 2 tablespoons fat. Add 1 small can tomatoes, 2 small cans baked beans, 1 pound frankfurters cut in 1-inch slices, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper to taste. Place in a casserole and cover with a layer of corn bread batter about 1-4 inch thick. Bake at 350 degrees until corn bread browns.

W. S. C. S. Meeting

The Woman's Society of Christian Service met in the M.Y.F. room at three o'clock on Monday afternoon.

The room was arranged to represent a conference room in the United Nations Building. Small flags of the member countries and a large United Nations Flag were displayed.

A worship center was composed of an empty plate and a loaf of bread with slices falling toward the plate. The picture of Christ above this scene was a reminder that those who have bread must share with the hungry multitude.

Seated around a table were four representatives of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. On the table were maps, a globe of the world, basic foods from the different climates, a miniature work horse, and miniature tractors and the latest improved farming machinery.

Present in the visitors gallery was a large delegation of women from the Clanton Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Through a panel discussion the important work of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the nited Nations was revealed. Two-thirds of the population of the world is undernourished. These people can be taught how to produce more food through the use of better seeds, the control of insects and diseases and the use of improved agricultural implements.

The lesson for Christians is that scientific knowledge is a heritage and must be considered as a dedicated stewardship.

Michael Minor Is Two

Friday afternoon, "Mike" Minor celebrated his second birthday.

Inflated balloons and paper streamers in orange and black decorated the dining room.

The orange cake was decorated in black, holding two tiny candles, and bearing the name of the honoree.

The group of boys and girls sang the happy birthday song, and "Mike" opened his gift packages.

The Hallowe'en motif was repeated in the parting favors presented to the following guests: Janis Tingle, Jerry Tingle, Lee Easterling, Marc Easterling, Rhonda Patterson, "Tim" Easterling, Donna Minor, Wade Connell and Paula Parrish.

The Hobby Room is one of the most attractive features of the annual bazaar and supper of the Methodist Church. Mrs. L. H. Bodden, chairman, invites you to display your hobby. Bring it to the M.Y.F. Room on Monday, November 9th.

CHESTNUT CREEK NEWS

A wonderful service was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lewis Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Lewis came into our church by letter. She is a shut-in. Everyone remember her in your prayers.

Everyone in our community is proud of the progress of our church for the last year. The following write-up was in last week's edition of the Alabama Baptist and we pass it along to our readers:

"Rev. Hymon Atcheson is now pastor of Chestnut Creek Baptist Church of Cooper, Ala., and we are happy to have one of the leading pastors of the Chilton Association as our pastor. He is now clerk of our Association, and helping in a great way to put over the Baptist work in our Association.

"When Brother Atcheson came to us in October, 1952, our church was at a very low ebb. Since he has been with us we have reorganized every organization offered to a Missionary Baptist Church. He has baptized 58 into the church and 23 have come by letter, making a total of 81 additions in 12 months. Our church is on the top list for baptisms in the Chilton Association for 1953, our Sunday School and Training Union is going stronger than ever.

"There has also been some improvement on the church building, a new front has been added and a new choir complete. Our church has a Brotherhood of 35 men for which Brother Atcheson is proud. They have done some repair on the church building and the pastorium. We have a nice sum in the church treasury, and paying our pastor more than anyone we have ever had. We have doubled our budget for the cooperative program for 1954 from what it was in 1953.

"We, in the church, love Rev. and Mrs. Atcheson for their faithful service rendered in our church and association."

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE Potomac Emporium's revolving doors will spin more slowly if the current trend continues toward abandonment of the federal super-market idea in favor of specialization in the craft of "pure" government. Gradually, President Eisenhower and his Republican Congress are turning over Uncle Sam's manufacturing, sales and service activities to private enterprise, a Congressional Quarterly survey indicates.

In the days of silk knee breeches and for a long time thereafter, the federal government confined its labors primarily to fighting Indians and coining money. In recent decades, spurred by war and depression, Uncle Sam has become the nation's biggest business tycoon. The circle is turning back on itself as the controlling party interprets President Eisenhower's campaign pledges to strike from business "the great shackles that government has fastened upon it" and to "curb the unjustified expansion of government."

During its first session, the 83rd Congress ordered the sale of 28 government owned synthetic rubber plants to private industry, establishing a negotiating commission and reserving the right to veto proposed sales. In another sale, the government realized $9 million on its barge system, the Inland Waterways Corporation.

Additional sales may be in the offing. The Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee has held hearings on a bill "to promote and encourage free competition and private investment" in the federal-monopoly field of atomic energy.

Reduced appropriations curtailed government operations in several fields coveted by private industry, including housing and power—the latter through cuts in funds for the Tennessee Valley Authority, rural electrifications, and synthetic fuels.

Next session, Congress is scheduled to decide whether the Niagara River power project will be undertaken by the federal government New York state, or private utilities.

Recognizing the importance of credit to the economy, Congress whittled at federal lending, creating the Small Business Administration to replace the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The SBA has less money to lend than its predecessor, and the Administrator calls his agency a "last resort" to be relied upon only when private credit is unavailable. He is promoting a system of private credit pools to reduce the need for loans by the government. False Teeth To Fur Sealing

In June, a House subcommittee listened sympathetically as businessmen complained of federal competition with private enterprise in many instances claiming they could do the job more efficiently and cheaply than Washington and its field offices.

The Subcommittee listed 86 commercial and industrial activities pursued by the federal government, ranging from manufacture of false teeth through operation of fish hatcheries to fur sealing. Another committee rejected retailers' protests against competition by military post exchanges and still another currently is considering demands that the armed forces stop operating aluminum salvage plants.

In the 1954 Congressional elections, the nation's "stockholders" will have their say on the retrenchment policies formulated by their Republican "board of directors." From one stump, the GOP claims the virtues of efficiency and individualism. Just across the fair grounds, Democrats cry "give away."

TELLS OF ATOM PLANT . . . Thomas E. Murray, member of Atomic Energy Commission, said AEC has ordered construction of $100,000,000 atom-fueled power plant at site not yet chosen.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

HERBERT E. HORTON, 102 Main Street, Federalsburg, Maryland, says he believes he was a natural born "worry wart." When he started to school he lived in continual fear of what the other children thought of him. He felt they would criticize his clothes, the way he combed his hair and his every action and remark. During his second year in school he felt his whole life was being ruined when he learned that he must wear glasses. He knew he would be called a sissy, "four eyes," and all the horrible names that a boy wearing glasses could be called. On every possible occasion when he was not actually reading he chucked his glasses away in his desk.

CARNEGIE

As the years progressed he developed his worry and fear habits. If he had nothing to worry about—that worried him.

After he finished school and entered the "cruel" business world he felt each and every job he performed was probably wrong and he worried about what would happen if he should make a serious mistake. Each morning when he went to work he was sure he would be criticized for some errors, or even fired.

These fears and worries haunted him after working hours and at night until it ended in a nervous frustration. He lost weight and became almost a nervous wreck. Numerous physical examinations proved nothing was wrong with him. He had his tonsils removed in hope that they were the cause of his troubles. None of these medical aids seemed to solve his problems.

Then, there being nothing else left, he did a little self-analyzing and decided that fear and worry were the chief troubles and that most of his fears and worries were something that never happened. He had read a statement: "If you're worrying about something that you can do something about, do it! But if you are worrying about something that you can do nothing about, why worry!"

He tried applying this philosophy and it did wonders for his health and happiness.

(By RUTH HICKS)

Friday, October 23, 1953, Mrs. Josephine Cox celebrated her 85th birthday. Mrs. Cox is a favorite in this section and as many, many friends. It is a joy to visit her home. She is always cheerful and very interesting to talk with. She loves people of all walks of life and is ever interested in community affairs. Much could be said of the life she has lived. She is sweet, affectionate and always kind.

Mr. and Mrs. Maury Gandy of Hattiesburg, Miss., came from their home to Tuscaloosa, Ala., to witness the University of Alabama homecoming football game on October 24th. Mr. Gandy graduated from this University several years ago. Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Gandy arrived in Plantersville in time to attend Sunday School at the Christian Church. Mr. Gandy attended this church when a child and was also a member of the church. They arrived at the home of Mrs. Charlie Gay (Minnie I. Batton), Mr. Gandy's cousin, late Sunday afternoon. Other guests for the Sunday evening meal were: Mrs. Ollie Gay, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gay and daughter, Maxine, of Centreville; Mr. W. M. Batton and Miss Sylvia Johnson of Maplesville. On Monday Mr. Gandy and Mr. Charlie Gay drove to Clanton where they enjoyed the stock sale. They also visited friends, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Martin. Mr. Gandy and Mr. Martin were childhood friends, having been reared near each other. They had not seen each other in many years and did not recognize each other. This was indeed a happy get-together. While in Clanton they visited Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gay and daughter. Pop calls were made with other friends during the day and many happy memories were recalled. Mr. and Mrs. Gandy left Tuesday morning for York, Ala., where they attended Rotary Club then on home afterwards.

The chicken supper at the Stanton Jr. High School was very enjoyable last Tuesday night. Two hundred fifteen dollars and twenty-five cents were realized from this supper. A message received by Mrs. Erskine Powell of Selma disclosed gradual improvement in the condition of her mother, Mrs. J. H. A resident of Meridian, Miss., Mrs. Martin was visiting her son and his family at the time of her accident, which will confine her to her bed for some weeks. Yet, there are those that just didn't come, so we hope that those who are careless will stop and think and come next Sunday if it is possible. We hope, too, that the sick ones will be able to come next Sunday.

One for the Books!

Noticed the Missus had a red ribbon tied around her finger at breakfast one morning last week. "What's that for?" I asked. "Your memory slipping?"

"It's not for me," she answers, "it's to remind you, and everybody else who asks what it's for, to contribute to the Woman's Club Library Fund. We need $200 and we figured we'd get more help if we could get people to ask us about it."

Well, as it turned out, the red ribbon worked just fine. The ladies are having the library all fixed up — and there's enough money for some new books, too.

From where I sit, it would be a fine thing if we had some sort of private reminder when we forget the rights of our neighbors. Like when we start telling them what we think is best. I may like a travel book and a temperate glass of beer while you prefer a cup of tea with your historical novel. Let's both remember not to "put the finger" on the other'

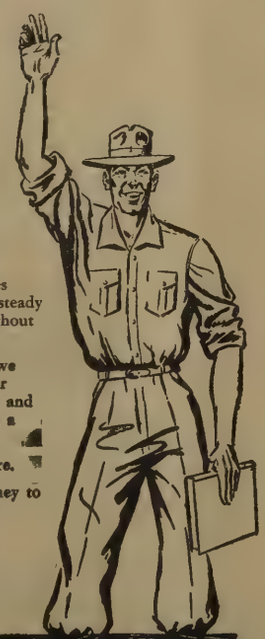
Southern Pine Trees Have Roots That GROW!



Yes, our trees here have roots that actually grow miles each year.

A steady supply of southern pine promises steady work at our mill for folks here and steady dollar income for woodland owners throughout this area.

We use the trees to make the pulp that we turn into newsprint. More than 800 of your neighbors help us do that at Coosa Pines and a great many other local jobs depend upon a continued supply of trees.

That's why we invested in forest lands here.

MACEDONIA NEWS

Well, hasn't God given us a series of beautiful Sundays? We wonder how many of us apreciated them enough to go to church?

Rev. Clyde Finnley brought both messages, both so inspiring. His evening message was concerning Nicodemus; how even though we may first confess our sins in secret and accept Christ as our Savior, we don't keep it hidden long. The peace and happiness you realize in knowing your soul is saved is something you are proud of if you are sincere. He told the story of the Athiest who stood before thousands and challenged them to prove he was wrong and no one moved.

Then two little girls walked down the isle and sang the song, "Stand Up, Stand Up For Jesus," and suddenly those words began a revival and hundreds of souls were saved. If we could be so proud of our Savior to always stand up for Him, would it not be a better world? Would we not be greater Christians and soul-winners? Then won't you if you profess to know the Lord Jesus Christ as your Savior, wont' you let the world know by taking a stand against the things you know are sinful?

We are very happy to have Mr. and Mrs. Mandley Atchison with us Sunday night and invite them back.

THE TENDERFOOT

By James Harsh

HE HAD the makings of a good cowpoke, thought Dan Baker, despite the city whiteness around his young face and the timid way he topped the Bar Z's gentlest horse, Rockets. It was a comical sight and Dan leaned against the corral and chuckled. Dan's brother-in-law, Ridgely Parker, finally squared himself away and was sitting Rockets like he might be on top of ten tons of dynamite. Just about the time Ridgely had acquired the minimum amount of confidence Les Wills, the foreman fired his .45 over Rocket's head and the big grey took several mean twists in the air and Ridgely Parker was eating the dust that lay thick on the floor of the corral.

"The darn gun went off by accident, boss," Les Wills grined at Dan who was trying to keep a straight face while helping Ridgely off the ground

"Get at her again, boy. That's the only way you're ever going to learn to ride a mean critter."

The young man climbed on again and began walking the mare around the corral. Dan and Les walked toward the house, leaving the tenderfoot to learn the tricks of cowboying for himself.

Toward sundown a stranger rode into the Bar Z. Dan and Les recognized Slick Dawson by the grim set to his mouth and the way he had of sitting his horse, almost as if he had grown right out of the saddle. The two men sat on the porch beneath the cool shadows of late afternoon and watched Slick ride up to Ridgely who was still jogging Rockets slowly around the enclosure. There was a stillness in the air and Dan and Les strained against the quiet, trying to hear what Slick had on his mind. They figured it was trouble. Slick had that reputation.

"You alone?" Slick Dawson asked Ridgely, his eyes roaming the surroundings as if looking for someone.

"Yes." The tenderfoot lied, not knowing why.

"I need a horse bad." Slick said, pointing to the swollen fetlock on the big black he was riding. "I don't have any money, but if you take an I.O.U. I'll pay what I owe when I'm through this way next week."

"Well, Mister, I don't see how I can do that. I don't own these horses . . . and I just couldn't . . ." Ridgely Parker was starring into the open barrel of a .45.

"Then I'll just help myself to the bag of bones you're riding. Mighty thoughtful of you to have her all saddled and waiting for me." Slick dropped off the black and jerked Ridge out of the saddle and dumped him on the ground. Dan and Les rose together, but they stood their ground. Dan wanted to see the tenderfoot and the horse thief against each other.

Ridgely moved against the corral, fists clenched in anger as he watched Slick Dawson mount Rockets. It was at the same moment when Slick spurred Rockets in the direction of the gate when the tenderfoot picked up the loose plank and slapped it with brute force against the corral siding. It sounded like the report of a .45. Ridge turned just in time to see Slick Dawson reaching for the thin air. Rockets twisted in the late afternoon until he was sure his rider was no longer on top. Ridge landed squarely on Slick and by the time Dan and Les reached them the fight was over.

Dan stood over the bruised horse thief shaking his head in disbelief. He turned toward Ridge. "Plum dirty trick, boy, to leave you here alone. But I wanted to see if you could take a good scaring. I got to hand it to you, I never figured you would guess Rocket's makes a fuss every time she hears a loud noise. I reckon he can stay for good, Les. About time the Bar Z had some brains around here."

Ridge smiled. He'd never tell Dan or Les that he'd slapped the plank against the corral in a fit of anger. He'd never tell them he figured that Dan had hired Slick to scare him

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

How about the old farmer who came in so excited and said to his wife, "Can you believe it, she's had pups." "Well, don't get so excited, Paw, that dog's had 'em before." "It ain't her I'm worried about, Maw, it's that durned fool cat, she ain't ever had any.

Constructive criticism is alright, you just ought to distinguish between the two before you say anything. Doesn't take much to change C-O-N to D-E.

And while we're on the subject of criticism why not turn a little of the D-E to C-O-N. Seems the "band boosters" are the only one's that have anything "constructive" to say about our struggling school band. You know, organizations, just as anything else, can't grow without the backing of sincere and interested citizens. Public opinion does not seem to be of a constructive nature in this case. There's too much, "I wish we had a band," going around and not enough moral support. If you can't be a "band booster" financially then at least be one socially. We think they deserve that for trying. Having a band is sorta' like playing a piano, wishing isn't going to make it so.

A joke at someone else's expense is always good, unless you happen to be someone else.

Our good friend Harold Parr was in to see us the other day and we were very glad to see him. Harold is in the Quartermaster Corps and stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia. Harold says the Army's OK but if he knows what's good for you then stay out of the infantry. I think we know what he means. We wish you God's speed, Harold, and hope you'll drop in to see us again when you get your next leave.

This open season on squirrels kinda' has 'em up a tree, doesn't it.

While waiting our turn in the concession booth at the Drive-In the other night a young fella came running in and told the girl, "I want 2 muskateers." She thought this was wrong and didn't understand and said, "You mean 3 muskateers." He said, "No 2 muskateers." "You mean 2 three-muskateers?" He says, "Yeah 3 muskateers." Don't rightly know whether or not he got his (?) muskateers, but I do know he had to work for them. If you see a girl pulling her hair, though, that's the one.

THORSBY P-TA HALLOWE'EN PARTY WELL ATTENDED

The Hallowe'en Party sponsored by the local P-TA on October 31, was well attended. The attitude of the people was fine and in keeping with the season. No finer spirit of cooperation has ever been displayed than that shown for this project. Parents, teachers and pupils worked together for a common cause, making the party a great success.

Winners in the King and Queen Contest were Charlotte Gulledge and Richard Wood, pupils from the second grade room.

Concerters To Present Polna Stoska

POLNA STOSKA

Polna Stoska, who was born in Worcester, Mass., is New England's most recent contribution to the roster of top-flight singers at the Metropolitan Opera. The young American soprano takes her place in the august line which has included Lillian Nordica, Emma Eames, Louise Homer and Geraldine Farrar, who were either native New Englanders or received their musical training there.

Versatile Polna, who will be heard here on Thursday evening, November 12, at 8 o'clock, at the Court House auditorium, is not only a Metropolitan star, but has done major theatrical, symphonic, concert, radio and recording work. She is remembered on Broadway for her brilliant portrayal of Mrs. Murrant in the musical version of "Street Scene" for which she received the Donaldson Award and she is remembered at New York's City Center for a series of performances which culminated in the role of the Composer is Strauss' "Ariadne auf Mexos." She is also remembered by thousands and thousands of GI's whom, during the long war years she entertained as a USO entertainer, chalking up 65,000 air miles as she sang for soldiers from the Pacific to Iceland.

Worderter-born Polna Stoska is the daughter of Lithuanian parents. Her vocal studies began in Boston, took her to the Juilliard in New York, and eventually before the war, to Europe where she worked under Mrs. Gadski-Busch (the daughter of Mrs. Johanna Gadski). She began her career at the Berlin Opera. When hostilities broke out she returned home and started to sing here. She interrupted her professional work to serve overseas under the auspices of the USO. Returning, she plunged into her American career in earnest. Success followed success, until, after her news-making, prize-winning role in "Street Scene," she was engaged by the Metropolitan.

During her three years at the famous opera house she sang roles ranging from the Countess in "The Marriage of Figaro," Donna Elvira in "Don Giovanni,' Pamina in "The Magic Flute," Elizabeth in "Tannhauser." Eva in "Meistersinger" and "Freia, Sieglinde and Gutrune in the Wagner Ring Cycle." She also sang the heroine, Ellen Orford, in the opera "Peter Grimes" by Brittain's brilliant young composer, Benjamin Britten, and Susanna in the news-making revival of Moussorgski's "Khovanchina" in 1950.

Recent concert engagements have included appearances with the Boston Symphony, Minneapolis Symphony, New York Little Orchestra Society, and at the Lewisohn Stadium Concerts, Hollywood Bowl, Chicago's Grant Park and Worcester Festival.

For Columbia Masterworks Polna Stoska has recorded a successful album which includes arias from opera of Strauss, Korngold and Weber.

Her internation reputation has also been increased by eight appearances on one of the most important musical broadcasts ever heard over the Networks, The Telephone Hour.

Tall and blonde, with a rarely beautiful voice and a great flair for the theatre, Polna Stoska is, with good reason, well on the road to unheralded success. Students from Verbena will have the honor ushers on this occasion.

Concert goers are in store for a very rare treat on Thursday evening, and from all indications a record-breaking audience is anticipated.

Wreck Near Jemison Fatal To Soldier

Authur Bonner was killed Sunday afternoon late in a wreck near Jemison. Bonner, along with two buddies from Craig Field were returning to the base when the driver of the automobile lost control on a curve and the car was wrecked. Officers investigating stated that excessive speed appeared to be the cause of the accident. Bonner's home was at Rock Hill, Alabama. Martin's ambulance answered the call.

With Bonner, and slightly injured, were Raymond Vincent and John Bayls, both of Craig Field, Selma, Ala. Vincent's ear was practically cut off, but Bayls only suffered cuts and bruises. Both men were brought to Central Alabama Hospital and later transferred to Craig Field.

This death brought to six the number losing their lives in automobile accidents in Chilton County for the year 1953. Only one accident involved another vehicle. State Highway Patrolman Webb investigated.

Charlie Corpuscle Says—

Time To Collect Blood In Chilton

The Recruitment Committee of the American Red Cross, Chilton County Chapter, will soon be around to ask for blood donations as you local chapter is scheduled to collect blood again on November 20th in the basement of the First Methodist Church from 12 noon until 6:00 p.m. We would like to familiarize you with the National blood program Policy which became effective April 1st, 1953. This new policy was published shortly after same went iinto effect, but in case everyone did not read the article we are giving you the new Blood Program policy again.

Under this new policy the Red Cross blood will be available only to the person named on the Red Cross donor card issued to the blood donor and to his immediate family. By immediate family we mean—the husband, wife dependent children and dependent parents. In case of a strict emergency your doctor will be able to obtain the necessary blood regardless of whether or not anyone in the immediate famiiy holds a valid blood donor card. On this card is shown an expiration date, which is 8 months now in Chilton County, from the time you give the pint of blood until the next time the Bloodmobile unit visits your County for the purpose of collecting blood.

When your card expires, you must again present yourself at the local Blood Center and ofier to give another pint of blood in order to remain eligible for you and your immediate family to receive Red Cross blood If you are rejected at the Center for some physical reasons, you receive a card which entitles you and your family to receive blood whenever you are in need of same.

The Red Cross Blood Policy is similiar to that of an insurance policy—you must donate blood to be eligible to benefit in time of need.

We have heard in recent months people make a statement iiike this: "There is no need for blood, the fighting is over in Korea." We might say here, that boys from homes right here in Chilton County are still on watch duty overseas.

There is an ever increasing need for blood to save human lives and we must look to the American people to donate this blood so that we can tend the ill and critically injured of our civilian population. We are also in need of reserves of blood derivatives to meet any emergency or natural disasters or atomic attacks. There is no substitute for human blood. In the world today, America cannot intelligently run the risk of being caught short of an adequate reserve of the vital life giving substance—blood.

We must not forget another usage of blood derivatiives—Gamma Globulin; a temporary preventative in fighting crippling effects in Poliomyeltis.

So we can readily see that the end of the shooting in Korea has not reduced the quantity of blood required for other useful purposes.

Let us ask that all of you Chilton Countains answer the call for blood at your local blood center the next time the Birmingham Regional Bloodmobile unit visits our County.

Negro Arrested On Reckless Driving And Larceny Charge

Charlie Marshall Kidd, said to be a resident of Birmingham, was arrested early Sunday morning by City Officer Foshee just north of the City after having committed grand larceny and nearly wrecking the back of the Hayman Cafe at Jemison, Ala.

It seems that Kidd, according to reports from the Sheriff's office, ran off the highway at Jemison and crashed through the wall of the Hayman Cafe. He then went across the street to a Service Station where Burl Burnett had a truck parked and took the truck and headed toward Clanton. Along about the Jones Milling Company a rod burned out on the truck and Kidd got out and walked into town to get a wrecker to pull him in. Then Officer Foshee picked him up and after questioning it was learned that the trouble had occurred at Jemison.

Kidd was jailed and placed under bond of $1000 on the grand larceny charge and $500 on the reckless driving charge. He made bond Monday afternoon. Sheriff officers checked to see if the wrecked car had been stolen but no report on it had been received at press time.

On December 15th Farmers To Vote On Cotton Quotas

On Dec. 15 Alabama farmers will vote in the cotton referendum.

They will choose between fewer acres with higher prices and unlimited acreage with lower prices, says James H. Jones, chairman of the State Production and Marketing Administration Committee. If two-thirds of the growers approve marketing quotas, prices will be supported at 90 per cent of parity.

Alabama's 1954 production allotment has been set at 1,118,000 acres, almost 500,000 acres below this year's approval. This is a percentage reduction of 29.3, adds Jones. The national acreage reduction in 1954 will be 24.5 per cent.

HALLOWE'EN FALL FATAL

Baltimore, Md.—Little "Danny" Forrester, 7, started out on a trick-or-treats round with his brother, Michael, and some playmates. Visiting a neighbor's house, Danny lost his balance on the porch and fell backwards into a coal bin, 4 feet below. Not apparently seriously hurt, the child was taken home. His parents took him to a doctor, who immediately ordered the child to a hospital, where he died before midnight.

West Blocton Whips Clanton By Score Of 21 To 6

(By HAROLD SMYER)

The Clanton Tigers lost their second football game of the year by losing to West Blocton last Friday night. The West Blocton Tigers controlled the pigskin during the first half of the game, making nine first downs to Clanton's three. Although West Blocton made two of their touchdowns durng the second half, Clanton compiled seven first downs to their opponents three. West Blocton, still undefeated, has a fine team and will meet also undefeated Centreville this week. Bobby Joe Franks, speedy fullback for the West Blocton Tigers, is the best backfield man to face the Clanton Tigers this year. Here's hoping he will accept a scholarship to Auburn. Franks was the star of the game as he accounted for 159 yards and sprinted 62 yards for a TD.

The game of the year comes up Friday night here at Clanton as the Tigers will be trying to defeat the mighty, undefeated, untied, record breaking Red Devils of Verbena High. Verbena boasts nearly three consecutive years of teams without defeat. Clanton will be a slight underdog in the crucial contest, so maybe the Tigers can stop the Red Devils from a repeat of last year's score. Be one in the thousand present for "the game of the year."

Stars shining for West Blocton besides Franks were Paul Boyd and Jimmy West. Boyd returned Clanton's second half kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown. He also scored another TD from the two-yard line and accounted for 144 yards. West converted all three extra points via place-kicks for West Blocton. Clanton received the opening kickoff from West Blocton and advanced from their 12 yard line to their 27 and were forced to punt. Mims got off a 65 yard punt to the opponents 8 yard line, West returning to his own 26. Franks, West, Kemner and Boyd picked up four first downs in a drive to the Clanton 14 yard line where they were halted and Clanton gained possession. Mims gained one, Caton two; then Minor passed to Littlejohn for a first down on the 26. Mims got 6; Hardy 6 and another first down on the 38. Baker gained 19 yards, but on the next play Mims faded to pass, fumbled and Comer recovered for Clanton Tigers for a 21 yard loss back on their own 36. Two attempted passes failed and Mims punted to West Blocton's 29 yard line. From there West Blocton drove 71 yards to score. In the drive Franks gained 11, 3, 6, 13 and 5 yards; Boyd gained 4, 2, 3, 11 and 2 yards; with West gaining a total of 11 yards. West booted the extra point and the score was West Blocton 7, Clanton 0.

Caton received Hicks' kickoff on his 18 and returned 15 yards. Three plays ended without a net gain and Mims punted to West Blocton's 31 yard line. The visitors gained five yards then fumbled and Clanton recovered on their opponents 33 yard line. Four plays lost 8 yards and possession of the ball through downs. In three plays West Blocton had lost six yards as the half ended.

Boyd received Littlejohn's second half kickoff on his 7 yard line and went straight up the middle through the entire Clanton team for a 93 yard touchdown. West's place-kick for the extra point was good, making the score 14 to 0.

Caton received the opponents kickoff on his 20 and galloped to his 36. Hardy gained 2, West Blocton was penalized 5 yards and Baker took off for 14 yards and a first down on West Blocton's 44 yard line. Hardy gained 4 more, then Minor sprinted 14 yards to the 26. Caton gained to the 24 but Minor lost back to the 26. Minor atempted two passes and his second was intercepted by Boyd on the 20, thus halting a Clanton threat. Franks got loose for a 20 yard run, then Boyd fumbled and Littlejohn recovered on West Blocton's 34 yard line. Minor picked up 7 yards, then 3 yards. Mims gained 4, then Minor passed 14 yards to Baker and a first down on the six yard line. Minor ran for 5 more yards and Duren scored from the one yard line. Mims' placekick was not good and the score was West Blocton 14, Clanton 6.

Boyd returned Littlejohn's kickoff 18 yards to his own 38. Franks crashed through center and went "all the way," 62 yards to score. West made it three for three as he place-kicked the extra point, making it 21 to 6. Littlejohn returned the next kickoff 9 yards to his 36 yard line. Three plays failed to gain and after an exchange of punts Clanton had possession on their own 40. Mims and Hardy picked up a first down to the 48 of West Blocton. Three plays gained only one yard and Mims punted for the "coffin corner," but the pigskin bounced into the end zone for a touchback.

From the 20 "Franks and Company" gained to their 40 before being forced to punt. Boyd punted out of bounds on the Clanton 27 yard line. Minor, Baker and Caton gained a first down to their 38. Minor flipped an incomplete pass, then Mims passed to Minor for 27 yards. Mims gained two, then Minor lost two. Caton shot through for nine yards to the 26 yard line. A fourth down pass went incomplete and the West Blocton Tigers took over. West Blocton drove to their own 47 yard line as the game ended.

Larry Minor, Curtis Baker, Payton and Richard Caton were the standouts for the losing Tigers. Minor gained 60 yards; Caton 55; Baker 50; Littlejohn 18; Hardy 15 and Mims 10. Franks gained 159 yards; Boyd 144; West 68 and Kemner 5.

Phil Simms, Billy Nelson, Alford Littleton, Larry Minor, Russell Lewis, Wayne Hardy, Richard Caton and R. W. Duren will be playing against Verbena for their last time Friday night and they may have "the will to win."

ARMISTICE DAY, 1953

It has now been thirty-five years since that morning, November 11th, 1918, when the greatest war up to that time came to an end. While this seems like a long time to some, that morning is still a vivid collection to millions of Americans, many of whom risked their lives and saw the lives of friends and foe sacrificed on the battlefield.

When it is considered that the United States only participated in World War I for about a year and a half, the casualty figures for that war become more impressive than when they are compared with those of World War II, without taking into consideration the longer period of fighting by U. S. soldiers and sailors in World War II. These figures show the death rate per month in World War I compared very tragically with that sustained in World War II.

The heroes of World War I are just as much heroes today as they were in 1918. This country should not forget its gallant sons who made the required sacrifice to turn the tide against the Central Powers in that war. We should always remember it, but especially on November 11th, when our thoughts go back to the doughboys who never returned from France and who gave their lives for the cause of freedom in 1917-18.

THIS YEAR'S TOY CROP

Robert D. M. Barton, president of the Toy Manufacturers of the U. S. A., recently estimated the manufacturer's value of playthings sold this Christmas season will exceed $450,000,000. The most encouraging word from Barton, however, was his estimate that prices would be the same, or lower, than they were in 1952.

Parents will welcome this news, as well as Barton's report that toy makers have concentrated on tool-kits for early training and the development of hobbies. Such kits as television repair kits, plumber's kits, tire-changing tools, and many others, are about to go on the market in large numbers.

For the girls, there are kits with cooking utensils, laundry equipment and cleaning kits. Perhaps the most interesting to Pop, however, are the new accessories for electric trains. There are coal-loaded railroad cars and overhead storage bins, all with automatic controls and many other separately-working devices.

Altogether, toymakers expect 1952 record sales to be exceeded this year by as much as ten per cent.

Personal Grooming

With all the present day facilities for keeping clean, there is no need for any one to lack the freshness presented by attention to good personal grooming. Many people, however, neglect themselves, failing to realize that cleanliness is a necessary accompaniment to good health.

There are three types of skin: dry, oily and average. A person with a dry skin is apt to develop winter itch; one with oily skin usually develops acne during puberty, while the person with an average skin escapes either of the two conditions. The oil in a dry skin may be conserved with a super-fatted soap or a soapless detergent; and, if necessary, additional oil may be applied after bathing. On the other hand, an oily skin may be cleansed with a strong soap; and creams or oils should not be used. An average skin may be cleansed with soap of medium strength.

Frequent bathing is advisable during summer and fall months, since the oil and sweat glands are more active. In the winter, however, persons with very dry skin are frequently restricted in their bathing because of the itchiness. These persons can depend on sponge baths to free the body from odors.

The condition of the scalp usually parallels that of the skin. A person with an oily skin often has an oily scalp while a dry skin is ordinarily accompanied by a dry scalp. Erroneously, people think that the scalp should not be shampooed frequently because of the drying of the hair. Actually the hair and head should be shampooed frequently because the presence of hair in the region provides a better opportunity for dirt to collect. Then, too, a rancid odor usually accompanies unclean hair.

The outer dress does not make the man or woman. The body itself should be clean and well cared for, but clean clothing is essential to keeping the body clean. Freshly laundered undergarments should be worn each day and should be repaired and dryCleaned when necessary.

Attention to the small details of cleanliness pays big dividends. Remember that clean look is the salient point in good grooming.

ideas from other editors

From The Canton Independent, Canton, Pennsylvania: The United States Childrens' Bureau reported recently that accidents kill and injure more children than all diseases known to man. The Bureau sounded a warning, which we have offered in these columns on past occasion, to parents of the country.

Fathers and mothers were told to take the accident problem seriously and give it as much concern as they do such diseases as polio and tuberculosis. Until they begin to take the problem seriously and use preventive measures, the toll of accidents is likely to more than match the toll of deaths among children from diseases of all kinds.

The report of the Bureau covered the period between 1940 and 1949 and showed the death rate due to accidents among children in this period of years was reduced only 16 per cent. The death rate from all other causes in this same period was slashed by an impressive 45 per cent.

In this period children under one year of age died at the rate of 72.1 deaths more than half of them were caused by home accidents. The report showed that until children are between the ages of five and nine, the greatest death threat to them is an accident in the home. After that age, the greatest threat of death comes from motor vehicle accidents.

From the South Pasadena Review, South Pasadena, California: One of the most interesting and amazing segments of American economic life is small business. Say what you will about big corporations, acknowledge their vital role, praise them for their achievements, but you can't escape the fact that it's the millions of little fellows who are the very heart of the American enterprise system. By this we do not mean that small business is a simple thing; some thing easy to succeed in. Actually it is rough, for the small merchant or manufacturer is most quickly affected by economic changes. If this fact were more clearly seen by those who want to set up a business of their own, there would be fewer failures. Too often, the would-be proprietor thinks that buying a stock of goods and opening the door is about all there is to it. Too many ex-proprietors know that isn't so. It needs to be said, and said often, that before anyone launches a new business he should thoroughly study the field, carefully consider his own experience and qualifications and analyze the financial needs. It's well to talk to others in the same line of business, consult with the chamber of commerce officials, discuss it with the local bank manager who is especially well equipped to give sound advice.

CHURCH RENT: ONE PEPPERCORN

Abbottstown, Pa.—When the Lutheran Congregation of this small town pays its rent for the year, it will only be the third time in 283 years the rental has been collected. The church bought two lots from John Abbott, at a cost of five shillings and the annual payment of one peppercorn—a dried berry of the black pepper. The 1953 payment will be made as a part of the 200th anniversary of the town.

BURIED MONEY GONE

Baldwin Park, Cal.—Deciding to buy a house, Cary E. Purcell, 39-year-old machinist, cashed in a $10,000 life insurance policy for $7,900 and then cashed some bonds he had accumulated. Wanting the money "where he could get it in a hurry," Purcell buried it under his garage. Recently he decided to take a look at his cache and it was gone.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

APRIL 21, 1945, the Fifth Division of the U. S. Marines was half way up the hill to Mt. Suribachi to plant, at the top, the Stars and Stripes.

Suddenly there was a terrific explosion!! Hundreds of our young men lay dead and bleeding. One of those boys was Gerald Burns' son to him just a baby.

For six months his son lay in a hospital on Guam, with half of his hip shot off while his father was lonely, worried and fearful of that telegram from the War Department. He prayed to God every day to bring his son back safe. In December, 1945, they put the injured lad on a boat where the temperature was 80 degrees—and shipped him to Tientsin, China, where the temperature was 20 below. He had a nervous breakdown and spent two months out at Mercy Wood Sanitarium. But Gerald kept on praying, never losing faith in God.

CARNEGIE

Then one horrible night he couldn't stand it any longer. He was going stark mad. He cried out to God please not to forsake him. In the darkness he reached up on his bureau to grab a bottle of iodine. He was going to end it all. Then the telephone rang. He didn't have the strength to lift the receiver. It seemed as though there was some one in the room holding it to his ear. He heard the operator saying San Diego calling. Then he heard a voice very faintly saying, "Hello." It kept coming in stronger, until at last he recognized the voice. His son was back home again. He got out of bed and switched on the light, and raised his arm to smash the bottle on the floor, but as his arm was half way down he felt something pricking his hand. He opened the hand to find that he didn't have the iodine in it—but a small crucifix

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

In homes where there are small children, it is frequently wise and often necessary for the adults to spell words they'd rather not have little ears hear. For some years now the Head of the House and I have been able to have some semi-private conversations by resorting to spelling.

One morning recently when the Head of the House started to leave for town, I called to him.

"Please bring home some i-c-e-r-e-a-m."

"Goody!" shouted the six-year-old Member of the First Grade. "I want vanilla!"

Thus endeth an era around our house.

Now that the six-year-old is learning to read, we're using a trick the neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, taught us to help get chores done more pleasantly.

When the six-year-old comes home from school, she finds printed on her blackboard a list of things to be done, like water the flowers, clean your room, sweep the walk, put up the funny books, etc. She is proud of being able to read the instructions and delights in marking off each completed task.

I suppose the novelty will soon wear off, but it is wonderful while it lasts!

Anybody who has ever taken a baby about seven months old visiting knows that it's mighty hard to carry on a conversation and hold a squirming child in your lap at the same time.

Our neighbor around the corner takes the baby's car seat with her when she takes her young son visiting. She puts the seat on the back of a living room chair, places the baby in it and enjoys a undisturbed, if short, visit with her friends. The baby is perfectly comfortable, safe and seems to enjoy being up high where he can see what is going on all around him.

The other morning when I was hanging out diapers in the back yard, the next door neighbor stopped by the clothes line and remarked, quite truthfully,

"They're getting a little worn, aren't they?"

After having been used for three babies, the diapers are getting a bit ragged; I have to be careful how I fold them. If they will only last until the one-year-old reaches the training pants stage, I'll have the finest collection of dust cloths in the county!

While she was talking, this neighbor asked for two flat clothespins she saw on the line. I gave them to her gladly, but I couldn't resist asking what she wanted with them.

"I am going to use them to hold my dustpan," she said. "I'll screw them, prongs up, to the inside of my utility closet door and slip the dustpan into them."

Our neighbor with the big family makes orange crackle cookies for her children to take to school with them and keeps a batch at home for snacks: Here's her recipe:

Melt a stick of margerine over low heat. Remove from heat and blend in 1 cup suga. Add 1 6-ounce can frozen orange juice (undiluted) and mix well. Sift together 3 cups flour and 1-2 teaspoon soda. Add gradually to orange mixture. Knead on floured board and roll out 1-8 inch thick. Cut into rounds and place on greased cooky sheet. Bake at 375 degrees about 10 minutes, until golden brown.

WILLIAMS OPTIMISTIC ON BUSINESS FUTURE

Under-Secretary of Commerce Walter Williams recently told a business convention group that sound money was not a threat to continued prosperity in the United States. Williams also said American industry would meet the challenge of shifting gradually from war production into civilian production without allowing the change to cause a depression.

Williams told the group the country is now ridding itself of inflation and that it was, therefore, surprising to hear some of the voices of gloom now prevalent in the country. He said:

"I believe the Administration team in Washington has indicated by deed, as well as by words, that you can count on progressive improvement in the climate for free enterprise...." He said this climate offered business an opportunity to develop sales programs to supply the needs of a growing market, and employ some of the forgotten selling arts, which have long sparked the growth of private enterprise in the United States.

We agree with the Under-Secretary that the future for business in the United States is good, not bad. We point out, again, that there have been voices of gloom in the United States in every year since the end of World War and, yet, these dire prophecies have never panned out. It is highly unlikely they will pan out this time.

START AIR BASES IN SPAIN

U.S. engineers have begun work drafting plans for the construction of four major air bases in Spain. The bases are to be located near Valenzuela and Torrenjon, in Northern Spain, and near El copero and Moron de la Frontera, in Southern Spain.

These four bases will be built into operational bases for heavy jet bombers, but will be used jointly by both the Spanish Air Force and the U. S. Air Force. At present the four fields are in very poor condition. Two of them have a single concrete runway and two are merely grass fields.

After U. S. engineers and architects complete plans and construction is completed, the United States will have four major jet bomber bases on the Continent behind the Pyrennes. The Pyrennes and the narrow mountainous Franco-Spanish border is thought by some experts to be the best possible defense line on the Continent against Communist attacks from the East.

The steady accumulation of major air bases in a circle skirting the outer edges of the Russian-dominated world is an impressive reminder to the Kremlin dictatorship that a war with the United States would bring about swift and awful retaliation, and be a very costly one. The acquisition of these bases by the U.S. Air Force somewhat parallels the British Navy's strategy of the last hundred years in locating bases throughout the remote regions of the world. In years to come, the country with the greatest number of bases will dominate the air war, if numbers are not too unequal. The U. S. Air Force is out to achieve this goal and its success will have much to do wit the future security of this country.

GEORGE SAYS END EUROPE AID

Senator Walter F. George, of Ga. who has served longer on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee than any other member of the Senate, called recently for an end to economic aid to Europe. Senator George announced, during the Congressional debate on foreign aid earlier this year, that, in supporting it at that time, he was supporting an economic aid bill for the last time.

Senator George's remarks are sure to recieve widespread support in all sections of the country. In the last year there have been increasing signs that the economy of most of the nations in Western Europe has recovered from the destitution which followed World War II. In fact, in the case of businesses in many Western countries, such as Germany, European competition has become so keen that American business men are being pushed to hold their own in markets in the Middle East and in other areas.

For the first time since World War II, the British economy seems to be on a sound footing and the dollar balances in London are increasing month by month. Western Germany, Without the burden of rearmament and heavy defense spending, is thriving at present and only France and one or two other nations are in an uncertain economic position. For France this is a chronic condition, one which has existed since the end of World War II and which will probably persist with or without U. S. economic aid.

Although U. S. economic aid to Europe totaled over $2,000,000,000 in the last Foreign Aid Bill, compared to some four and a half billion dollars in military aid, and though it has been decreasing in proportion to military aid steadily in the last two or three years, the economic aid program is still a sizable one and termination of it could appreciably aid the Administration effort to hold down the deficit.

Therefore, Senator George's proposal is likely to receive bi-partisan support, and the economic aid program seems to be nearer an end at present than it has been at any time since 197 when then Secretary of State George Marshall originated it.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Benjamin P. Forbes, Cleveland, Ohio: I remember back in the horse-and-buggy days when Barnum's show caravan passed out home near Norwalk, Ohio.

One night we children went to bed full of excitement over the news that the following day the big show would probably pass our house on its way to the next stand.

Early the next morning, about 4 o'clock, we dashed out to examine the dust in the road and see if by chance the show had slipped through while we slept. We figured we could tell if an elephant had passed by his foot prints in the dust.

A little later in the day the parade came by and there was the much advertised elephant, "Jumbo," the biggest in captivity, which Barnum had bought, according to the Encyclopedia Americana, for $10,000 in England.

The animal weighed six tons and was exhibited in America for about three years. Then while on tour in Canada in 1885, Jumbo is supposed to have seen a baby elephant in danger of being hit by a train. Rushing forward he is reported to have thrown the little elephant from the track, but in so doing was struck by the train and killed.

Incidentally, Jumbo's skeleton is preserved at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C.

From the Lincoln Times, Lincolnton, N. C.: There are many parts of the country which suffered drought this year which still are tinder dry As hunters take to the open fields and woodlands they should take special precautions against starting fires which could destroy not only crops and timber but also the game which they have come to hunt.

The true sportsmen, of course, observes all the laws—including the law of common sense He is careful not only about fire hazards but also about the hunter on the other side of the field or woods, who may not be too careful where and when he shoots. Let good sense go along with good hunting.

From The Independent, Fuquay Springs, N. C.: The choice of Earl Warren of California as Chief Justice of the United States has met with almost universal approval. Democrats as well as Republicans have come to admire and respect the quiet, friendly, but competent man who has been twice considered as a Republican presidential candidate Adlai E. Stevenson, titular head of the Democratic party said he thought the appointment an excellent one.

Warren will be the 14th Chief Justice in the history of the Supreme Court He is the first to be appointed to the court by a Republican President since Herbert Hoover named Benjamin F. Cardozo of New York in 1932.

The Supreme Court occupies a special place in the respect and affection of Americans It has traditionally been the safeguard of our liberties and Earl Warren will uphold that tradition. It is good to know that the vacancy left by the death of Chief Justice Vinson a dedicated and gifted man will be filled by such an able man.

For Longer Life Keep Your Furniture Clean

Auburn, Ala. — Clean furniture wards regularly to prevent a cloudy and dull appearance, advises Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishings specialist.

After cleaning thoroughly, apply a protective coat of wax to keep the piece in good condition. Then dust often with a cloth treated for waxed surfaces. Remember, says the home leader, clean furniture wears longer and gives greater satisfaction.

"Wash varnished woods with a soft cloth wrung dry from warm water containing mild soapsuds," suggests Miss Peavy. "Rub the furniture in the direction of the grain. When dirt has been removed, dry the surface with a clean, soft cloth. Rinse well and dry. Work rapidly to prevent moisture from raising the grain or softening the glue. Then apply protective wax and dust furniture regularly.

"Another wash mixture especially good for varnished imisites is made with three tablespoons of linseed oil, one tablespoon of turpentine, and one quart of hot water. Mix these thoroughly and keep hot in a double boiler. Dip a soft cloth into this solution and wring dry. Wash a small area at a time and dry immediately with a soft cloth. Polish by rubbing with the grain of the wood. Since the hot water and turpentine remove grease and dirt and the oil polishes the finish no wax is needed.

"Never wash a shellac finish or a oil varnish—water may turn it white, concludes Miss Peavy. "And remember that dullness usually cannot be removed from poor quality enamel or varnish.

All medical doctors and dentists in Alabama have been advised of plans for the meeting and urged to attend by Dr. John Day Peake of Mobile, chairman of the Alabama executive committee, American Cancer Society.

Some of the nation's leading cancer specialists have been invited to address the seminar, Dr Peake announced.

Subjects to be covered include many types of cancer as well as methods of detection and treatment.

"This seminar will be quite extensive in scope," Dr. Peake said, "and has real potentialities for helping the advance against cancer in our own state."

INGENIOUS BIRDS

Memphis, Tenn.—A year or so ago, George Grantham, Sheriff's Lieutenant, built a birdhouse for martins and placed it in his back yard. The martins found the doorways too small, but sparrows found them just right and moved in. However, Grantham vows that last spring the martins came back, bringing a woodpecker with them. The woodpecker went to work and pecked away until he made the holes big enough for the martins. The job finished, the woodpecker left and the martins moved in.

Mrs. Annie Thacker was in to visit us the other day. We got a kick out of her story about how she gets her Chilton County News delivered on time. Seems for a while it came irregularly and one day the postman asked her about a beautiful flower she had growing in the front yard. She told him to come around to the back and she would show him some really pretty flowers and he did. Well, they found they had something in common — the postman loved pretty flowers too. So she gave him some flowers and she never had trouble again getting her News on time. That is until they changed postmen the next time. Then Mrs. Thacker had the same trouble all over again. This time she had just been to Chilton County for a visit and took home some of these peaches like you can get no where else in the world. Well, she gave a bag of peaches to the new postman. A week or so later she came home again and took back some peaches. This time she did the same thing again—fixed a nice bag of ripe peaches for the postman. Now, Mrs. Thacker has no more trouble getting her Chilton County News on time. You know the old say, "There's more ways to kill a cat than to," etc., etc.

The metal "traffic police" placed at the intersection at the Presbyterian Church and Spigener Funeral Home were placed there by R. C. Williams of the Williams Oil Company. Whether R. C. has placed any more of the signs in and around the city, we do not know, but it shows a fine public spirit by the Company who placed them there, and we are sure they are appreciated.

Saw Ben Margolis in town the other day. You know Ben is a Texan now and says he likes it out tere. However, (now don't let a Texan hear us say this, but) business out there is seasonal, according to Ben just as it is everywhere else over the country and he was visiting friends and relatives while business was dull. Ben's looking good and says he's doing fine.

That assembly line at the Methodist Bazaar Tuesday night really got things done. There was Rev. M. K. Vickers heading the list. We believe he was leadout man with the turkey. Then there was Cliff Klie, Ed Waldrop, Gordon Robertson, L. E. Diefenderfer, (he was the cranberry sauce man), Campbell White, with several others pinch-hitting now and then. Anyway in a little more than an hour and a half they served 500 plates. That's a lot of turkey, ham, dressing, salad, beans, etc. Now about all the ladies who worked so hard to make the Bazaar a success they were just too many to name. A lot of people deserve a lot of praise for the success that the Bazaar was this year. Especial recognition should go to Mrs. M. K. Vickers who acted as chairman of the occasion this year.

Barney and Clyde Henderson have bought the Pan-Am Station in the north end of town. To introduce themselves and to win new friends and influence people they are giving away a bicycle come Christmas Eve. To get full particulars about the contest, drive in the Pan-Am Station and call for a Henderson and you'll get sudden service.

Herman LeCroy has opened his Toyland. He has a most beautiful line of Christmas toys for all the little boys and girls, and is just waiting to serve you. They have a Lay-Away Plan at Clanton Home & Auto Supply. That is how we are buying our Christmas.

Seems that the Attorney General and some others do not agree with Frances Speaks on his interpretation of the law as regards the Veteran's Bill he wrote about in last weeks Chilton County News. According to Probate Judge Dave Tingle, the State Revenue Department and the above mentioned Attorney General, the Bill only includes Korean Veterans where the six-year clause in the Bill passed this year is concerned. The old law still stands (six years from the date of discharge), according to reports from the Probate Office. Judge Tingle doesn't want the veterans to get the idea that he is treating them unjustly. As he stated today: "Tell the Veterans they will always get a square deal from my office. It just so happens that the law allows a veteran free licenses six years after discharge from the armed service only." Too, let us hasten to add only certain business and occupational licenses are exempt.

THE Eisenhower administration received another blow in the battle with its biggest domestic problem — the farm-price pinch. The new blow was a report by the Agriculture Department that farm prices have skidded another 2 per cent. It drops the farmer to the lowest rung he has occupied on the economic ladder since 1941.

The situation is termed "grave" by GOP policy makers and especially those GOP candidates who must win their contests in 1954. All agree that something must be done or the Democratic party is going to sweep through the farm belt in the 1954 elections. The result could well be that the country would have a Democratic controlled congress.

The farm prices situation is this: During the past month cattle prices fell an average of 7 per cent a hundred pounds. They stood at 71 per cent of parity.

Prices paid out by farmers from mid-September to mid-October fell one-third of one per cent. But since the farmer's prices fell even more, the net result was that he was less well off.

Average farm prices stood at 91 per cent of parity on October 15, the lowest since May, 1941. That compared with 92 per cent of parity on September 15 and 99 per cent a year ago. The over-all farm-price picture on October 15 was about 11½ per cent below a year ago, while farmers' costs were only about 3 per cent below the same time last year.

Meanwhile, the cattle industry is unhappy with the results of the caravan of cattlemen, representing 30 states, that recently visited Secretary of Agriculture Benson in Washington.

Benson let it be known that he considers such a group a "pressure" group and that he will resist all pressure, political or otherwise, against his announced policy. This policy is an adjustment of price-support programs to m et basic economic and peacetime needs in the best interests of all American farmers.

It is believed in Washington that this fight of the cattlemen for high rigid price-support for their industry is not over and may be carried to the next session of congress. It will be a "bad break" for the administration if the fight becomes a knock-down and drag-out affair.

President Eisenhower is very conscious of the situation. This is evidenced by his recent statement that the drop in live-cattle prices has reached the bottom and they will now start to climb. He vigorously defended his administration's new farm program and said it will protect the interests of all Americans, including consumers.

He rejected a suggestion that he call a special session of congress to deal with the general farm situation. He said it would not make sense because the administration will not have its program ready until January.

73,000,000 HEALTH INSURANCE POLICIES

The Health Insurance Council reported recently that 73,000,000 Americans were insured against the cost of surgical expenses in 1952. This represented a 12 per cent increase over 1951, and is an all time high in the United States.

The Council also reported that 36,000,000 Americans had the more general medical expenses insurance last year and 38,000,000 disability income insurance. One of the major reasons for this rapid increase in medical insurance is the trend among business men to share the cost of insurance plans with their employes.

The most popular form of health insurance, of course, is that which protects the insured against hospital expenses, not including surgery. The Council reports that 92,000,000 people were covered by this type of insurance in 1952. This figure represents an achievement of which businesses, the insured, and insurance companies can be proud. It is also a refutation of the Communist argument that adequate medical insurance can only be provided by the Central Government.

The 73,000,000 persons covered against hospital expenses in 1952 represented an increase over the 1951 figure of seven per cent. The number of persons covered by such insurance has been rising steadily for several years and there is no reason to assume that it will not soon pass the 100,000,000-mark.

MODERN THEORY ON CHILDREN

The Iowa Supreme Court recently uttered a few sentences with which we are heartily in accord. The State's high court rejected a challenge to the long-accepted right of a father to punish his child for wrong-doing. The case which brought the test was one in which a 14-year-old has been convicted of killing his father, after an argument about raking leaves.

In upholding the father's right to discipline his son, the Iowa State Supreme Court said, among other things: "The modern trend is to restrict the degree and extent of chastisement a parent may inflict (but) the right still exists, in moderation and for the purpose of correction and training . . . Proper discipline, including corporal punishment when needed . . . is the serious duty of every parent . . . There is a growing current of opinion that lack of parental discipline is responsible for much of the juvenile delinquency now so apparent."

The Iowa State Supreme Court hit the nail on the head when it referred to a growing current of opinion that lack of parental discipline is responsible for much of the delinquency now observed among modern-day youth. Although we are not one of the school which holds that the modern generation is going to the dogs, we nevertheless remain highly skeptical of the modern theory which has convinced many parents they should never say no to Junior. Such a policy, which is surposed to encourage Junior's creative abilities, more often results in a carnage of destruction in Junior's path.

Moreover, the modern-trained brat seems to find it exceedingly difficult to fit himself into normal life patterns after he emerges from his adolescence and new-fangled training. As we see it, parents have a right to discipline their children intelligently and with moderation, but they, nevertheless, have the duty to exercise discipline when it is needed.

Fair Labor Act Forces Cotton Pickers Back To School

Birmingham, Ala. — More than 160 Alabama children were found to have traded cotton picking sacks for school books during October as Wage-Hour investigators in this section told farmer-employers that the Law would not let them hire school age youngsters while school was in session, according to James H. Ogle, Investigation Supervisor of the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division.

Laying down the sometimes oversized sacks, often big enough to hold the child himself, they picked up their school books with varying emotions; some tickled to be out of a daylight to dark task, while others . . . well, "some little boys were not too happy to go back to their studies," admitted Mr. Ogle.

The children were found to be employed at all ages, some of them as young as eight and many had never attended any school. He said most of them had simply dropped out to take advantage of the opportunity to make a little extra money during cotton picking season while the class rooms thinned out to an alarming degree.

The Fair Labor Standards Act makes it unlawful to employ children under 16 years of age in agriculture during school hours, according to Mr. Ogle. In spite of the fact that a few extra dollars look mighty good to many young people during the height of cotton season, they should put their education and training ahead of this and the farmer must arrange for older pickers unless the hours outside of school are enough to allow him to get the crop in.

The Law, he explained, applies equally to local resident children as well as to children who come in from other sections. It does not apply to a farmer's own children working on their parent's farm. Also, if a local school is closed for several days during the height of the season the Fair Labor Standards Act sets no minimum age for employment of children in agriculture during that closed session or on school holidays, vacations, or before or after school. However, when the bell rings on a regular school day, school age children are expected to be there.

State Traffic Death Toll Is Lower This Year

Montgomery, Ala. — The state's 1953 traffic death score stood this week, (November 4th), at 628, 21 under the toll for the comparable period of 1952, Alabama Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan announced.

But he emphasized that the 1953 figure is "entirely provisional," not reflecting recent urban fatalities and possible omitting delayed deaths from late rural accidents.

Sullivan said reasonably stable August figures show that month the worst of this year to date. Eighty-five traffic victims were counted, 76 in rural accidents and nine in urban smashups. January, with 51 dead, was the best so far.

NEW SCHEME

Butte, Mont.—Burglars called 3 hotels here early in the morning to report smoke was streaming from top-floor windows. When night clerks in two of the hotels investigated the report, they returned to find that thieves had cleaned out their registers, getting about $230. The scheme backfired in one hotel, however, as a porter remained at the desk to give the alarm in case of fire.

Ewes should be culled from the sheep flock when they have lost one or more of their adult teeth.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

Good Stewards of God's Gifts. Lesson for November 15: Psalms 24: 1; Leviticus 25: 18-22; Malachi 3: 7-10; I Corinthians 16: 2. Golden Text: Psalms 24: 1.

The ground of stewardship is God's ownership of all things. God is the owner, man is the agent, and of all that God entrusts unto a man a certain return is expected and required. Under the Old Testament, this return was a tenth, The New Testament has a wider law. It emphasizes that all that man has comes from God and that he must return all that he can for God's service.

Throughout Old Testament times the people were taught to trust God to take care of them when they acted as faithful tithers. In the seventh year the fields were to lie untilled. It was God's promise that the people would gather enough in the sixth year to last them until the harvest of the eight year. Then, in the book Malachi, we find the stern old prophet rebuking the returned exiles for their failure to pay the tithe, but promising that the gates of heaven would be opened to those who brought all their tithes into the Lord's storehouse.

As gracious promises were made in connection with the tithe, so also were great blessings promised to those who were faithful stewards, as set forth in the New Testament. But let it be kept in mind that stewardship concerns all the a man is as well as what he has. His time and his talents are to be consecrated to the Great Giver. Thus all of life is a stewardship. Any man will give what is due he first gives himself to God

In 1785, in Alabama the Indian Sequoyah made characters to represent sounds, and invented an alphabet of eighty-six characters, transforming the dialect of savages into a written language, and teaching his countrymen to read.

Pushmataha, the great Choctaw chief and orator, fought with the Americans against the British, as well as hostile Indian tribes, including the famous Shawnee chief, Tecumseh. Dying in Washington, Pushmataha was buried there with the honors due a warrior. His dying request was to "let the big guns fire over me."

William Weatherford, Red Eagle, the Creek Indian warrior, led his Red Sticks against Fort Mims, August 30, 1813, savagely killing 500 men, women and children. Later Weatherford surrendered to Gen. Andrew Jackson at Old Fort Toulouse, near Montgomery. "I am come to give myself up. I am in your power. Do with me as you please. There was a time when I could animate my warriors to battle, but I cannot animate the dead. General Jackson, I have nothing to ask for myself. But I beg you to spare the women and children of the war party, who have been driven to the woods without an ear of corn. They never did any harm. But kill me, if the White people want it done." Jackson spared Weatherford's life and he became a farmer in Baldwin County.

In 1862, the Confederate fleet, 470 men and 22 guns, engaged a federal force of 2,700 men and 99 guns, under Admiral Farragut, in Mobile Bay. After the federal forces had fought their way past the forts, nearly the whole Confederate fleet was destroyed. About the same time, General James T. Holtzclaw, beseiged in the Spanish fort near Mobile by 25,000 federal troops, stood them off for 13 days. Holtzclaw had 2,700 Confederates.

Among Alabama's women heroes is Emma Sanson. In May, 1863, at Black Creek, Southern General Nathan Bedford Forrest was pursuing Federal Col. A. D. Streight, as the Yankees raided the hills of North Alabama. Emma Sanson jumped up on Forrest's horse behind the saddle, to guide him to a ford. Her heroic action helped Forrest to capture Streight and his entire command.

Following the War Between the States, President Andrew Johnson directed Federal military authorities in the South to arrest any member of the Alabama legislature who might attempt to hold a meeting of the general assembly. Arrested and taken off to Northern prisons were men with such famous names in state history as Thomas H. Watts, John Gill Shorter, Andrew B. Moore, John Gayle, Clement C. Clay, and Benjamin Fitzpatrick.

More Older People Killed

Anniston, Ala.—With pedestrains, death seems to play favorites. Mrs. Mary P. Bannister, president of the Alabama Association of Mutual Insurance Agents, made this observation in pointing out that safe walking odds apparently decrease with age.

"More than one-third of all pedestrains killed in Alabama and the nation last year were aged 65 or o der," Mrs. Bannister said.

The Anniston insurance woman said several factors may be involved in the high traffic fatality rate among older pedestrains. "Ofter older people have dimmed eyesight and hearing," she said. "Sometimes they can't see or hear approaching cars as readily as younger people. Then, reflexes are slower, and the oldsters can't move as fast to get out of danger."

She observed that injuries to older people more often prove fatal. Broken bones mend more slowly if at all, and resistance to disease is lower in those of advanced age.

Mrs. Bannister urged older people to be especially careful to obey all safety rules when walking out-of-doors. "Cross streets only at intersections," she cautioned. "Obey traffic lights, and be sure to look both ways and for turning traffic before stepping off the curb."

She urged elderly pedestrains to avoid, as much as possible, walking at night or venturing out in bad weather.

Mrs. Bannister spoke in connection with the pedestrain safety program being conducted this month in Alabama by the Alabama Safety Council. The Alabama Association of Mutual Insurance Agents is cooperating with this program.

FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

The Fifth U. S. Civil Service Region has announced an examination for filing the position of Junior Government Assistant at a salary of $3,410 a year. This examination is being used to recruit outstanding young people for careers leading to high level positions in the Federal Government.

Competitors must pass a written test and in addition have had certain education or experience. College students who expect to complete the necessary education requirements by June 30, 1954, may also file. Applications will be accepted until December 30, 1953.

Local Markets Demand Cool Weather Produce

Visits to local food wholesalers and retailers may be all that is necessary to make substantial sales of one or more cool weather food favorites, says Austin Ezzell, API Extension distributor marketing specialist.

Market demands for such foods as leafy greens, apples, sweetpotatoes, milk, eggs, honey, syrup, and most meats usually grow much stronger when cold weather arrives. And alert farmers who have these foods for sale will seek out local markets for their produce.

"County farm and home agents are capable allies," he reminds growers. "They can steer you to demand areas and can also inform buyers about available supplies of locally grown foods."

SQUIRREL HUNT PERILOUS

McAlester, Okla.—Squirrel hunting in this country recently was a hazardous sport. Manuel Blackwood, climbing a tree to get a squirrel from a hollow limb, was wounded in the arm when his gun went off. Then Sammy Smith and Lewis Zoomer cut down a tree to get a squirrel and the tree fell on Smith and broke his leg.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—Do federal judges have to be lawyers?

A—No. Article III of the Constitution does not require federal judges to be attorneys. According to the Administrative Office of the U. S. Courts, there is no federal statute on the subject. Precedent has decreed that all federal justices be attorneys, but many magistrates and justices of the peace—appointed or elected under local or state law—are not attorneys.

Q—How old is our primary system of nominating candidates?

A—A popular vote system of nominating candidates for local office was first adopted by Crawford County, Pa., in 1866. In 1868, New York and California passed laws giving their states' counties the option of adopting the "Crawford County system." At the present time, only two states—Connecticut and Rhode Island—choose all state-wide candidates by the convention method

Q—When were U. S. Senators first elected by popular vote?

A—In the election of 1914. The 17th Amendment, providing for the direct election of Senators, was declared ratified by the Secretary of State (William Jennings Bryan) on May 31, 1913. From 1789 to 1914, Senators were chosen by state legislatures.

Q—I noticed recently that the Interparliamentary Union met. What does the Union do?

A—Its primary purpose is the peaceful settlement of international disputes. Formed in 1889 in Paris with nine member nations, the Union now has 34 members. Thirty-two nations, including the U. S., were invited to this years' conference. The two countries uninvited were Poland—the only Iron Curtain country member—and the Republic of Spain (in exile.)

As the Thanksgiving season nears we should stop and count our blessings one by one. If ever a community has been blessed it is Mt. Pleasant. Our homes; school and church. Some are new homes or remodeled, our church, having been founded by a very few, has grown and been added to; in our community there are two chicken farms, belonging to J. Reed Thompson and Ed Blackmon; we have an upholstery shop belonging to J. E. Minor; a grade-A dairy belonging to the Grady Minors. Most of us are able to get around. So, review folks, and see and know that God has blessed us all in a mighty way.

USE FOR RAGWEED

Chillicothe, Mo.—The Depler brothers, farmers near here, have come up with a new use for ragweed, that trouble-maker for hay fever sufferers. As an experiment, they cut the ragweed which grew up in a 10-acre plot, stacked it and it turned into siliage which smelled like licorice. Their cattle liked it so well they broke down an electric fence to get to it.

Poultry Diseases Can Be Spread By Visitors

Auburn, Ala.—Human beings often help spread poultry diseases from one farm to another, according to John Weeks, API Extension poultryman.

Service people and poultry and egg buyers who go from farm to farm may easily be disease spreaders. They can pick up germs on their shoes and clothing or on poultry crates and then transfer them to another area, explains the specialist.

"Don't let any person who visits other poultry farms enter your chicken houses or yards," advises Weeks. "Don't visit farmers who have sick chickens—and keep them out of your poultry section. Lock your chicken house and show off your flock through the fence or window. It also pays to erect a sign warning visitors of the dangers of spreading diseases.

East St. Louis, Ill.—Under provisions of an anti-truant law recently passed by the City Council, if junior is between the ages of 7 and 16 and enrolled in an East St. Louis public school, it will cost his parent from $5 to $20 if he skips classes without a good excuse. Only illness attendance at religious classes or necessary employment within provisions of the child labor law are considered acceptable reasons for children missing classes.

The telephone you use today was once just an idea in the mind of Alexander Graham Bell. Since his time, countless other ideas of telephone scientists and engineers have contributed to the fast, clear telephone service you now enjoy.

The idea mill still runs. Telephone men and women everywhere are constantly seeking better and more economical ways of providing your service. Each year Southern Bell employees submit more than 2,000 suggestions. Many are put into practice, and cash awards are given by the Company.

This spirit of always searching out better ways to do the job pays off for you in the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost.

Stronger Churches — Better Communities.

Lesson for November 8: Acts 2: 41-47; Philippians 1: 27-30; I Peter 2: 4-5, 9-10.

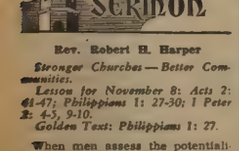
Golden Text: Philippians 1: 27.

When men assess the potentialities and political possibilities of a given period, seemingly the last thing to be considered is the spiritual aspect of the situation and the possibility of mustering spiritual forces. Would it not be a fine innovation if in the cold war of the present leaders and diplomats would apply themselves first unto the Holy Spirit and undertake through his blessing to convert the world?

But generally even good men in matters of state turn to religion as a last resort. It was not thus with the ancient disciples. They were out to make Jesus King and they did not trouble about other matters. And on the day of Pentecost the Christian Church came into being and initial power through the work of the Holy Spirit.

Writing to the Philippians, Paul shows that Christians can be firm and strong in their manner of living, regardless of the difficulties and the adversaries in the way. Peter writes of good Christians as being living stones built up into a spiritual house in which acceptable sacrifices are offered.

And Christians will be a royal priesthood unto God, whether they be Gentiles or Jews. They will be the people of God, and they will work out into the community and the world until the influence for good shall be felt everywhere.



I DISLIKE to meet ladies on the street who stare a hole through you when you don't tip your hat.

I was trotting down Main Street the other day and this lady began to stare at me from about 30 feet away. I stared back, thinking I must know her, but unable to recall her name. Should I speak, I wondered to myself, or should I stop and tie my shoestring.

As we approached each other she continued to stare and so I decided I must know her and should speak.

When we came abreast to each other I says, "Good morning. Lovely day isn't it."

With that her nose shot up in the air. She stops and says, "Sir, I don't know you. Are you in the habit of speaking to strange ladies on the street—ladies at least 30 years your senior."

"I'm very sorry," says I, "but you kept staring at me and I thought I must have met you somewhere."

"The very idea," says she. "I just wanted to see if you would be gentleman enough to tip your hat. Obviously, you are no gentleman."

With that she flounces down the street, leaving me with my mouth open and nothing to say.

When I had recovered all I could think to say was to myself: "You, sir, are a cad."

November—

There are many things in November that bring the great traditions of American life to mind.

There is Election Day when all Americans have the right to go to the polls and cast a ballot as your conscience dictates. Then Armistice Day, which marked the close of the fighting in Europe in World War I. There is Thanksgiving Day when all Americans have the right to go to the polls and cast a ballot as your conscience dictates. Then Armistice Day, which marked the close faces East for a word of prayer. Then Thanksgiving, as we near this season, let us all thank God for the many blessings and privileges that are ours; for life, health, [illegible] of opportunity, liberty, [illegible] the freedom of speech. Let all remember the bountiful harvest, enough for ourselves and some to spare for others. There is the pumpkin pie, plum pudding and the turkey that will appease and appease hunger.

Let all join in this [illegible] Almighty God, Give us every one one perfect gift, we humbly ask. Thine for the many blessings we receive as citizens of this beloved land. Give us strength and courage to continue in every good work as a united people, true to our country and just to our Government."

The first Thanksgiving Day was proclaimed by William Bradford, Governor of Plymouth Mass., in 1623. The Colonists were partakers, as well as Massasoit and 90 other Indians. In November 1789, George Washington issued a Thanksgiving Proclamation, then in 1864, President Lincoln established a permanent date, the last Thursday in November. Since that time each President has followed his example.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

THE wife woke me from a sound sleep about 2 a. m.

"There's someone in the house," she whispered.

Being a coward, I turned over and pulled the covers over my head. "Nonsense," says I. "You're imagining things."

"Get out of this bed," she hissed. "Do you want us all murdered."

"You're letting your imagination run away with you," says I.

Just then there was fugitive-like noise in the living room. It was terrifying in the still house. The hair on the back of my neck bristled and I began to shake until my teeth chattered.

"There," says she, "I told you." With that she gave me a shove and I hit the floor with a bang.

At this point, sure that any burglar in the house would have heard me hit the floor and departed by now, a little of my courage returned. I crept toward the living room. All was peaceful.

I stepped boldly into the room and my foot came down on something warm and soft.

"Help," I screamed and retreated toward the bedroom at express-train speed. But I missed the doorway and ran head-on into the wall I went down cold.

The next thing I remembered the lights were on. Grandmother, the wife and boys were hovering over me. A wet towel was across my forehead.

"He hit me an awful blow," I murmured.

The wife snorted. "He was the wall," said she.

"But the body on the floor," I protested.

"The body was Smokey, the dog. You forgot to put him out. And I don't know which of you was scared the worse. He is behind the refrigerator and we can't get him out."

"Oh," I moaned.

"Oh," she mocked me. "Come on grandmother, let's get the hero to bed."

CROSS-CHECK

By Ray Trail

A MAN Cotters never dreamed would run into such a snag as [illegible] when he pulled his car into a filling station and told the attendant to fill her up. Then, according to his wont, he was to making his usual rounds passing bad checks, he discovered he had lost his wallet and opened a conversation with the front of the red-headed boy.

"Sure, I guess I'll have to give you a check," he said. "Can you cash one for fifty dollars?"

"Well, sir," the boy said as he scratched his head, "we don't cash personal checks for strangers. Not unless you can get someone to vouch for you."

"Oh, it's a good check. Salary check, from Carlson's downtown."

"Yes sir, I know the store all right, but—"

Cotters could see the small drug store on the corner opposite the filling station, its sign saying "WRIGHT'S PHARMACY", and his thoughts leaped fast. "I know Mr. Wright over there," he said.

"Oh, you do, sir?" the attendant brightened up. "Well, sir, that's better. I tell you what. Why don't you just go across to the store and tell Mr. Wright what the situation is, and have him wave to me if he knows you and if everything is all right."

"Sure," said Cotters as he looked at the phony check with the phony name. "By the way, what's your name?" he asked.

"Andrews, sir. Jack Andrews," he heard the boy say.

He walked into the drug store and saw a man of about sixty putting up stock behind the counter. "Hello," he said to the man, "are you Mr. Wright?"

"That's me," said the pharmacist. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, I just bought some gas from my friend Jack Andrews across the street, and I find that all I have with me is this check for fifty."

"Oh?" The pharmacist replied. "He said that if you'd just step to the door and wave at him, he'd wave back and let you know that everything is all right."

"Oh, all right," said Doc. "Jack's a fine boy. Known him since he was four."

The pharmacist stepped to the door and waved a hand across to the red-headed boy, and through the window Cotters watched the boy wave back with a big sweep. Everything was all right. So Doc cashed the check and handed Cotters five ten-dollar bills.

"Thank you ever so much," he said. On his way back to the car, he pulled out another check just like the one he had passed on the pharmacist.

The attendant was smiling. "Sorry to cause you so much trouble, sir, but now that I know everything's okay . . ."

Cotters was careful to keep his back toward the drug store as he handed the boy the check. And a moment later the boy handed him $48.90.

"Thanks a lot," Cotters said. He climbed into the car and turned on the ignition. "What a sucker trick that was!" he grinned.

He pushed hard on the starter, and the engine sputtered. He pushed again. Then his feet fidgeted with both the starter and the accelerator.

"You'll flood her that way, sir," he said. "Maybe I'd better check the carburetor." And in a jiffy he had the hood up.

"Should be okay now," he said. But when Cotters tried again, the engine sputtered worse.

"What's the matter with the thing?" he stormed. Be more careful."

"I will be from now on," answered the boy as he looked up to see the two policemen coming with Mr. Wright over to the car.

"That's the man," said the pharmacist. "Good thing Mrs. Leslie stopped in the store just now. She works down at Carlson's where this check was drawn, and she came by to pay her bill. When she pulled her pay envelop out of her bag to give me cash, I got suspicious right then. She told me Carlson's never pays by checks.

"EASY DOES IT"

WHEN heating iced rolls, place in a paper sack in the oven or on top of the range in a heavy skillet. Do not sprinkle with water, as this will melt and dissolve the icing.

When grinding cookie, cake or bread crumbs, tie a paper sack to your food grinder and thus prevent the crumbs from scattering over the floor.

To keep yolks which have been separated from the whites, place in a cup of water. This will prevent a hard crust from forming.

If you do not like scum on top of cocoa, try beating the mixture with an egg beater.

Muffin and pancake mixtures should never be beaten too thoroughly. If slight lumps are left in the batter, the finished product will be tender.

If you cook cereal and let it remain in the double boiler overnight, add water to the cereal after it's cooked. This will prevent a hard crust from forming on top of the cereal.

Steaming of the waffle iron means that the waffle is cooking, so don't peek until the steaming stops. This will prevent the waffle from losing its crispness.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

It's always wiser to learn from the fella who admits that the task is difficult, rather than the one who claims there's nothin' to it.

A good one on our friend, Mr. Popwell, the Coca-Cola man. Someone left a note for him in the cafe the other morning and spelled his name, N-U-T-E. Everybody knows he doesn't spell is name with an E. Seriously though, a friendlier or more likable fella would be hard to find. Next time we see N-U-T-E, we'll ask him how he actually does spell his name.

Why is it some people acknowledge the other fellas right to an opinion. Are you one of those people who, no matter what the other fella thinks, you think he's stupid and wrong. Where would we be today if it weren't for people who expressed their opinion openly and honestly.

You know, if everyone cultivated their good intentions, think of the goodwill that would be spread. Just like gossip.

Haven't you always heard the old saying, "Profit by the other fellas' mistake." Doesn't it seem more natural and a lot easier to profit from our own.

Our friend DuWayne Deaton was home recently and we got a chance to talk with him. He says the Army does agree with him except for one thing; they're going to ship him over. (Very inconsiderate, aren't they Wayne?). He says his orders say Europe and that'll probably be Germany. Wayne is a member of Uncle Sam's Military Police and claims to like it very much. Only thing he doesn't like, in fact, is that he's been married only five weeks and he's having to leave for 14 months. Not quite half and half if you ask me. We wish you well, Wayne, and hope we'll see you again soon.

Heard a fella say the other day that if they didn't get that entrance to the football field broadened a little he was going to see his congressman. Don't see that going to a congressman would do the football field any good but, I'll have to agree with the fella on the point that the gate could use a little widening. Only thing is, both of us waited until the last of the football season to say anything about it.

I always have believed in being an individualist but, one subject that you can't talk too much, at least not now, is being careful about woods fires. We know you see it everywhere you go but, like highway safety it is for the good of the citizens and the public. Before you throw that cigarette out the window this time think of the damage it can cause and use the ash tray. That's what you bought it for in the first place.

* * *

One of the waitresses at the cafe, who incidentally is quite a talker, said the other day that her husband never did talk back to her. She couldn't understand why because he was far from hen-pecked. Someone chimed in and said, "Maybe he doesn't get a chance to talk back." I believe he must have had a point there because she didn't say anything else about that particular subject.

Cotton And Corn Stalks Are Worth $10 An Acre

Auurn, Ala. — Decayed cotton and corn stalks will add the equivalent of $10 worth of commercial fertilizer to each acre of soil, according to API Extension Agronomist D. R. Harbor.

The farm leader urges producers to cut all stalks, along with grass and weeds, so decay will take place before planting time next spring. If cut now, the stalks will help reduce erosion caused by winter rains.

"Another important value of cut stalks is that they add organic matter to the soil, making it hold moisture better and work easier," explains Harbor. "This organic matter also makes added commercial fertilizer more available to crops.

"It seems to matter little whether cotton and corn stalks are cut and left on top of the ground or lightly worked into the soil," he concludes. "The important thing is to get them down on the ground now so they will begin rotting."

CONCERT ENJOYED BY EVERYONE

We were filled with joy overflowing with our Concert of Song, last Thursday night. Our artist, Polyna Stoska, has a striking personality. She is very gracious and versatile and her beautiful smile captivated the audience.

Her program was one which everyone could enjoy for her enunciation was clear and distinct. She made you feel and understand with her the stories she presented in a most brilliant manner.

She sang with much expression in surprising range and sweetness of tone.

We are to be congratulated for having had the opportunity to secure on our concert series such an accomplished and outstanding artist of so wide reputation and noted ability. — Mrs. H. S. Peterson, Music Director Thorsby Institute, Thorsby, Ala.

Christmas Chest Committee Holds First '53 Meeting

Christmas Chest Chairman, Rev. M. K. Vickers, called the first meeting of the year to order last night at the First Methodist Church.

Chilton County's Christmas Chest Drive is an annual affair and with a goal of $2,500.00 set last year $1,555.38 was collected to aid the needy of the county.

After all purchases had been totaled last year $929.00 had been used to supply baskets and clothes to the needy. Of course this does not take into consideration hundreds of dollars worth of clothes and food donated by the people of the county to this cause.

To start the drive this year there is a substantial balance in the Christmas Chest Fund, according to Louie Smith, treasurer, but much more will be needed to continue the good work that has been carried on over the past several years.

New officers for the coming Chilton County Christmas Chest Drive will be announced in the next issue of Chilton County News.

Is Chilton Negligent In Its Duty?

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Tucker:

I would like to put a short story in your paper, about a fine young man I happened to know, in this small town of Thorsby I'm visiting in this week before I return to camp.

The young man I'm speaking about is Wilton Littleton of Thorsby. I met this boy some three years ago, that was when I was leaving for camp. Wilton was a very sick boy at that time and as I see him today I like not to have known him. This boy needs help from the people of Chilton County and elsewhere. I think if the people of Thorsby would leave off their dances on Saturday night and get out and start helping the sick in their town they would be better off.

I understand that Wilton Littleton has been to the Ochsmer Clinic for treatment and they helped him very much, but it takes a good bit of money to go to a place like this. That is why I want the people to help in anyway they can. As you know, about two years ago his home doctor, Dr. H. G. Franklin, got the first worm from his head. Since then he has been to doctors in Birmingham, Ala., and elsewhere. None seem to help. With the help of Dr. H. G. Franklin and the doctor at the Ochsmer Clinic they have removed 76 worms all total.

Today when I talk to Wilton he seems very nervous, but I can't see how the boy is living today. So come on, people of Thorsby and Chilton County, let's make this boy happy once more.

Mr. Tucker, I leave Friday of this week for Oakland, Calif., where I will then be sent overseas. I will be wondering if you will put this in your newspaper for me. I will have a prayer in my heart you will. To save a life at home is worth going over to help save one over there.

Mr. Tucker, in closing, I would like to thank you in advance, because if I don't return to my country I will always say, I think Mr. Tucker has helped save this boy's life and I am willing to give mine.

Thanking you very much,

CPL. CHARLES CRAIG,
Oakland, Calif.

VERBENA WHIPS CLANTON FOR 39th STRAIGHT VICTORY

(By HAROLD SMYER)

Last Friday, the 13th, turned out to be "bad luck day" for Clanton and "good luck day" for Verbena and Verbena finished their fourth straight year undefeated by trimming Clanton by the score of 12 to 7 for victory No. 39. "Workhorse" Harold Patterson and Arnold Deloach led the Red Devils to victory. Patterson is one of the best halfbacks to face the Tigers this year. All of the Red Devils played good football as did all the Tigers. Scatback Roy Mims was the star for the losing Tigers. The game was a hard-fought battle all the way, as both teams were determined to win.

Verbena took over the first and third quarters, gaining 91 yards to Clanton's 55 in the first quarter and 67 yards to Clanton's 49 in the third. Clanton gained 115 yards to 56 in the second quarter and 152 yards to 32 in the fourth quarter.

First Quarter—

Littlejohn kicked off for the Tigers, Wingard receiving on his 20 and returning to his 40. Patterson gained five, then four, then a first down on the Tiger 44. Deloach got loose around left end for 19 yards and another first down on the 25. Wingard drove to the 20, then Deloach fumbled on the next try and Curtis Baker recovered for the Tigers on their own 17 yard line and halted a 60-yard Red Devil drive. Mims gained to the 20, Hardy drove for 3, then Minor got nearly 4, but short of a first down and te Tigers were forced to punt, Mims attempted to punt, but was thrown for a loss, but Verbena was penalized 15 yards for clipping from the 35, giving Clanton a first down on the midfield stripe. Caton ran for 5 yards, then Minor lost back to his own 49. Mims gained 5, then punted out of bounds on the Red Devil 18. Deloach gained 5, Patterson 3, then Patterson made it a first down on the 35. Deloach gained 5 more, and Patterson followed suit with a first down on the 45. In two attempts Deloach gained only one yard. Patterson took off for 8 more, but was short of a first down. Mickey Davis punted to the Tiger 8 yard line where Mims received and returned 9 yards to the 17. Hardy gained 3, then 4, then Clanton was penalized 5 yards for backfield in motion. Minor sprinted 7 yards and was short of a first down by inches. Mims got off a 45-yard punt to the Red Devil 29. Deloach returned the punt 7 yards and Verbena received another 15 yard penalty setting them back to their 21. Patterson drove to the 23 as the first quarter ended with Verbena making 4 first downs to Clanton's one. Score—Verbena 0, Clanton 0.

Second Quarter—

From the 23, Deloach gained 3, Patterson gained 3 and not enough for a first down. Davis punted to the Tiger 43; Mims returning 5 yards to the 48. Minor got loose for 7 yards, Caton made it first down on the Red Devil 41 yard line. Minor gained 2 more, then Hardy plowed through for six yards. Caton lost 4 on his next attempt and Mims gained 3 on fourth down to the Red Devil 34. Verbena took over, Deloach got 5, then 4, and Patterson made it first down on the 46 with his 3 yard plunge, but Verbena was penalized 5 yards for backfield in motion back to their 41. Patterson ran wide to the right and shot a pass to Deloach, who had gotten beyond the Tiger secondary, who gathered in the pigskin and ran untouched to pay dirt. The play was good for 59 yards and a big roar from the Red Devil fans. Verbena attempted to run for the extra point and failed. Score—Verbena 6, Clanton 0.

Nicky Sanders kicked off for the Red Devils. Caton caught the kick-off on his 20 and galloped 35 yards before being tackled on the Red Devil 45 yard line. Minor, attempting to pass, lost 9 yards. Mims tlipped a pass to Minor for 9 yards, but as Minor was tackled he fumbled. Patterson pounced on the ball on his 42 for the Red Devils. From the 42 Verbena went backwards. Patterson passed to Wingard and the play lost 10 yards. Patterson failed to gain on the next play, then threw an incomplete pass. Verbena was penalized 5 yards again for backfield in motion and Davis punted out of bounds on the Tiger 28 yard line. Mims attempted a pass which went incomplete, then the Tigers began to roll. Mims shot a pass to Caton which was good for 26 yards and a first down on the Red Devil 46. Minor picked up 6 to the 40. Mims sprinted for 8 more yards. From the 32 Minor tried two passes which were incomplete. Mims faded to pass, was nearly bottled up, but finally got away a pass to Hardy who galloped to the Red Devil 15 yard line. The Tiger threat was halted as the whistle was blown, ending the first half. Clanton had gotten 4 first downs to Verbena's one in the second quarter, making a tie of 5 first down each in the first half, but the score of Verbena 6, Clanton 0.

The Chilton County High School Band put on a very spectacular and original show at the half time period, holding the attention of the entire crowd with their marching, music, formations and humorous drama, "Dragnet." If you are not a member of the "Band Booster Club," join now! "Miss Homecoming," Miss Mildred Jones, of Chilton County High, was crowned during halftime by Captain Wayne Hardy and was presented flowers by Alternate Captain Alford Littleton. Miss Martha Bell and Miss Gloria Robinson were members of the Queen's Court.

Third Quarter—

Mims received Sander's kickoff on his own 10 yard line and ran 21 yards to the 31. Hardy rammed through the Red Devil line for 7 yards. Caton lost 4 yards on the next play, then Mims gained up to his 40 and was short of a first down. Mims got off a wobbly punt which went out of bounds on the Red Devil 45. Wingard ran for 7, then Patterson made enough for a first down on the Tiger 45, but on the next play Verbena was penalized 5 yards, back to the 50 yard line. Patterson got one, Deloach one, then Patterson was thrown for a 10 yard loss, making it fourth down and 23 yards needed for a first. Davis punted to Mims on the 20 and Mims was tackled after a 10 yard return. Mims went through a hole for 4 yards, but Clanton was penalized 5 yards for backfield in motion. Mims sprinted for 8 yards to the 37 yard line. Hardy gained 2, but not enough for a first down and Mims punted to the Red Devil 30 yard line. Patterson caught the kickoff and made a 5-yard return. Verbena was penalized 5 yards back to their 30. Patterson rammed for 6, then passed to Deloach for 9 and a first down on their 45. In two tries Wingard gained 7 yards. Deloach got away for 5 more and another first down on the Tiger 42. Patterson picked up 2, then 8 and a first down on the Tiger 30. Patterson next went through the center of the line, cut right toward the sideline and was finally tackled from behind on the 4 yard line. The Tiger line did not allow Patterson to gain on the next play. Patterson got 2 of the 4 yards needed for a touchdown, then one more, then on fourth down Patterson bucked to the goal line for the Red Devil's second score. The last two plays commenced the final period. Patterson tried to run for te extra point but failed to cross the goal line. Score—Verbena 12, Clanton 0. Verbena got 5 first downs the thid quarter to Clanton's 0.

Fourth Quarter—

Mims received Sander's kickoff on the 15 and made a return to his 31. Mims gained two; Duren 6; then Hardy made it a first down on the 42. Mims gained three more, Baker lost three on an attempted end-around reverse, then Minor faded to pass and elected to run and galloped 17 yards for another first down on the Red Devils' 41 yard line. Verbena was again penalized 15 yards, making it first down for the Tigers on the visitors 26 yard line. Minor threw an incomplete pass, then on the next play faded to pass and elected to run again. This time he was finally stopped on the 14 yard line after a 12 yard dash. On the option play Minor kept and went to the 10 yard line. Hardy crashed center for 3 more to the 7. Mims shot through the Red Devil line to the one yard line, making it another first down for the Tigers and goal to go. On the option play Minor fumbled but recovered the fumble himself, but back on the 4-yard line. Mims went off right tackle back up to the one-yard line. He crossed the goal line but the whistle had blown when he was at the one-yard line. On fourth down Hardy ran the left and failed to gain, giving Verbena the ball on their own one-yard line. Wingard ran the ball out to the 3, Patterson gained one more, then Deloach got loose to the 11 yard line for a first down. Time was running out and Verbena was trying not to lose possession of the ball. On the next play Patterson ran to the 20. Then Verbena was penalized five yards. Patterson gained 4, back up to the 19, then made it first down on his run to the 25. Patterson got 6 more to the 31; Verbena was penalized 5 yards; Patterson got 2 more back to the 28, then he ran to the 33 but was short of a first down and Davis punted 35 yards to the Tiger 32. Roy Mims caught the punt on the dead run and sidestepped, dashed, and sprinted thru the entire Red Devil team to the end zone for a 68 yard touchdown run which was the longest and most exciting run of the game. Time ran out on the play. Mims place-kicked the extra point and the final score was Verbena 12, Clanton 7. In this quarter Clanton got 5 first downs to Verbena's 2.

Defensive stars of the game were Hugh Prickett, Douglas Fortner and Ray Wingard for the Red Devils and Phil Simms, Wayne Hardy and Alford Littleton for the Tigers.

For Verbena Harold Patterson netted 130 yards; Arnold Deloach 130; and Ray Wingard 31. Verbena was penalized 75 yards, 45 yards while on offense, making a total net yardage of 246. Verbena completed three out of four passes, but one of the completions, a pass from Patterson to Wingard, lost 10 yards.

For Clanton Roy Mims netted 175 yards; Caton 61; Minor 50; Hardy 48; and Duren 6. Clanton was penalized 10 yards on offense, but got 30 yards on two Verbena penalties, making a total net yardage of 371.

SCHOOL CHILDREN SAVE MONEY

Mercer C. MacPherson, chairman of the American Bankers Association's committee on School Savings Banking, announced recently that over 3,450,000 pupils had accumulated savings in 500 Banks throughout the country. According to the latest figures, these pupils in 10,000 grade and high schools, have increased their savings by about $21,000,000 in the last year.

MacPherson terms this increase a "very satisfactory" one. He also notes that this is the sixth consecutive year in which school children have increased their savings by a large margin.

The trend among children to save is probably being encouraged by movies, talks and other influences, which the banks and savings institutions are providing schools in every section of the country. The growing trend among youngsters to save is certainly encouraging to Papa, and the thrift being encouraged among school children will certainly be of great value to them as a character trait in later life.

Moreover, if the trend continues, it might be possible for Papa to borrow ten bucks once in a while from a younger member of the family.

36,949,700 IN U. S. SCHOOLS

U. S. Office of Education statistics show that 36,949,700 youngsters will enroll in U. S. schools and colleges during the present academic year. This represents a rise of two million over the record total enrolled last year. By 1960, another ten million youngsters will be added to the annual total and possibly more.

Despite the efforts of various communities to keep pace with the increasing number of students, the nation's schools and colleges are failing to keep up with the rapidly-increasing demands upon their facilities. U. S. citizens spent about $500,000,000 more last year than the year before in an effort to provide adequate schools. Nevertheless, the nation is 345,000 classrooms short and the situation is so serious three out of five rooms will be over-crowded this fall.

Another growing shortage is found in the teaching profession, where the net shortage of teachers is increasing. For instance, 45,700 qualified graduates for the elementary teaching field came out of colleges in 1953. However, there is a need for 118,000 public elementary school teachers and this comparison shows the difficulties being faced by school superintendents all over the country.

The disturbing picture is the realization that, while U. S. per capita income increases, while the standard of living goes up, and while profits continue to mount, the inadequacies of the educational facilities provided our young people continue to fall behind needs. The situation should be reversed. In other words, the first duty of adult citizens should be to provide adequate schools for the country's youth and progress in this field should at least keep pace with economic advances in the business field. It seems obvious that outlays for new schools and facilities should be increased in most communities and, painful as the taxes now are, there is no way to dodge this responsibility.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The four-year-old, the six-year-old and I went to church together Sunday, quite an experience.

We got settled near an exit in the back (the six-year-old was disappointed—she wanted to sit on the front pew) just as the service began. The children gathered up all the visitor's registration slips, the pledge cards and the collection envelopes in the rack near us and were happy.

One of the hymns selected had the same tune as a Christmas Carol the four-year-old knew. He sang, quite lustily, the words he knew while the congregation sang the words in the hymnal. The six-year-old, greatly embarrassed, tried to silence him, but he sang on.

For the offertory, the organist played "The Lost Chord." As the loud passages of music thundered from the organ, the four-year-old leaned over and whispered to me:

"Sounds like Goliath playing."

I thought of the gentle, bald-headed organist being compared with Goliath, and for several minutes I was afraid we were going to have to slip out of that convenient exit!

Many mothers who take their small children to church provide them with pencils of crayons to help keep them quietly entertained.

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, takes modeling clay for her youngest children to play with during the church service. The clay, she has found, doesn't make scratchy noises as pencils and crayons sometimes do, doesn't roll away under the pews and yet keeps her children entertained perfectly.

Our next door neighbor, even though she doesn't have children of her own, knows that when small children come calling with their parents, they need some toys to keep them happy and out of mischief.

For her small guests she keeps a special box of "company toys" in which she has crayons and color books, a few small cars, a jack-in-the-box, funny books, a baby doll and a couple of simple jig-saw puzzles. Children visiting at her house have so much fun exploring her toy box and playing with its contents that they usually let the grown-ups have an uninterrupted visit.

The neighbor around the corner says her grandparents had a big chest of toys at their house which they brought out only when the clan gathered for special occasions like Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The grandparents saved their own children's toys (they were the favorites) and added to the collection through the years.

"We always liked the familiar old toys in that chest better than the new things Santa brought," this neighbor recalls.

Now that the holiday season, the time of family visits, has arrived, it would probably be a good time to start treasure chests of toys around lots of house.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

OUR YOUTH

As a parent how well do you know your child? Can you in any sense of thoughtfulness predict your child's development during his adolescence? With the apparent growing increase in child delinquency in major and minor crimes, one wonders about the parents in their roles of responsibility.

A child is a human being. In his early years, the parents' chief responsibility is to establish good behavior patterns from an emotional and physical aspect. A happy home is a child's haven, and affectionate and understanding parents are his guardians of safety. Quarreling parents do not inspire a transquillity in the child; and parents who are on a constant social wirl, singly or together, leave little time for the youngster's natural dependence.

Just because a child is surrounded with the comfort of material things, the parents' responsibility is not ended. A child must be made to feel that he is loved and wanted. He must be made to learn self-confidence and reliance, and in these he is likely to fail if faced with the constant bickering of conflicting parents.

A child needs a certain amount of freedom, but not to the extent that his independence is dominant. You, as a parent, have a right to know the whereabouts of your youngster. Indeed, not only is it a right but a responsibility. As an adult, you are a better judge of character; but how can you exert this experience if you do not know your child's associates and how his time away from you is spent.

The greatest influence of the home on the child is example. A child, a natural imitator, reflects his environment. Tensions, arguments, temper tantrums, and foul language are quickly copied. These characteristics are difficult to overcome once they have been firmly entrenched in the child's makeup.

How about you, Mr. Parent? Are you doing your part in your own home to reduce the daily totals of thefts, shootings, and automobile accidents that involve innocent citizens of your community?

STATE SUPERINTENDENT

SCHOOL FINANCE AND RESEARCH

One of the major responsibilities of this section is the study, calculation, apportionment, and distribution of school funds for each of the school systems in Alabama. Funds available for this calculation are the Minimum Program Fund, the Public School Fund, and Local Effort. This involves the study and evaluation of attendance data for determining the training and salaries of teachers; transportation data for determining the amount to be allotted for transportation; and economic factors for determining local effort.

Annual School Budgets of local boards of education are reviewed for accuracy and conformity with the law.

Another important function of this section is to calculate and distribute the Teacher Training Equalization Fund for the State Teachers Colleges.

Sick Leave Reports are processed and checked according to law and allocations of funds are made to local boards of education.

This section is responsible for compiling and editing all printed statistical and financial reports and related material. All statistical information pertaining to child accounting; administrative, supervisory, and teacher personnel accounting; and financial and transportation data are developed from reports submitted by local boards of education.

Research studies are developed and interpreted. Statistical and financial data are furnished to members of the Legislature. Assistance is given to all divisions of the Department in compiling information. Forms and reports are studied for revisions and new forms are developed.

Advisory and consultative service in the interpretation of laws pertaining to education and school finance is a responsibility of this section.

No More Hunting Until The Rains Come

Montgomery, Ala. — Earl M. McGowin, Director of the State Department of Conservation, issued a regulation here today closing all hunting seasons in 26 North Alabama counties where forest fires are raging out of control.

McGowin ordered that seasons on possums, coons, rabbits and squirrels be closed at 6:00 p.m. today in all counties north of and including Pickens, Tuscaloosa, Jefferson, Shelby, St. Clair, Calhoun and Cleburne counties.

In a statement issued here McGowin said, "I am taking this step reluctantly, but I feel that it must be done because fires are out of hand in several areas and the weather forecast gives no promise of immediate relief. I believe closing of the seasons in these counties at this time will be to the best interest of wildlife as well as our forests and fields."

Until the past week end State Forestry Division fire-fighters were able to keep the fire situation under control except in isolated areas. During the week end fires increased sharply and have now gone beyond the capacity of fire crews to cover. The latest weather forecast for Alabama gives no prospect of general rain for the next five days.

McGowin said there were 141 forest fires in North Alabama recently, 53 of them not covered by crews. "Our personnel in the field have been working day and night for weeks and need volunteer help to control the great number of fires now burning."

"We have moved all available personnel and equipment that we dare take away from less hazardous areas and are utilizing full forces of the Department in an effort to control these fires."

In most cases hunters and conservation groups including the Alabama Wildlife Federation have urged the Department to take whatever action considered necessary to the extent of closing the woods to hunting.

McGowin added, "I will reopen the seasons as soon as a general rain relieves the fire situation and will extend the hunting time on resident game at the end of the season to compensate for any time taken away on this end."

The Conservation Director also stated that if it is found necessary hunting will be closed in other counties. This will be done, however, only if the forest fire situation necessitates such action.

The counties in which the seasons were closed today include: Pickens, Tuscaloosa, Jefferson, St. Clair, Shelby, Calhoun, Cleburne, Cherokee, Etowah, Blount, Walker, Fayette, Lamar, Marion, Winston, Cullman, Marshall, DeKalb, Jackson, Madison, Limestone, Colbert, Morgan, Franklin, Lawrence and Lauderdale.

Bad Roads Kill Good Driving

"Bad and unsafe roads in Alabama are responsible for thousands of our safe drivers being 'accident-trapped' yearly," stated W. Bancroft Timmons, Secretary-Manager of the Alabama Motorists Association in a speech last night before the Exchange Club of Highland, Birmingham, Ala.

"Records are now coming in on various experimental road projects to show that there is one type of road that will reduce accidents around 75%, Timmons stated, "this road has certain features; first, it offers a four-lane movement of travel with a wide, uncrossable, separation strip moving two lanes in each direction. Second, it has the controlled access feature. Third, it is without sharp curves and steep grades."

"The lives and human suffering that these roads save is not an accountable economic figure because these things are priceless, however, from a purely economic standpoint, savings on insurance premiums, car damages, legal negotiations, etc., we are talking in terms of a forty million dollar savings per year for

"These new safety roads" eliminate the roads correctly.

"These new 'safety roads' alminate head-on collisions of the following types: (a) reckless passing on hills, (b) mis-judging on-coming traffic while car passing, (c) wide curve swinging, (d) side swipes due to inattention or excessive speed, (e) blow-out swerves, (f) steering apparatus failures, (g) human failures (due to heart, paralysis, or fatigue).

"Eliminating the above group is fine but these roads will do more because they eliminate intersection collisions and most rear end collisions. One feature of the 'safety road' is that it has cloverleafs or semi-circles at all access points which forces cars when they are in a collidable position to move in the same direction.

"It is not a dream," Timmons stated, "to say that these roads will reduce accidents from 59% to 75%, because the latest test figures published on the Shirley Highway in Virginia prove the point conclusively.

"The Alabama Motorists Association is starting out on a Statewide campaign to promote roads in Alabama with built-in safety features," Timmons intimated. "It isn't a case of whether or not we can afford them, the question is how long is it going to take us to get them. We are all tired of innocent people in Alabama being killed when they in no way contribute to the recklessness of the accident. Apparently, we have not found a way to end recklessness and drunken driving, but we should keep at the job, however in the meantime, let's protect our fine sensible citizens when they are on the highway by giving them the right type of road so that they can protect themselves."

Ala. Power To Build 5 Dams On Coosa River

Birmingham, Ala. — Thomas W. Martin, Chairman of the Board of Alabama Power Company, stated today that the Company had filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D. C., an application for a preliminary permit to build five power plants on the Coosa River in Alabama in addition to the Company's three plants now located on that river.

"We understand," said Mr. Martin, "that it is the policy of the Federal Government to encourage the development of waterways like the Coosa River by private capital. Alabama Power Company is willing to undertake the job of completing a program begun by it on the river many years ago. These new facilities will represent an investment in the order of one hundred million dollars which will be provided by the Company. Our plans call for a total installation of 482,000 horsepower of which 321,000 horse power will be installed as the plants are developed.

"The preliminary permit, if granted, will allow the Company to procure field data and make engineering studies and plans necessary to prepare the application for a federal license so that the Company can proceed with construction. Such plans are subject to approval by the Chief of Engineers, U.S. Army and to action by Congress restoring jurisdiction to Federal Power Commission to grant licenses.

"Counties within which the new facilities will lie, including reservoirs created by the dams, are Elmore, Shelby, Talladega, St. Clair, Calhoun, Etowah and Cherokee Counties in Alabama, and the County of Floyd in Georgia. One of the developments will be in the vicinity of Wetumpka; another at the headwaters of Lay Dam in the vicinity of Fort Williams; another near the Howell Mill Shoals; another at or near Lock 2; and the last upstream near the Georgia-Alabama State line.

"These locations are not definite as it is necessary to make extensive geological studies and borings before final locations are made. Alabama Power Company many years ago, during studies of comprehensive development of the Coosa River, acquired some of the land in the area now to be developed.

"The dams, when built, will provide sufficient depth to permit navigation from Rome, Georgia, to the Wetumpka-Montgomery area.

"The Coosa-Alabama Rivers Improvement Association, whose headquarters are at Gadsden, recently by resolution requested the Company to undertake further improvement of the Coosa River, which began when the Company started Lay Dam in 1910, followed by Mitchell Dam in 1921, and Jordan Dam in 1927.

"Our application for this permit is part of a continuing program in preparation for what we believe is a bright future for Alabama. While the capacity to be installed in the proposed Coosa River plants is substantial, it represents only about 25% of the capacity that will be needed to meet the anticipated load growth in the Company's service area during the next 10 to 15 years. This means further extensive additions to our steam generating capacity, requiring large tonnages of coal, to assure a continuing source of dependable power for the industrial development we are confident will take place.

"The type of operation we propose on the Coosa River will make navigation possible when the necessary locks are provided by the government, will provide for a measure of flood control and by creating lakes with known water levels will make the area more inviting to industries considering Alabama as a location. Our plan of development will flood a minimum of territory and provide substantially all the other benefits which are considered to be desirable in a river development program. The manner in which the dams will be operated will provide a regulated flow for the benefit of navigation downstream. The lakes to be formed by the dams will provide additional recreational facilities for lovers of outdoor sports, and home sites for those who prefer a lake front. Forest lands which will come into our ownership will be managed according to most modern forestry practice and with the idea of conservation in mind.

"The plants we propose to build will represent not only ad valorem taxable properties in the area, but state taxes on the power produced at these plants will provide additional revenue for the State's educational trust fund. Full federal taxes also will be paid on the revenues derived from the sale of power from these plants, and the power from them and other plants will be sold at rates approved by the Alabama Public Service Commission."

Christian Compassion for a Needy World.

Lesson for November 22: Matthew 9: 35-36; Mark 1: 32-34a; 1: 1-9. Golden Text: I John 3: 17-18.

Christians can but feel compassion for a needy world if they are true followers of their Lord and share in his spirit. For, throughout his ministry, Jesus showed compassion toward all the needy persons he met.

Many instances of his healings are recorded in the Gospels. Matthew tells us how Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in the synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of diseases. And when he saw a multitude, on one occasion, he was moved with compassion for them, because they were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. And on a notable evening, when the sun did set, in old Capernaum, the whole city was gathered at his door, and he healed those that were sick.

It has been said that the world will make a beaten path to the door of a man who builds a mousetrap better than his fellows. When a man renders a greater service than that to his fellows, the world will find him out. In the course of time, Jesus could not be hid, though he retired for a period of rest to a sequestered spot on the northeastern shore of Galilee. The multitude found him there, and at the close of the day of preaching and of healing, Jesus fed five thousand men, beside women and children, as he multiplied five loaves and two fishes endlessly. The few loaves and fishes, given into the Master's hands, fed a multitude. It all depends upon what you do with a thing whether it has value or not. The gifts we truly make to Jesus will take on an infinite value and do much toward relieving the pains of a sorrowing world.

Hiway Department Announces Low Bids On Road Projects

Montgomery, Ala. — The Alabama Highway Department has announced low bidders on a record $8,001,430 worth of state road projects

Although only 28 projects were included, it was the largest amount of road-building ever to be let in a single bid announcement. It exceeded by about $2,400,000 the largest previous letting, but was still $1,000,000 cheaper than highway engineers had estimated.

Thirteen projects will be paid for by state and federal matching funds. Included is a bridge over the Alabama River on the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway, improvements on the Bucksville-Bessemer road from Birmingham, and paving in St. Clair, Elmore and Etowah Counties.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Henry Anderson is quitting the law enforcement field after nearly two decades. He has made a lot of enemies and a lot of friends in all these years as policeman, Chief and deputy sheriff. In this field of work a man just can't do his duty and please everyone. Mr. Anderson retired of his own free will and accord and we hope he enjoys his retirement. He says he deeply appreciates the cooperation of the people of Clanton and Chilton County during the years he served them and we presume looks forward to a lot of fishing to make up for lost time.

Reckon anybody would really travel 300-miles for a gourd or was somebody pulling our leg? We always had an idea that a gourd was just something to kick around unless you wanted to get a drink of water from an old-fashioned well or wanted to make a bird house. They told us this morning that Mrs. J. E. Easterling drove 300 miles for a certain kind, shape, or breed, of gourd. Think she must have had a mighty special kind of use for it to go that far. Maybe it was for that very attractive window she has at the Dixie Cafe commemorating Thanksgiving and harvest-time.

They want your blood today at the blood bank. The bloodmobile is here and 150 pints of blood are needed to reach our quota. When the bloodmobile was at Maplesville last Chilton County reached her quota for the first time. Here is your chance to give that some other might live.

The six-year-old was making her first visit to the country. She saw the chickens, the gardens, the barn and ended at the pig pen where an enormous sow was reclining.

"Big, isn't she?" asked the farmer's wife.

"And I know why," replied the little girl. "When I saw her yesterday she had nine little pigs blowing her up."

Boy, the silver dollar isn't worth much these days. Ralph Morrison advertised last week that he would sell them for eighty-nine cents and had only about thirty people who thought it was worth going after. Those who have been reading this about the dollar only being worth 58c is believing it, it seems.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our heart-felt thanks to our many friends and neighbors for the beautiful flowers and kind expressions of sympathy extended us during our recent bereavement. — Family of the Late Joe T. Cox.

The Chilton County Chest which sponsors the Christmas Chest each year met last Monday evening at the First Methodist Church. Officers elected at this meeting were Rev. M. K. Vickers to act as Chairman for another year. This is the second year that Rev. Vickers has acted as Chairman. Louie Smith re-elected as treasurer and Miss Helen Parrish was named to act a secretary for the second year.

The Committee set their goal at $2,500.00 and the week of Dec. 7-11 as Christmas Chest Week to concentrate their efforts on an all-out drive.

All applications for help from the Chest this Christmas must reach the secretary not later than Dec. 15th, or aid cannot be given. It takes quite a bit of time to compile the list and investigate the applicants which explains the Dec. 15 deadline.

The next meeting was called for Monday evening, November 30, at 7 o'clock.

SEASON FOR MIGRATORY WATERFOWL OPENED NOVEMBER 17th

Montgomery, Ala. — The hunting season for migratory waterfowl opened November 17th as scheduled, states Director of Conservation Earl M. McGowin.

He issued a regulation today modifying the closing at 6:00 p.m., November 10th, of all hunting in 26 counties in North Alabama, to permit the opening of the waterfowl season on November 17.

Since the hunting of waterfowl is confined to lakes, ponds, streams and marsh areas, no increase in the forest fire hazard is anticipated, says Director McGowin. However, there is a continued need for extreme caution in traveling through and across the woodlands on the part of waterfowl hunters when they are smoking. Also, they are requested to refrain from building camp fires and warming fires.

The hunting season for migratory birds, which is set by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, will extend from November 17 to January 10. If the opening of the season should be postponed it would not be possible to extend it beyond January 10.

"In the case of resident game, I plan to extend the season by the number of days we have had to close it because of the fire danger," says Mr. McGowin.

Our Class At Work In 1953

In observance of American Education Week, Mrs. Curry Thomas' sixth grade invited the parents of her class to attend a skit entitled, "Our Class at Work in 1953." The skit was presented by the Better Speech Club of which Mrs. Thomas is the sponsor. Mrs. Thomas and her students assured the twenty-six parents and visitors that it was a fairly typical day in their school life.

The parents were delighted to follow their children through a typical day. From the welcome to the close of the skit we saw our children in action. To see the pupils lead the devotional by repeating scriptures far beyond the average parents' ability, to watch them work problems on the board, to hear recitals of poetry, to follow them in their learning about health, science, spelling, art and all the things they will use in actual living is most assuring. To sit with them through lunch period, watch their behavior in performing little acts of courtesy so essential to successful relations with others, just to be with them is an experience well worth the time required.

We are grateful to Mrs. Thomas for keeping foremost in her mind the development of our children's intellectual, social, moral and spiritual aspects of life, according to society's aim and individual's needs. She is considerate of her pupils and vigilant for new ways to improve their learning habits and is quick to recognize their successful efforts in the learning process. She is helping the pupil find himself and his place in the world and is stimulating an encentitive to do his best in life.

Every pupil in class took an active part in the program, but the subjects and their leaders were as follows:

Welcome—Virgina Brown.
Introduction to Classroom—Carolyn McCullar.
Devotional—Kathie Wade.

Plantersville School Bus Overturns With 45 Children

By Miss Ruth Hicks

A Dallas County School Bus carrying approximately 45 children to Plantersville from Burnsville and Selma areas completely overturned on its way to school last week, injuring seven students, none believed seriously.

The accident occured one mile east of the Birmingham Highway on a curve, a section of the Burnsville Road leading to the highway on which work crews recently had completed repairs.

The bus, with seating room for only 36 children, was driven by Cassidy Bender a 19 year old senior at Dallas County High, substituting for the regular driver, Earl Moore. Moore had been summoned to Dallas County Circuit Court.

The injured were carried to the Selma Baptist hospital by a Selma ambulance and by private cars. They were listed as follows: Ann Stone, 15, daughter of Gordon Stone, Burnsville; Betty Ann Bennett, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Lee Bennett, Selma; Jeanette Rollins, 13, daughter of J. L. Rollins, Johnson City; Mary Ellen Taylor, 15, daughter of Mrs. C. H. Keep Shelled Pecans Fresh For Two Years

The pecan season is here again, and Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservationist, offers homemakers this advice on storing the delicious nuts for future use.

"Shelled pecans can be kept in good condition for two years or longer by drying them to a moisture content of approximately two per cent," says the home leader. "Put the shelled nuts in a 200-degree oven for 50 minutes to dry them. Then store the pecans in a convenient place in sealed glass jars or tin cans.

"Shelled pecans may also be kept in excellent condition without drying by holding them in frozen or cold storage."

Is Your Child Protected From Diphtheria?

Two cases of diphtheria have occurred in Chilton County in recent weeks. Fortunately a specific remedy in the form of antitoxin is available for the treatment of the disease, but it must be administered soon after the onset to be effective. The early use of antitoxin will in all probability prevent the attack from being fatal. It does not prevent severe illness.

Diphtheria can be prevented, however. There is available at the County Health Department a preventive in the form of "shots." Your family physician will also immunize your child.

When a child is born it is endowed with a natural immunity against most diseases. Diphtheria is one of these. This immunity usually lasts about six months. To be absolutely safe, however, when a baby is three months old it should be given immunization "shots." These shots are usually given in three doses four weeks apart. Not only is the child immunized against diphtheria with only three shots, but also against whooping cough and tetanus. Life-time immunization is not achieved however and "booster shots" must be given every two years until the child starts to school. After the school shots, no more diphtheria shots will be needed unless the child is exposed to the disease.

Immunization clinics are held each week at the following places and time:

Clanton — all day Thursday and Saturday morning.
Thorsby — Friday afternoon 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m.
Maplesville — Wednesday morning 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

1954 FOOD PRICES

The Department of Agriculture says food prices this year are slightly lower than those of 1952. The report indicated food prices would remain stable into 1954, since consumer demand is expected to remain high.

The report showed the retail price of foods in the first eight months of this year averaged two per cent below the price for the corresponding period in 1952. Most of the decline is attributed to lower prices for meat products. Some reductions were also noted in dairy products, and fruits and vegetables were also down.

The Department sees no drastic changes in store for 1954 and estimates that the farmer will probably receive about the same share of the consumer's dollar—forty-five cents—as he did in 1953. This forty-five cents is two cents less than the farmer received in 1952 and is the smallest slice of the dollar paid for his products he has received since 1941.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF RATIONING

The Conservative Government in England recently announced that all food rationing would be ended by next summer in Great Britain. Controls on many foods have already been relaxed, or lifted, but meat, butter, fats, and cheese are still rationed.

It was fifteen years ago, in September of 1939, that England went to war against Germany because of Hitler's invasion of Poland. Since that time, the people of Great Britain have been living under a strict Government program of rationing and price control.

For many British youngsters, the prospect of unrationed meat, and other products, is one which they have never experienced before. This is true because teen-agers in Great Britain were four years old, at the most, when their country went to war against Germany and rationing began.

The British people have set a fine example in disciplining themselves and in supporting the rationing program in England, in an effort — which has apparently succeeded — to put England back on its financial feet. We are glad to see a free domestic market return in Great Britain, although we realize that our gratification is only a minor fraction of that which the average British housewife must be experiencing. For fifteen years, she has been waiting for this announcement.

Immortal Man
Mortal Man

We know that whosover is born of God sinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself and the wicked one toucheth him not. I John 5:18. In this verse we are given mortal man last, so we take the last first.

Yes, we are begotten of God and when our sins are forgiven and we are cleansed from all unrighteousness and given a new heart (not immortal, no part of mortal shall ever be made into immortality).

We keep that heart clean by feeding on the Word of God (which cleanseth within like water cleanseth without). God gives us the Holy Spirit here in this clean heart here in this mortal body so we keep this heart clean by the reading and studying of God's Word, build up righteousness all around that Holy Spirit that is leading, interceding, revealing and instructing, not necessary for man to teach us anything. I John 2:27. We build until we have the foundation to take hold of the second birth which is immortality and eternal life, then we go to sleep in Jesus, and are sealed by the Holy Spirit of God to the day of redemption. Eph. 4:30.

Job said: "If a man die shall he live again? All of the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change comes." Job 14:4.

If I wait the grave is mine house. I have made my bed in the darkness. Job 17:13.

Shall mortal man be more just than God, shall a man be more pure than his Maker? Job 4:17.

That thou keep this commandment without spot, unbreakable until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ; this commandment is the spiritual law of God, and is given in ten points. James 2:10.

Which in his time he shall shew who is the blessed and only protentable, the King of kings, and the Lord of lords.

Who only hath immortality dwelling in the light, which no man hath seen, nor can see, to whom be honor and power everlasting. Amen. I Timothy 6:14-15-16.

Yes, friends, you cannot approach unto it because it is sealed in Jesus Christ. John 6:27. You cannot see this because it is spirit, mortal eye cannot, (and as we have born the image of the earthly so shall we bear the image of the Heaveuly. I Cor. 15:49), see spiritual deserned things.

For thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just (which is the day of redemption, when your new birth, or second birth comes immortality or everlasting life comes). Luke 14:14 is the time.

Yes, friends that new life is not in you now, but is in Christ Jesus and will be there till this mortal is changed till his corruptable shall have put on incorruption and this mortal shall have put on immortality. Read I Cor. 15:49 down to 55. That immortality might be swallowed up of life. II Cor. 5:4.

After this change, this new birth, mortality never shall show up any more in man or elsewhere.

As long as you are walking around in this mortal body, how foolish it would be for anyone to say (when he greets you, have you been born again?) When he meets you and you see him that answers the question.

Job answered this in Job 4:17; 14:14; 17:13, and shewed you in Job 3:17-18-19, who all would be in the grave when Jesus comes and calls for you. John 5:28-29.

Thank you, friends.

OPERATION OF I. B. M.

The IBM section of the Division of Administration and Finance began its operation with the State Department of Education in 1947. This is the system whereby information from source documents is punched on an IBM permanent record card. Once a card is correctly prepared to represent a transaction, it can be used to produce all sorts of documents, records, or reports involving that transaction. The cards can be arranged time and time again in a variety of sequences for report and document preparation. The correctly prepared card can be reproduced and summarized. It can actuate significant calculations, every step being governed by the original accurate data. Use of punched cards is not an automatic answer to all accounting and statistical problems, but where used intelligently, it permits an efficiency, speed, and accuracy often impossible to achieve otherwise.

Major services rendered by the IBM section to the state and local boards of education:

Prepare all invoices submitted to the Veterans Administration for reimbursement of veterans' tuition, books, tools, and supplies.

Furnish the Vocational Rehabilitation Service monthly, quarterly, and yearly financial and statistical data for reporting to the field workers, as well as for federal reporting.

Furnish the Crippled Children's Service with financial and statistical data.

Assist the Business section with some of the more detailed accounting.

From The Barnesboro Star, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania: One aspect of prayer that gets scant attention from the teachers of religion may be summed up as "the serious risks to which prayer exposes us," states Frank Halliday Ferris in the November Reader's Digest. Dr. Ferris is Pastor Emeritus of the Fairmount Presbyterian Church, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. His article is condensed from his book, "Standing Up to Life."

In prayer we risk, first, seeing ourselves as we are. "In our dealings with God we must come clean," Dr. Ferris writes. "All our subterfuges, the flimsy excuses we contrive to hide our inner poverty from ourselves, must come down. We face the truth about ourselves when we ask God to take us as we are and make us as we ought to be. This is the prerequisite to moral progress—but it is hard on our pride."

The second risk is the danger of becoming more like Christ in a world which worships the deity success. Conceding that "there is nothing reprehensible about success" Dr. Ferris points out that there are times in the life of every man when he must choose between doing the advantageous thing or the right thing. Christ was faced by this choice at the outset of His career. His temptation was to use His unique personal power to win worldly success.

A prayer for moral betterment is "no kidglove undertaking," the author insists. "One has to take hold of it with the rough hand of a man who is in earnest, who is undeterred by the prospect of blood sweat and tears, for only so is moral victory won."

From The Herington Advertiser-Times, Herington, Kansas: A good many people probably still believe that typical retail merchants operate on the "all the traffic will bear" philosophy and are always trying to jack up prices.

That simply isn't true—not because merchants are any more charitable than the rest of us, but because success in merchandising demands a very different attitude.

An official of a national retailing association recently put the case this way: "As the purchasing agents for the consumer the objective of America's retailers is the satisfaction and comfort of the nation's retail customers through the greatest possible distribution of the country's productive capacity. The successful accomplishment of that objective depends on our ability to offer value for every dollar spent in our stores. When values are lowered, sales fall, production drops, purchasing power is retarded and often brought to a complete halt."

American Cancer Society To Meet December 2nd

Birmingham, Ala. — County commanders of the American Cancer Society from all sections of the state will attend a meeting here December 2nd, to make plans for a state-wide education program on cancer for the coming year.

County commanders have the responsibility of carrying on the education program of the American Cancer Society in their respective counties. The program is designed, through the use of newspaper, radio, TV, film and other media, to alert the public to the danger signals of cancer. Emphasis is placed on seven such signals, namely: Any sore that does not heal, a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere, unusual bleeding or discharge, any change in a wart or mole, persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, persistent hoarseness or cough, and any change in normal bowel habits.

The Birmingham meeting will be held at the Tutwiler Hotel and will be in the form of an all-day workshop devoted to study of ways of encouraging men and women to have regular physical examinations and to see their doctors immediately when any danger signal appears.

Plans for the meeting were announced by Mrs. Lillian G. Meade of Birmingham, executive director of the Alabama Division, American Cancer Society.

Chicks hatched during December and January will make more profit in the laying flock.

State Crop Report For November

General: Dry weather during most of October was favorable for harvesting crops, but dry soils interfered with planting and germination of winter grains and legumes. Some fields of winter grains appear to be dying for lack of moisture. The last general rain of any consequence was hurricane "Florence," near the end of September. Since then there has been only scattered showers. Frosts were later this year, and the first frosts were on October 30 and extended almost to the coastal areas.

Cotton: A crop of 975,000 bales is estimated for Alabama. This is 85,000 bales or 10 percent more than 1952. The U. S. Census reported 920,258 bales ginned prior to November 1, compared with 817,857 for the same period last year.

Corn: The indicated production of 48,334,000 bushels is 2 percent less than last month. This slight decline is the result of a one-half bushel reduction in yield per acre. The expected 1953 crop is 84 percent above last year, and is 4 percent higher than the 1942-51 average.

Hay: Production, as of November 1, is indicated at 656,000 tons. There was no change in the expected hay production from the previous month.

Other Crops: Sweetpotatoes are estimated at 1,120,000 bushels or 80,000 bushels less than the previous month. Yield is indicated at 70 bushels per acre, or 5 bushels lower than last month. Soybean production remained at 1,760,000 bushels or the same as October. The expected Sorghum for grain production of 304,000 bushels is 32,000 bushels more than the October estimate, and is the result of an increase in yield prospects.

UNITED STATES

Conditions for maturity and harvest of late-growing crops were favorable to ideal during October and the total expected volume of crop production increased slightly. It remains third-largest, nearly up to the 1952 volume but well below that for 1948. The conditions which favored harvest, however, were unfavorable for seeding and development of fall-sown grains, until good rains fell in te latter third of October. Corn production is now estimated at 3,480 million bushels, only 16 million less than on October 1. Relatively high yields per acre were produced in 1953 for most crops, although only cotton, peanuts and sugar beets are likely to set new high marks.

The pecan crop is forecast at 184,962,000 pounds, up 2 percent from prospects a month earlier. The 1952 production was 147,946,000 pounds and the 10-year average is 126,518,000 pounds. All States except Georgia and Texas are harvesting crops larger than last year. Damage from diseases and insects was higher than in recent years. Scab seriously injured most varieties except Stuart and infestation of shuckworm was heavy in all varieties. Quality of the crop is below a year ago with some light filled nuts period. Harvest in Alabama is progressing satisfactorily. An excellent crop is expected in Mobile and Baldwin Counties. Growth of fall pasture feed was hampered by dry weather during much of October and on November 1 condition averaged the lowest for the date in two decades as the Nation's poorest pasture season since 1939 approached an end. On November 1, pasture condition was 52 percent of normal—about one-third below the 10-year average for the date and 4 points below last year's near record low.

MAPLESVILLE NEWS

(By MRS. KATHRYN GOFF)

Still A Chance For Al McAfee—

Let's talk about Al McAfee and an American dream that went wrong. This isn't easy to talk about, and as a matter of fact, the only thing which makes it possible at all is that the dream may be righted in the next few months.

Al (Leighton' McAfee the first baseman who went to the Pioneers (Baseball) last winter when John Andre was sold to Shreveport. He wasn't a Ted Williams at bat, but he might have made a Lou Gehrig in the field. At any rate, he was a respectable hitter and a fine fielder and he could have helped the Pioneers a lot.

Al reported for spring training all right. About 10 days later, however, he went on the shelf with what seemed to be a run-of-the-mill back ailment. Only it wasn't. This was established when Al went to a specialist. It turned out that the first baseman was suffering from birositis, a bug which may have hung on from his World War II service in the Orient. Anyway, Al's imagination or his muscles didn't have anything to do with his illness. He has an infection, and that's definite.

Since Al left the lineup of the Pioneers you may have been wondering how he's been getting along. Well, the answer is that he really hasn't been doing very well.

Most of the time he's had to stay in bed. No one has ever wanted to play more than Al has, but it just hasn't been possible. It hasn't been possible even though he has pulled himself up off that bed from time to time and tried to work out. The strength wasn't there, though, and the result is that Al probably won't make it back into the lineup this year.

But don't get the idea that Al is a give-up sort of guy. He's taking treatments every day, and he wants to play next year. In fact, he's determined to play next year. Al came from an Alabama family, in fact, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Brady McAfee of Maplesville, which Al's always helped out as much as possible, and he's always been one for self-improvement, financially, physically and otherwise.

That's why this is one American dream went wrong. After all, we have here a guy who wanted to travel to the top and who was willing to work his passage. The books and the movies and the ballards tell us that Al should have made it, that breaks should have come his way more often. But so far they haven't.

When Al had his health, he wasn't a .300 hitter, quite. But he got his share of extra base hits, and he proved that he had a good eye for the ball which, combined with his natural courage and his willingness to learn, could have developed him into a top-notcher.

That can still happen. After all, Al is only 26 years old. He may not have his health right now, but he still has a corner on as much courage as anyone else around.

That's why we're still counting on that American dream to come true. If it means anything at all for a whole town to be pulling for one man, we expect to see the day when Al will trot out to his first base position, field as effortlessly as he used to, and maybe work himself up to the higher classification by parlaying his talents with his glove and bat.

Let's all hope, anyway, and maybe pray a little, too.

Al was born and reared in Maplesville and his friends in this and adjoining communities will be very interested in this article about him from a Texas newspaper. Some have been wondering just what was holding him down in baseball he had such a promising future, but this above article tells more than I could hope to tell so that is the reason it has been passed on to you.

Mr. S. D. McCary of Clanton visited Mr. and Mrs. Theran Watson and family Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. E. N. Shanks spent a few days in Vredenburgh last week with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Burgess, while Fred was on a business trip to Atlanta, Ga. She returned home on Tuesday and Mary came with her, en route to join Fred in Birmingham for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Agee Harrison of Montgomery spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bates.

Mrs. Aubrey (Cobern) House and Miss Nell Coleman of Birmingham spent last Sunday with Mrs. Mattie Foshee. They all drove down to Selma and had dinner. Nell and Audrey had not been to Selma in some several years.

The Armistice Day Parade and program at the school was attended by a nice crowd. Participating in this observance of the Armistice Day other than the Ladies Auxiliary and the Veterans of Foreign Wars were the School Band led by the band teacher, Mr. DeRoberts, of Birmingham, Beta Club, Citizenship Club, F.F.A., F.H.A., 4-H Clubs in elementary, Junior and Senior classes, M.Y.F. of the Methodist Church and all students of the school. The assembly at school was made up of talks from: Mayor V. B. McCain, Superintendent of Education, Mr. Boockholdt, Principal J. E. Daniels, Auxiliary President, Miss Francis Reynolds, Judge of Probate, Dave Tingle, prayer by the Auxiliary Chaplain, Mrs. W. L. Hampton. The program ended at 11 o'clock with "taps" by the band.

After the program, the Ladies Auxiliary treated the guests to lunch in the school lunchroom.

Others taking part were the Home Demonstration Club and the Civitans, also the city police force.

Maplesville can be proud of her organizations. It has come a long way in the past 20 years. Mr. Daniels, our school principal, has seen several of his dreams for the school realized: Lunchrooms, home economics building, vocational agricultural building, water in the school building, library, and not to mention the other little things. We have also had a commercial teacher for the past two years, which is certainly an opportunity for the high school students of today. Our school is now heated with steam. I can remember those old stoves we had years ago that got hot just about time to go home. With all these advantages the pupils are not very appreciative. Miss school when they see fit to, tear up the school property whenever they feel like doing so. They never stop to think just how many years of hard work and how many dollars their parents have had to pay out for them to have all these additions to the school and we could get more teachers if the students would have a regular attendance and if the parents would have their children to attend, only letting sickness prevent their doing so. Let's give a bow to Mr. Daniels who deserves a lot of credit who has given the better years of his life to Maplesville High School.

In the University of Chicago Magazine for November attention is called to the great conservative, Edmund Burke, in these words, "It was an Irishman who has been called the greatest of English orators and political thinkers. Hazlitt and Matthew Arnold agreed that this man was the greatest of English prose - writers. Samuel Johnson called him 'the first man everywhere' and his reputation—since his death in 1907—has risen higher than it ever was during his life. . . .A century and a half of accidental secrecy has prevented adequate biographical study. . . .In 1949 the tenth Earl Fitzwilliams turned the family papers over to the Central Library at Sheffield, England.' " Now after one hundred and fifty years we may be able to learn more about the man who advocated the American cause in the Revolution: the cause of those exiled from France during the French Revolution; the cause of India and of course of Ireland. "He was called 'our foremost friend in Britain' by an American and by both Hindu and French, too.'"

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this Constitution, Mobile County shall continue to have and possess all of the rights, powers and authority granted to it by Amendment XVIII of this Constitution and shall have and possess the power and authority to become indebted for the construction or erection of public buildings, bridges and roads within the limit prescribed by Section 224 of this Constitution; provided, however, that all debts incurred or bonds issued by Mobile County under the provisions of Amendments XVIII and XXIX, and this Amendment, shall be in addition to the limit fixed by said Section 224, and shall not be taken into account or considered in determining or arriving at the debt limit of Mobile County under said Section 224, and provided further that the six and one-half percent (6½%) limitation in Amendment XVIII aforesaid shall be construed to refer not to the total amount of bonds issued under authority of the Amendment, but to the total amount of bonds so issued which may be outstanding at any one time. And provided further, that Mobile County may become indebted, issue bonds and levy the tax as authorized by and within the limits of Amendment XVIII aforesaid to pay all or part of the cost of the construction or improvement of concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads, streets and bridges in Mobile County, including those within or partly within any municipality, and also for the purpose of constructing, improving and equipping school buildings in an amount not to exceed $1,000,000 and in an amount not to exceed $4,000,000 to construct and equip a building or buildings to be used for a courthouse and jail, including the acquisition of sites therefor; however, in submitting the question of issuing school bonds and courthouse and jail bonds hereunder, the county governing body shall submit the issuance of bonds for such purposes as a single proposition. "Bonds issued hereunder, together with bonds now or hereafter outstanding under authority of Amendment XVIII, together with redemption premiums thereon, shall be payable from any funds heretofore and hereafter derived from the proceeds of the tax at such rate or rates not exceeding one-half of one percentum of the assessed value of the property situated in the county which may from time to time be levied or which has been levied, under said Amendment XVIII. The County governing body may agree in the proceedings authorizing the issue of school bonds and courthouse and jail bonds hereunder that it will, if and to the extent necessary to prevent default in the payment of principal or interest on such bonds, use for the payment of such principal or interest, or both, as a prior lien thereon so much of the proceeds of the tax of 2½ mills authorized by Section 215 of the Constitution as may be necessary. Further, after 30 days from the first publication in said County of the resolution authorizing and fixing the details of any bonds authorized to be issued hereunder, such bonds and the sources of payment provided therefor in such resolution shall be incontestible in any court in this State."

MRS. AGNES BAGGETT,

High Quality Calves Mean Higher Profits

Auburn, Ala. — Lower beef prices have put stronger emphasis on high quality market animals.

And one of the best ways to have healthy, money-making calves, says API Extension Livestockman W. H. Gregory, is to provide breeding herds with plenty of feed or pasture during winter.

Roughage consisting largely of winter grazing crops or cheap, home-rown hay or silage is one of the most economical and satisfactory winter rations. If only hay or silage is fed, add a small amount of cottonseed meal or other concentrate. This ration keeps cows vigorous, results in better calves and boosts young animals off to good start.

"Each year in Alabama," continues the beef expert, "many animals are wintered without any feed other than that obtained on the pasture or range. Consequently they lose considerable weight during the average cold season, and many die from starvation if weather is severe.

"It is not necessary or even desirable that brood cows be kept fat through the winter, but they should never be allowed to reach a poor, unthrifty condition."

Divide the cow herd during the winter, suggests Gregory. Feed dry cows in one group and cows suckling calves in another. The latter group will require more concentrates than those wintering dry.

It is also advisable to separate young growing animals from mature ones as the older animals will not permit young ones to get their share of feed.

Store Sweet Potatoes At Even Temperature

Auburn, Ala. — Temperature plays an important role in maintaining the quality of stored sweet potatoes.

After potatoes have been placed in storage and cured, says API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby, keep the temperature at from 50 to 55 degrees fahrenheit. Extreme hot or cold conditions will harm the vegetable — and bring lower market prices.

"If the temperature drops below 45 degrees," he explains, "there is danger of cold injury. If it goes above 65 degrees, excessive shrinkage and sprouting may result. Apply heat if weather turns too cold. In warm weather open doors and vents at night to let in cool air, and close them during the day to keep out warm air."

For September calves put the bull with the cow herd on December 15; put him with the herd on January 1 for October calves.

A fecal examination by a veterinarian is the surest way to detect intestinal parasites; infested calves should be drenched with phenothiazine.

Haste Made Waste

Heard what happened the first day the new trash receptacles were put out in our business section?

"Cap" Parker, head of the Sanitation Department, finally persuaded the Council we needed them. He was so pleased with the shiny, green containers that he spread them along Main Street the day they arrived.

"Cap" forgot one thing — none of them was marked "WASTE." So he and his boys were up half the night sorting out letters some folks "mailed" in the trash receptacles by mistake.

From where I sit, it's always important to put the right label on things. That's why I like the name, "Self-Regulation" the Brewing Industry has given the program it sponsors for beer retailers. They keep their places clean and neat — and "throw into it" a lot of good community spirit.

HAVE you tried dressing up perfectly ordinary foods for a new taste treat? Here are some suggestions which you'll find easy to use and quick to fix:

Have some fish leftover? Marinate in french dressing, then season with lemon juice and mix with other salad ingredients. Crumbled hard-cooked eggs do a great deal for this type of salad.

Apple sauce is an old favorite which can be improved simply by dusting with cinnamon. Use for French toast, waffles or pancakes.

Next time you fry leftover potatoes in the skillet, add some diced bacon while cooking and then sprinkle the potatoes with chopped parsley before serving.

Can of peach halves on the shelf? Serve them as dessert with a scoop of ice cream rolled in shredded coconut and top with thawed frozen raspberries.

Like a good sandwich, just a bit different? Toast white bread, top with broiled bacon, lettuce and sliced tomato. Serve with cheese sauce.

You'll like omelets with herbs in them. Sweet marjoram, tarragon or basil will give a simple omelet a real gourmet touch.

Azalea Trail Celebrates Silver Anniversary

Mobile, Ala. — The silver anniversary of the Mobile Azalea Trail, one of America's great floral shows, will be celebrated in February and March.

The big attraction of the Azalea Trail Festival, scheduled February 1st through March 31, will be the flowers and there has also been arranged one of the most extensive programs of entertainment ever held in connection with the festival.

During the season, millions of azalea bushes are in bloom along the 35-mile Azalea Trail route and the landscape blazes with color ranging from white through every shade of pink to deepest red and orchid. There are giant bushes, well over a hundred years old, that are thirty feet in diameter and are covered with blossoms. As many as 500,000 visitors have toured the Azalea Trail during a single season, visitors from every state in the nation and many foreign countries.

Entertainment features include the annual Mardi Gras celebration which has been held since 1831 in this historic city called the "Mother of Mystics." Here were founded the first Mystic Societies in America, organizations which plan the carnival parades, gala balls and other colorful events staged at this time.

The first Mardi Gras parade is scheduled about the middle of February and the celebration will continue through March 2, Mardi Gras (Fat Tuesday).

Visitors generally concede the Azalea Trail Festival or Mardi Gras is a wonderful experience and combined they are a must for a person who wants a vacation packed with gay pageantry and amazingly colorful scenery.

Evelyn Margaret Ay, Miss America for 1914, will reign as queen of the Silver Anniversary Festival Celebration.

The beautiful, 20-year-old blonde from Ephtata, Pennsylvania, will be crowned queen of the floral festival on Sunday, March 7, at Ladd Memorial Stadium.

A new feature for the Azalea Trail program this year will be a huge two-day square dance jamboree presented by the Mobile Squares, a group of avid square dancers expecting participation by a thousand or more out-of-state participants.

Other features of the Azalea Trail festival include: Outdoor art exhibits, old homes tours, sports events, music and dramatic presentations, tours of magnificent gardens in the area including Bellingrath Gardens, "Charm Spot of the Deep South." Bellingrath Gardens, with 50,000 azaleas bushes, representing 150 varieties, is world famous and at the peak of its beauty during the Azalea Trail Festival.

In Mobile, the people are extremely proud of their flowers; and those who visit the interesting, old city during the Silver Anniversary celebration will understand why Mobilians thump their chests about the Azalea Trail, "America's Floral Extravaganza."

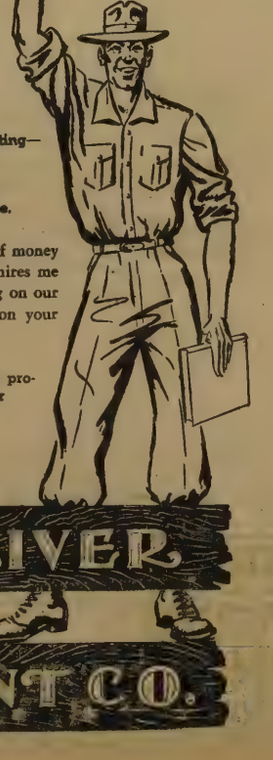
ANOTHER MESSAGE FROM YOUR FRIENDLY FORESTER

Have YOU Looked At YOUR Woodlands Lately?



You may have a timber crop on it now, ready for cutting—and cash.

Or, there may be some old abandoned fields that would be perfect for planting a new crop of pine.

That's why my company has spent a lot of money here in Alabama for a tree nursery and hires me and other foresters to handle the planting on our lands. We are available to advise you on your tree planting problems.

Neighbors, carefully managed tree crops provide good income—for you today, and for your children tomorrow.

Speckled Trout Rodeo

Trout Fishermen throughout Alabama and neighboring states as well as the residents of Baldwin County down on Alabama's Gulf Coast are anxiously waiting the opening of the 5th Annual Baldwin County Speckled Trout Rodeo which begins at 5:00 a.m. Thursday, November 19th.

The competition for the $4,000 worth of prizes is expected to be keen although the Baldwin County residents who "claim" to know where the big trout hide will have no advantage over the visiting fishermen and fisherwomen as the contest is divided into two classifications: County-Resident Contest and Non-County Resident Contest.

The Grand Rodeo Prize in this year's event is a lot in Gulf Shores measuring 50 x 150 feet and fronting on the Intracoastal Canal. 40 Shakespeare "Marhoff" Rods and Reels, 20 Cottages for one week—at Alabama's famous South Baldwin-Gulf of Mexico Resort, and Two Evinrude "Lightwin" Outboard Motors will be awarded to the contestants catching the largest (by length) Speckled Trout. The Rods and Reels and free cottage rentals are awarded daily during the contest and the Outboard Motors are awarded for the largest fish caught during the entire Rodeo.

Rodeo Headquarters is located at the Club House of the Gulf Shores Lions Club, sponsors of the yearly fishing event, at Gulf Shores, Alabama, and full particulars will be mailed upon written request.

Check All Farm Machinery Before Storing For Winter

Before storing, check and service all farm machines and replace worn or broken parts. In addition, says J. T. Gaillard, API Extension farm mechanization specialist, store all machinery in a dry shed and protect it from animals.

Drain water out of radiators and cylinder blocks on tractors and other power-unit implements. Put a heavy grease or rust preventative on plows and other tools with land-polished surfaces. And for longer life, clean and paint machinery.

Pretty good advertising. The sign in the coal dealer's window says: "Are You Coaled?"

MOVE THAT CAR

By Harold Gluck

THE big man was as angry as a bull and you could see the veins bulging up at his neck. He knew a police prowl car would be around in two minutes because he had just phoned headquarters. He walked right up to the small thin man wearing a pair of horned eyeglasses.

"What's the matter with you? Can't you read English?"

"Read English?" repeated the small man. "I am a professor of English literature at the state university."

"Just a little wise guy trying to be smart," snapped back the big man. "I'm sick and tired of your type. The sign says NO PARKING. Your car is blocking my driveway. I can't get my car out. What's the matter with people. No consideration for others. Go and move that car."

"You forgot to say Please," corrected the small man. "I like people to be polite when they request another to do a favor. And especially when the person is a stranger."

"Go on and push that car with your two hands. Perhaps that will teach you a lesson," ordered the big man. "And if you weren't such a small guy, I'd break you in two."

The police prowl car drew up to the side of the parked car and the Sergeant came up to the big man.

"Received your phone call at headquarters. I got it on my short wave. I'll put a summons on this car."

"And make that little shrimp move the car right now. I'd like to have him do it with his own two hands."

"There is a city ordinance which prohibits the parking of a car in front of a private or public driveway. So move the car away from here," said the Sergeant. "And not with your two hands. Just get behind the wheel, start the motor, and go on your way. And take this ticket I am going to make out for you. Ten dollar fine. You can pay it in the Magistrate's Court tomorrow morning."

"I am not going to get into that car. Nor will I accept a summons. This is an outrage," said the small man.

The big man could take no more. Everyone was parking right in front of his driveway. He advanced belligerently towards the small man.

"And why won't you move that car?"

"Because it isn't mine," was the simple but rather determined reply.

There was a deadly silence. The Sergeant had to think of something while his face was turning red.

"What were you doing outside of this man's house? Loitering is a misdemeanor."

"I am his new landlord. I came here to tell him I am the person to notify if he wants a lease for the coming year."

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

A World of Opportunity for All.
Lesson for November 29: Deuteronomy 24: 14-15, 19; Amos 5: 10-15, 24; II Thessalonians 3: 7-10.
Golden Text: Amos 5: 24.

It is not the will of God that any of his people shall go without needful things. So we read in Deuteronomy that strict rules were given, assuring the laborer fair treatment, and safeguarding him in his wages, whether he was a native or a foreigner. A forgotten sheaf of wheat was allowed to remain in the field for any needy person who should come along. This and the leaving of a few handfuls of wheat for the gleaners became a fixed custom in Israel.

Amos spoke fearlessly against the oppression of the poor by men of wealth. It was a time of social unrest, and the prophet urged a wholesome change that would give the poor a chance.

Paul writing the Thessalonians, cites himself as an example of one who worked with his own hands to support himself. He had been taught the trade of tent-making and, whenever he deemed it advisable, he labored at tent-making and did not receive any support from churches he served. He recommended industry and thrift to the Thessalonians, some of whom, because of their belief in the speedy second coming of Christ, professed indifference toward mundane things. The apostle laid down the dictum that the man who would not work should not eat by the toils of others.

Opportunity should be given to all and all should work, unless circumstances limit their ability to do so. Paul condemns idleness and shiftlessness. In the lesson we find a sound economy that would well be in force today

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Never saw the likes of the colds going around. (And the heads). Druggist gave me something last week to keep you up and about and feel better, and you know, I'm sure glad I took that stuff 'cause I felt like the very dickens.

Like to congratulate our good friend, Marshall. Williams, on his appointment to the local police force. For those few who do not know Marshall, he's the very friendly fellow who has been waiting on you at the Drive-In Theatre. He has a good personality and we think he'll make us a good peace officer.

Why is it women are so sarcastic about being the weaker sex? Yet, they still gripe about men not being the gentlemen they used to be. Well, for some reason men still like the "weaker sex" — weak so to speak. It seems to be more of an asset than a liability if you like men, of course.

Now's a very good time to have a birthday or an anniversary or something of that nature. Mr. Johnston down at Upchurch Drug Co. is holding a contest and the young folks with the most votes wins a prize. Now the more you buy the more votes you get, so it stands to reason if you're very smart you'll either have a birthday this month or remind your husband that it's your anniversary, he probably won't know the difference. (What have I done?)

* * *

Hate to admit it, but I was outsmarted by a cat the other night. A feling, not a hep cat. Started in the concession booth at the Drive-In one night last week and an old alley cat who seemed set on getting in was more experienced on getting in than I was on keeping him out. I guessed what he was trying to do and tried to keep him from going in by cunning and daring, but he had been doing it for quite some time. Just before I opened the door he took off right at it. Bet that would have been a frustrated, bumpy-headed old cat if he'd been dealing with a smart fella, and I hadn't opened the door in time. I think the cat knew who I was.

Weather's been changed one week and already folks are complaining.

This is a case of "practice what you preach," but did you ever stop to think that going to church regularly when you were a child somehow doesn't excuse you from going regularly when you're grown.

We find that the best way to buy a new pair of shoes is to let it rain. Gutter got stopped up down at the office that first night last week and next morning. . . . a good two inches. We enjoyed splashing around in the slush, but what we didn't like was, the idea of the high voltage of a machine giving us a haircut. About the shoes, our's had holes in 'em.

And speaking of rain, it doesn't seem to do an old fliver much good either. The old V-8 (v-for viber) got wet the other night, under the hood, and I had to get a fellow in a sturdy new car to push me oft. Really am sorry about that fella's grill and bumper. Don't know who got the better deal, mine won't run and his falls apart.

Like the undertaker who always told the practical joker who pulled one on him: "Watch out, boy, I always get the last laugh.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS 5-POINT PROGRAM

The top committees of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States have gone on record for a 5-point legislative program for the ensuing year, local V.F.W. Commander Dr. J. E. Edgar said today after receiving notice of the action from state Commander 'Telfair J. Mashburn, Jr., of Bay Minette.

The 5-point program calls for an offensive and defensive Air Force, a stronger Civil Defense program, opposing the entry of Red China in the U. N., and increase in veterans compensation. These objectives were given major emphasis after the V.F.W. officials carefully reviewed all resolutions adopted at the recent 54th National Encampment in Milwaukee.

The top committees of the 54 year old veterans organization recommended a stronger Civil Defense, urging closer liaison with the Federal Civil Defense Administration and the state agencies, and veteran, civic and other organizations, re-emphasizing a previous V.F.W. offer to the F.C.D.A. of certain services of its 10,000 Posts in accomplishing local programs.

Wreck North Of Town Injures 5

A truck that turned turtle on U. S. 31 North of Clanton Saturday night injured five boys.

According to a statement by State Highway Patrolman George C. Webb, who investigated the accident, Jerry Lane Davis applied his brakes when he drove his vehicle too close behind another that had no tail light, turning the truck over on the highway. Davis was only slightly injured.

Norman Porter and Roger Davis, ages 15 and 14 years respectively, were brought to Central Alabama Hospital, but were later transferred to St. Vincent Hospital at Birmingham. They were more seriously injured than the other boys who were passengers in the truck.

Carlos Wayne Rutherford, age 10, and Bobby Edward Rutherford, age 8, received only cuts and bruises it was reported. Bobby was given first aid and released Saturday night and Carlos was released from the hospital here Sunday.

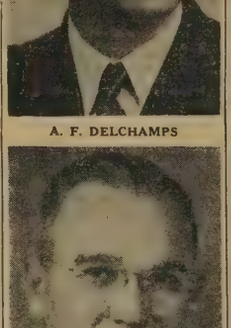
NAMED CO-CHAIRMEN OF HUNTINGDON

BISHOP CLARE PURCELL

A. F. DELCHAMPS



DR. HUBERT SEARCY

The Reverend Clare Purcell, Bishop of the Birmingham Area and Mr. A. F. Delchamps, businessman of Mobile and Chairman of the College Board of Trustees, have been named General Co-Cairmen of the Huntingdon College 100th Anniversary Fund Campaign according to Dr. Hubert Searcy, President of the College.

The Campaign is being organized on a threefold basis. There will be a North Alabama Conference, Alabama Conference and City of Montgomery campaign. The Cabinets of the North Alabama and Alabama Conferences have met with Bishop Purcell and Mr. A. F. Delchamps. The Chairmen and Co-Chairmen of all nineteen (19) Districts in the two Conferences are now being named. During the next two weeks there will also be appointed a Chairman and Co-Chairman for each of the two Conferences and the City of Montgomery. Meetings of Pastors by Districts throughout the two Conferences are now in process and will be completed by the end of the year.

The most intensive phases of the campaign is scheduled January 12, 1954, through March 7, 1954. On January 12, in Montgomery, Alabama, there will be held a called session of the Alabama Conference. This is an all-day meeting held at the City Auditorium from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. On January 14, 1954, in Birmingham, Alabama, there will be an all-day called session of that Conference in the First Methodist Church. The principal speakers at these two called sessions of the Conferences are Reverend William T. Watkins, Bishop of the Louisville Area, and Dr. John O. Gross, of the Executive Board of Education in Nashville, Tennessee.

The enthusiastic response of the people in the Area and in Montgomery in the planning of the campaign is most encouraging.

"With the loyal support of the Church, Alumni and friends of Huntingdon everywhere, Huntingdon College can move forward into the second century with faith and confidence," said Dr. Searcy.

Safer...Happier... thanks to Christmas Seals!

Like a radar network guarding the coast line, there is a barrier formed by Christmas Seals which stands as a bulwark for us all against the tragedy of tuberculosis.

The money which you donate for Christmas Seals helps to protect your family . . . is used to fight TB the year round with continuing medical research, education, rehabilitation, and case finding.

To keep the barrier high, to protect and help us all, send your contribution today, please, to your tuberculosis association.

Buy Christmas Seals

The message of the Christmas Seal, how it has been fighting TB for 47 years, is being spread throughout Alabama and the nation this week. Millions of little Seals started finding their way into Alabama homes Monday.

The design of the 1953 Christmas Seal is a simple one. It shows a little boy, dressed in green sweater and stocking cap, holding a book of Christmas carols in his red-mittened hands as he sings. The sight of a happy youngster singing carols in symbolic of Christmas, of the spirit of giving that belongs to the season.

The tuberculosis associations throughout the United States chose this symbol for 1953 as an expression of their major objective — to prevent and control the spread of tuberculosis — so that young people will grow up in a healthier and happier world.

Children have been singing Christmas carols 1500 years. But even as old as the custom of Christmas caroling is, tuberculosis is older, probably as old as mankind.

Much progress has been made to conquer the disease, but right now Alabama has more than 11,000 known cases of TB, and it is estimated by health authorities this number would be doubled if all cases were found. Not one single county is free of this menace which is a threat to every home because TB is contagious.

Christmas Seals fight tuberculosis at home. Ninety-four cents of every dollar contributed in the annual drive stays in Alabama, while six cents supports the search for new drugs and new methods of attacking this killer on the national front.

Every Alabama county is active in the Christmas Seal Sale. They're lined up 100 per cent to strike a hard blow at TB.

JERK SAVES WOMAN

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. — Patrolman H. W. Fording made a futile attempt to break up a traffic jam at a railroad crossing here recently. When he saw nothing could be done before a southbound train roared through, he ordered Mrs. Hildegarde F. Powell, 52, to jump from her car which was jammed on the tracks. Mrs. Powell was too terrified to move, so the patrolman opened the car door, grabbed Mrs. Powell and started running, just as the train hit the car and demolished it.

BLOOD BANK SETS NEW RECORD HERE

More blood was given the blood bank last Friday here than ever before since the drive started. Previously Maplesville held the record for contributing blood with 160 pints.

Two-hundred fifty-three people offered their blood last Friday when the bloodmobile was here. One hundred sixty-five were accepted and 88 were rejected. The 165 pints was an all-time high for the county.

Rev. R. E. Wilkins extended his thanks to all who co-operated with him in making this drive for blood a success. Especially did he commend the taxi operators for volunteering free rides for anyone who would go to the bloodmobile and donate their blood. Rev. Wilkins stated that it was the cooperation of everyone that made it a success.

The quota for this drive was 130 pints so the quota was exceeded by 35 pints of blood.

NO PROFIT

Chicago, Ill. — A bandit entered a popcorn shop and asked for a bag of popcorn. As Miss Phyllis Carlson, a saleswoman, held out the sack and rang up the sale, the robber grabbed $147 from the cash register and fled. Bystanders and a traffic cop chased the man, who shed his coat, ran into a subway station and jumped into a train just as it pulled out. In the discarded jacket, however, the police found $177.37.

Auklee Cleckler Gets Life; Fulford Given 10-Year Sentence

A life sentence for murder was handed out to Auklee Cleckler last week in the April 11th murder of Mrs. Clydie Robinson.

Mrs. Robinson, the mother of eight children, was killed at her home after a quarrel with Cleckler. She was shot twice with a shotgun. She was 49 years old and a widow.

Cleckler was charged with first degree murder after the killing and was brought to trial last week which ended in the life sentence.

Another murder case tried last week was that of David Fulford. Fulford was charged with second degree murder in the death of his wife. He received a sentence of ten years in prison for his crime. The murder was committed on June 4th, 1953.

For Longer Life, Don't Trust Other Drivers; Kendrick

"Accidents don't always happen to other people-you may be next! We must think safety, talk safety and drive safely," says Sheriff J. L. Kendrick, "or we will find ourselves another statistic in the ever-increasing number of highway accidents."

Sheriff J. L. Kendrick, in a special release to this paper today, said that according to figures released by the National Police Traffic Safety Institute, one in every 30,000 people living in the United States will die of a traffic accident.

The Institute also disclosed that 37,000 Americans met death on our streets and highways in 1952, and the estimated figure for 1953 is 40,000. One of the main contributing factors in accidents, according to the Institute, is an almost naive trust in the action of other drivers.

It is impossible to ascertain the number of deaths which occur because one good driver assumes another driver will obey the laws of the state and use good common sense. Most side-swiping collisions, end-ramming smashups and intersection crashes are caused by this unfounded trust in another driver's actions.

As a participating member in the National Police Traffic Safety Institution's program for greater safety on our highways, Sheriff J. L. Kendrick asks all drivers to follow these three suggestions: (1) Enter an intersection assuming the other driver is not cautious; (2) Remember that when meeting a car on an overpass or bridge, another car could presumably loom up alongside; and (3) Always leave enough room between the front bumper of your car and the rear bumper of the car ahead to allow for a safe stop in the event that the car ahead is suddenly braked.

And when you meet a ntiwit on the road, the Sheriff continued, suppress that impulse to "show him" and, instead give way as far as possible or as is necessary to allow for the safety of all concerned.

Alabama Enters Goodyear's Soil Conservation Contest

Akron, Ohio — All of Alabama's 12 soil conservation districts have enrolled in Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's nation-wide soil conservation awards contest, it was announced today by A. G. Morrill, director of the rubber firm's awards program.

Competing for recognition as the state's best, the grand award winning district will name two representatives to accompany the 98 winners from the other 47 states on a one-week, all-expenses-paid vacation trip to Wigwam guest ranch, on Goodyear Farms near Phoenix, Arizona in December of 1954.

Alabama's winning district will select one of the members of its supervising body and one top cooperating farmer or rancher for the grand awards.

Contest period began July 1, 1953, and will close April 30, 1954. Announcement of winners will be made next July or August and bronze plaques will be awarded to winning districts and top cooperators at the seven regional meetings of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts.

A judging committee, selected from Alabama's leaders in soil conservation matters, will name the state's winners using a uniform score sheet to determine excellence of performance in the regular duties of a soil conservation district.

Fall Calves Mean More Profits For Cattlemen

Auburn, Ala. — Start breeding your beef cows in December and January.

Research at the Black Belt Substation has proved that fall calves weigh more when weaned, sell on higher markets, and bring more profit, says API Extension Livestockman W. H. Gregory. He adds that it usually pays to creep feed calves that will be sold at weaning time or that go directly to the fattening lot.

Cows that calve in the fall, explains Gregory, need ample supplemental protein since most wintering feeds are protein deficient. Each day feed cows with calves two to three pounds of cottonseed meal—cake or pellets—with dry pasture or non-legume roughage.

THIRD SET OF TWINS

Boston, Mass. — Kidded by his doctor since his second set of twins were born on April Fool's Day, 1951, Ralph Trufant thought Dr. Frank Golden was just fooling when he reported the birth of twin daughters to his wife recently. It wasn't any joke, though. Two five-pound daughters joined Christine and Delores, 5, and Robert and Richard, 2, as members of the Trufant family.

A SIGN OF CHRISTMAS

Once again Christmas has sneaked up on us and now is just around the corner. To the children of this community, the coming of Christmas is perhaps the best news of the year, and among adults it is rare to find one who does not recall, with some emotion and memories, happy Christmases of earlier years.

One of the more important events of the Christmas season is the annual Christmas Seal sales. It is particularly appropriate that the sale of these seals, the proceeds from which go into the fight against tuberculosis, comes at Christmas time, because tuberculosis kills more young people than any other disease.

This year's Christmas Seal portrays the spirit of children at Christmas time, and reminds us that buying Christmas Seals helps in the fight against tuberculosis.

The Chilton County Tuberculosis Association is again at work this year in behalf of this community's children. Every Christmas most of us are given the opportunity to support this Association by buying Christmas Seals. The sale of these seals is the only source of funds for this work, and it is an honor to be asked to contribute to the Christmas Seal campaign. Citizens in this community have always responded generously to this drive and the Chilton County News urges them to do so again this holiday season.

ON KILLING HUNTERS

As the hunting season gets underway this year, we remind readers once again that almost 3,000 persons will either lose their lives or suffer injuries in hunting accidents this yer.

Between 500 and 1,000 hunters will be killed before the year is over and this figure alone should make every hunter stop and think about safety. At least one insurance company has offered a new policy which would protect hunters for anywhere from three to thirty-one days at a very small cost.

While such a policy will not help the fatally injured hunter, it might provide his distraught family with the security which will enable them to carry on in the absence of the bread-winner. This is a worthwhile thought to inexperienced hunters who may take to the field only once or twice during the fall, and those who participate in large hunts with inexperienced and youthful hunters.

The sure way to prevent accidents, however, is to practice care in the field and to always hunt with careful companions and those who keep their guns unloaded until the actual hunting begins. The safety should always be on until game is found, and hunters should make every possible effort to keep their heads in all suddenly-changing situations, so the possibility of shooting a companion will be reduced to a minimum.

FARMERS IN RED ELIGIBLE FOR BACK TAXES

In these times of declining farm income and high farm costs, one thing distressed farmers have overlooked is the right they have to collect refunds on taxes already paid. These refunds can be on taxes already paid this year, or even those paid in 1952.

This is allowed by law, Congress having decided to let farmers and other business men average out profits over good and bad years. The number of years to be used was set by Congress at seven,

Therefore, if you made money last year and paid taxes but find yourself losing money this year, you will be eligible to get refunds on taxes paid in 1952 and those already paid this year. Moreover, you will be allowed to "carry forward" this year's loss on tax returns you may make in the next five years.

This is an often unknown feature of the tax laws, and we call it to the attention of farmers who are now in financial distress. The best thing to do in such a case, is for the farmer concerned to visit the nearest Federal tax office. The method of figuring out your loss, and how much you can get back, is a very complicated one and most farmers, as well as other business men, will need expert advice, so the trip to the Federal tax office is usually necessary.

DECEMBER ANGELS

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The six-year-old is not very happy about the Thanksgiving holidays; she hates having no school for four days!

Right now her favorite game is playing school with herself as the teacher and the four-year-old and one-year-old as pupils. The one-year-old is not a model student; se refuses to sit still, tears up the papers and eats the crayons, causing her teacher much anguish.

The other afternoon at the request of the teacher, I supplied the four-year-old with several sheets of paper Ten minutes later, he was back asking for more paper.

"I just gave you some," I reminded him.

"Yes," he said, "but I have wroten and drawed all over that. I need some empty paper now."

We decided to use Pilgrim place cards to make our Thanksgiving table more festive this year.

After I had traced the figures of the Pilgrim men and women, I gave them to the four-year-old and the six-year-old to cut out and color. And how gay they turned out to be! No drab greys or browns do their Pilgrims wear; they're dressed in bright red, green, orange, blue, purple, yellow, colors that no proper Pilgrim would ever think of wearing. Our table will be festive indeed.

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, has been coaching her children in a simple Thanksgiving play they will present when the clan gathers at their grandparents' home for Thanksgiving Day.

Each year the grandchildren in the family present some entertainment for their elders while everybody is waiting for dinner to be served. The children enjoy this holiday tradition as much as the grown-ups do and plan some really clever stunts.

Also a part of this big family's Thanksgiving tradition is the taking of group pictures after dinner. They have the pictures from past years pasted in a special album, and looking through the album is a highlight of the day.

Our neighbor around the corner says she wishes the law-makers would make it illegal for anybody to start talking about Christmas until after Thanksgiving.

"How can I get into the proper mood for Thanksgiving," she moans, "when I'm reminded on every hand how few shopping days there are left before Christmas?"

Our good cook neighbor declares that holiday meals can be bright and festive without a lot of trouble.

For instance, her first course at Thanksgiving dinner will be grapefruit halves with red and white peppermint stick candy crushed and scattered over them. She chills the pepperminted-fruit before serving.

For dessert, she often makes gay sundeas by sprinkling toasted shredded coconut over vanilla ice cream and topping each serving with cranberry sauce.

If she is serving pumpkin pie, she rings it with currant jelly and puts a generous gob of lightly sweetened whipped cream in the center.

March Of Dimes Pre-Campaign Meeting Scheduled

A district pre-campaign meeting for the 1954 March of Dimes will be held Monday, November 23rd, at Alabama College, Montevallo, according to Clarence C. Horton, State Campaign Chairman. The purpose of the meeting is to present to leaders and workers of the March of Dimes the four-fold program for 1954. Discussions will concern all phases of the coming campaign, as the fight against polio swings from the defense to the attack. Amos N. Kirby, District Campaign Adviser, will preside.

Expected at the meeting, along with their workers, will be the following County Campaign Directors: Jessie W. Price, Bibb County; Rev. Don R. Esty, Chilton County; John L. Sullivan, Jefferson County; and Dr. M. L. Orr, Sr., Shelby County.

Adding a little paraffin to hot starch will keep it from sticking to the iron.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your Physician in a health service of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

LOBAR PNEUMONIA

While the use of the sulphonamide and antibiotic drugs is largely responsible for the control of many conditions, possibly the most emphatic contribution by these drugs has been in the control of lobar pneumonia. While this is true, one must guard against a sense of false security against the disease; for the causative bacteria may develop a resistance to the prescribed drug. Should this happen, lobar pneumonia may well again return to be a leading cause of illness and death.

The bacteria causing lobar pneumonia normally inhabit the noses or throats of persons who have recovered from an illness or who are momentarily resistant to the invading organism. Unprotected sneezing, coughing, laughing, or even loud talking may cause these bacteria to be spread on infected droplets to the respiratory tract of susceptible persons whose resistance is lowered. Thus the lung is quickly invaded and pneumonia develops.

If bacterial pneumonia is discovered early, the response to treatment is dramatic. The sulphonamide and antibiotic drugs now fight the bacterial invasion directly, regardless of the patient's resistance. They not only lower the mortality of lobar pneumonia but also have a tendency to eliminate the causative organism from the respiratory tract of persons who are convalescing from the disease and still considered carriers.

It is quite commonly believed among non-medical people that once a person recovers from an attack of pneumonia, he is immune to a second or third attack. This is not true. Once the bodily resistance is lowered and the ever present or invading bacteria take hold, pneumonia may strike again. And because it is possible, through the strange mechanics of nature, for the causative bacteria to build up a resistance to the group of potent drugs now available to fight them, pneumonia can develop again, resulting in long weeks of illness and even death.

THANKSGIVING 1953

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

UNTIL we recently bought a house, (I should say made a down payment—I'm buying it plank by plank) we have had a succession of unusual, unfriendly, and unhappy landlords.

One didn't like animals. I forgot to tell her we had a cocker. When she saw the dog she went into a tailspin, ran for her shotgun and would have shot the pup if I hadn't tackled her. We moved.

The worse one, however, was the man who hated children. He contended that they are all little devils sent into the world to torment adults. He rented the place to us knowing about the children, but we had to keep them so silent and restrained they were fast becoming neurotic. We moved.

The other day I ran across a little poem that brought this last landlord to mind. I hope that someday, wherever he may be at the moment, he can read this. It applies, I believe to thousands of landlords and landladies throughout the country who don't like children and even contend they themselves were never children.

Rented Flat Blues

Hushabye, baby, Miss Brown will be wild,
We swore when we took it, we hadn't a child.
She keeps her ear cocked in her upstairs abode,
And one yelp from you and we're out on the road.
Sleep, my little one,
Sleep, little son,
Daddy is watching the stairs with a gun.

Hushabye, baby, so peacefully curled,
You'll know soon enough what is wrong with the world.
But just for the moment you've got to be reared,
Where children may neither be seen nor be heard.
Sleep, my little one,
One little yelpie,
And Mammy will knock you unconscious, so help me!

We are thankful that the guns in Korea have been silenced, and for the hope that we may gain an enduring peace;

Thankful for the fine, firm friendships we have made in The American Legion, lasting friendships that have kindled in our minds and hearts a better understanding of our fellowmen;

Thankful for the part we have been able to play in standing watch over the security of our Nation;

Thankful that through our efforts new cheer and hope have been brought into the lives of millions of our children;

Thankful that our programs have been helpful in building qualities of sound American citizenship in our youth;

Thankful for the service we have been privileged to render our communities;

Thankful for all the hopes and aspirations that lead us onward to better things;

Thankful for our freedom to work and worship as we please;

Thankful for the role we have been able to play in encouraging the people of America to turn back to Almighty God for guidance in our everyday lives;

Thankful for the great privilege of being citizens of the United States of America;

Thankful for the inspiration today to say with the Psalmist,

"Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God forever."

a peek at THE STARS

LYN CONNELLY

DON'T be surprised if the Phil Harris-Alice Faye radio opus never hits television . . Phil is more than willing but for some strange reason, Alice will have no part of the new medium . . Perhaps it shows her age . . Actually, since Phil and Frankie Remley are the whole show anyway, we're at a loss as to why Phil should hesitate in replacing Alice with a talented gal like Jayne or Audrey Meadows or their equal . . . Part of Dennis Day's competition for "I Love Lucy" is a $5,000 a week contest set to run for the next 37 weeks . . . It will take all of that, plus Dennis' talent and probably even more to buck the rating-conscious Lucy . . . Actress Cathy Lewis, out of "My Friend Irma" this year, may be back in TV with her own starring show before the season expires . . . Don't know where that leaves Marie Wilson who "explained" Cathy's departure from the show was merely due to ill health.

PLATTER CHATTER

CAPITOL: "The Piccolino," which is revived periodically, has been waxed by Axel Stordahl in a fine instrumental . . . Back has "Off Shore" . . . Monica Lewis does a good job with "Don't Say Goodbye When You Go" . . . The beautiful "Autumn Leaves" is on the flip side and a fine arrangement it is . . . Connie Russell, who was first heard on TV, does well with "Sighs," backed by "Phonograph Record" . . . The real pert Helen O'Connell who has the most underrated voice in the business, has a cute novelty in "Six Buzzard Feathers and a Mockin' Bird's Tail" . . . Back has "Joseph Joseph!"

COLUMBIA: Don't look now, but Christmas is just around the corner and Jimmy Boyd, who peeked in on Mommy last year has a new disc in "Santa Got Stuck in the Chimney" . . . Reverse has "I Said a Prayer for Santa Claus" . . . La Ann Simms does her usual fine job on "I Just Can't Wait 'Til Christmas" and "I Dreamt that I was Santa Claus."

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—How many of Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews are on his payroll?

A—According to the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Federal Expenditures, 2,430,413 Americans were employed by the federal government as of Aug. 31, 1953. The Committee said this compared with 2,390,091 as of Aug. 31, 1952. The figures do not include many thousands of foreigners employed abroad.

Q—Which President held the first regular press conferences?

A—President Wilson, according to James E. Pollard's "The Presidents and the Press." Wilson arranged to see reporters in the White House twice a week because he believed in what he called "pitiless publicity" for public business. President Eisenhower's Oct. 21 press conference was his 17th since assuming office.

Q—Can the President and Vice President be inhabitants of the same state?

A—Yes, though there is a practical restriction on the possibility. Amendment XII of the Constitution states: "The electors shall meet . . . and vote (for) President and Vice President, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves." No party has ever nominated candidates for both offices who lived in the same state. In the event of a close contest, one of the party's candidates could fail of election because he would be denied the electoral vote of his own state.

Q—Just how often do Members of Congress miss roll-call votes or fail to announce their positions on issues?

A—About one time in ten, according to a Congressional Quarterly survey of the 160 roll-call votes of the first session. The "average" Member either voted or announced his position 91.3 per cent of the time. The "average" Member actually voted—either "yea" or "nay"—on 77.5 per cent of all roll calls.

EVIDENCE EXPLODES

Tulsa, Okla. — Hearing what he thought to be shots in the sheriff's office, Deputy R. B. Jones rushed inside, gun drawn. He found, instead, that six gallon-jugs of bathtub beer, seized in a raid a few days before, and held for courtroom evidence, had blown their tops.

ALARM TRAPS THREE

Houston, Texas — A home-made burglar alarm, fashioned and installed by J. M. Thomas, 55, caretaker of the Trinity Baptist Church, trapped three former convicts who were hiding in the church attic.

After their arrest, the three men admitted four robberies and two attempted robberies.

MAD FOX BITES WOMAN

Hattiesburg, Miss. — A mad fox "took a running start and jumped 3 feet high" to savagely bite Mrs. Lua Carnes on the arm. She was immediately treated for rabies and the fox was tracked down and killed.

LAST FIGHT

By Norman Disher

IT WAS my last fight, I knew it and Bronc, my manager, knew it. No one had come out and said so but they must have known from the way I had fought tonight. It's over now so it doesn't matter too much.

A week ago Tony Mendel had come to me and explained it all.

"You been Champ a long time now, right Timmy?"

"Yeah Tony, yeah," I had answered wondering what was coming.

"Too long maybe kid. We need a new boy and besides you know all the good money is on you next Friday night. You know that?"

"I know it, so what?" He was after something, I hated to think of what it might be.

"So we get good odds and a new champ. See?"

"You want me to throw it; that it Tony?" I tried to sound casual.

"Yeah kid, that's it." Tony spoke softly.

"You won't let me forget that first fight for the welter crown, will you Tony? Now you're going to do it all over again and this time I'm the guy who does the fade out. I could have won that first one without you paying the old Champ off but the money was on him then and you had to collect, right? Now the money's on me; supposing I say no go, uh?"

"You remember what happened to DeFranco?" Tony scowled.

"That's what I figured. Yeah, I remember him. He's still a cripple. So I guess that's that. You don't give me much choice."

"That's being a smart boy; you know how to do it, just make it look real. See you later."

I began to think about it a little later and I felt sick. I remembered DeFranco, alright. Somebody had taken him out in the country and they did a real good job of working him over. He'd never been able to walk right again after that.

Tony was the one who had set up the fight that had made me the Welterweight Champ; he'd fixed it so I would win because the one thing Tony wanted was money and all the money had been on the old Champ. He'd cleaned up by betting heavily on me.

Now it was my turn.

After two minutes in the ring with Harry Damrell, the challenger, I knew he didn't know about the fix.

I fought half-heartedly for the first six rounds and then in the middle of the seventh Harry caught me in the solar plexis and I went down. I wasn't faking, it had hurt plenty and I stayed on the canvas for a nine count. Then something screamed inside of me and I got up and started fighting mean. In the eleventh round I smashed Harry over the heart and he staggered, and then a right cross, a left hook, and a right uppercut finished him. He stayed down for the count of ten and still didn't get up.

Well, it's all over now and there's nothing else to do. Bronc looked scared, plenty scared. When we came back here to my dressing room he broke loose: "What ya think ya doin' kid; what ya done? We're finished boy—they'll get us for this. I'm pullin' out. I gotta family to think about! I gotta leave. I'm goin' . . ."

"Ok, Bronc, ok," I interrupted. "It's ok. I understand, go ahead. I know how you feel. You got to make a living. Goodbye."

"Bye kid." Bronc rushed out into the hallway and didn't look back.

I'm here alone now. Just sitting here thinking about what I did in the ring tonight. I was fighting more than a man; I was fighting myself. I was fighting for all the guys that might come to this racket after me. The ones who wanted to make a living out of it, they're the ones I had to win for. Now it's too late for me but I don't care. It was something I had to do.

I can hear footsteps coming down the hall now. I don't care, it's done and I'm through. I can hear the heavy footsteps; probably two or three of them. I'll get one of them!

Success Is What You Make It

How does a man make himself a success? Is it through diligently hard work, grit and determination—or do you believe in the old adage about the silver spoon. A man does not become a success through opportunities alone; he must take advantage of these opportunities.

A man can outwardly be a success while inwardly he is nothing. Without the determination to be somebody and the ambition to apply to this desire a man cannot be happy within himself. If he does not have self confidence and earn the gratification of creating something he cannot be and is not a success in life.

Success doesn't necessarily mean wealth. An humble pauper can be successful if he has friend and a faith, or creed, then, in his own way, he is a success in life.

A man can inherit riches and material things, but the happiness and joy of being needed and loved is something that cannot be inherited from father or grandfather. Inheritance is a great help, but you must help yourself, it isn't everything. If a man doesn't use his God-given talents inheritance is of no value to him in finding the things he really wants in life. No happiness and contentment was ever found by inheriting it.

Edgar A. Guest' poem "Inheritance", could very easily apply to and sum up the real meaning of happiness and success:

"I can leave them books and things,
Wealth and lands, perhaps
And a box of jeweled rings
Poured into their laps;
But the wisdom they shall need
Happy to remain
Amid the courage of a creed
They themselves must gain.

I can leave them what I keep
Under lock and key.
All the treasure I may reap
They may get from me;
But the wisdom to be true,
Gentle, patient, kind,
And the will the right to do,
They themselves must find.

Knowledge I cannot endow,
Howso'er I try,
Save my children learn it now;
Mine with me must die.
I can leave them volumes rare
Crowded on the shelves,
But the knowledge that is there,
They must find themselves.

They key to success is through persistance and the ambition and will to want to be something or somebody better than you are now.

TREASURY LOOKS FOR GOOD COLLECTIONS

As new business records fall and new profits are announced, the U. S. Treasury—looking ahead to 1954—becomes more and more optimistic. Because 1953 is sure to be a record profit year for business and individuals, the Treasury will probably take in record collections in 1954. This is true because most people pay their taxes for 1953 in 1954.

Since high income tax rates will apply to 1953 income (these rates are expected to be reduced for 1954 income), the tax take of the U. S. Government next March will probably give the Eisenhower Administration something to be optimistic about. It is estimated that Uncle Sam will receive almost sixty per cent of total gross corporate earnings in 1953.

In 1952, the Government took about fifty-five per cent of corporate earnings are so much higher this year, and since excess profit levies on many companies will be higher, the Treasury will probably realize an even better percentage of the total corporate gross earnings this year.

Faulkner Will Make Race For Governor

Bay Minette, Ala. — Campaigning on a proven record of "decency and progress," 37-year-old Jimmy Faulkner revealed today that he will be a candidate for governor next Spring.

Faulkner, who is a weekly newspaper publisher and State Senator from Baldwin County, promises one of the most vigorous, aggressive campaigns ever waged in Alabama.

"I'm out to win this race," said Faulkner, a World War II bomber pilot. "I'm going to take the message of sound, forward-looking, decent government to every corner of Alabama.

"Furthermore, if elected, I now and here pledge the people of Alabama scrupulous honesty, decency and high morality. I dedicate myself to progressive measures without radicalism," he said.

JIMMY FAULKNER

Despite his youth, Faulkner is experienced in the field of government, both executive and legislative. His record is a success story from beginning to end.

Has Successful Political Record—

At 24 he was elected mayor of Bay Minette by an 84 per cent majority. He was overwhelmingly elected the two times he ran for the State Democratic Committee and the one time as delegate to the National Democratic Convention.

At 35, Faulkner was elected state senator in the first primary over three strong opponents by a 55 per cent majority.

He already has behind him a progressive record. Health, education, rural roads, agriculture, new industries and old age benefit measures have been the prime objectives of his youthful vigor.

"My prime interest is the development of Alabama as one of the nation's top-ranking states: In industry, agriculture, education, roads, health and the general welfare of all our people. With proper leadership the people of Alabama will attain this goal," Faulkner said.

"I don't believe in worn out political promises about what can be done: I believe in getting results," he said.

A look at Faulkner's record shows:

He spearheaded drives in the State Legislature to increase teacher's salaries and retirement benefits when he was chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

He is the originator of the "Marshall Plan for Education," a proposal for the Federal Government to help provide equal school facilities, if the Supreme Court so rules.

He was chairman of the interim committee trying to solve education problems. He spearheaded much constructive farm legislation and is strongly committed to the development of farm and school bus roads. He is also chairman of the New Industries Committee of his home town.

Born in North Alabama—

Jimmy Faulkner is a young man who came up the ladder the hard way. Born in Lamar County in North Alabama, Jimmy's father died when the boy was 12. He immediately went to work helping his mother. Jimmy says he's been interested in helping schools ever since that time he served as school janitor.

Faulkner's mother taught school for about 39 years. There was never a year that she made more than $1,000, the young candidate said.

Faulkner worked his way through college by serving on the library staff and waiting on tables.

Today Jimmy Faulkner is a successful business man. His paper has made a profit through the years, and he has been able to accumulate a modest capital for expansion.

According to political observers, Faulkner is the one man in the state who has the support of all groups — education, labor, agriculture and the small business man.

He has the spark of youth and the eagerness of a young man who admittedly wants to accomplish big things for the people of Alabama.

Faulkner is married to the former Evelyn Irwin, of Bay Minette, and they have two sons, Jimmy, Jr., 15 and Wade, 12.

KILLS DEER WITH KNIFE

Sturgis, Mich. — A tame deer released from a park just a few days before, attacked Ike Stroup, 70, causing him to lose his gun with which he was hunting squirrels. Stroup killed the deer with his hunting knife, after he had suffered severe cuts on his forehead and his thigh.

Whites of eggs are more easily separated from yolks when the eggs are cold; egg whites beat up to more volume if they are at room temperature when beaten.

Noticeable Drop In Employment Security

Montgomery, Ala. — There was a noticeable drop in Employment Security activity in October, due in part to the closing of a number of local Employment Service offices, plus the loss of experienced personnel. These changes, according to Joe L. Coleman, director of the Department of Industrial Relations, were necessitated by a drastic Congressional slash in the Department's budget appropriation.

Coleman said that the budget slash also caused major administrative changes in the Industrial Relations Department, as well as changes in policy and work procedure. In order to work within the new budget, biweekly reporting for claimants instead of the regular weekly reporting procedure was inaugurated. Another change was the shift from a flexible benefit week to a calendar week.

For the first time since December 1951, new work applications fell below the 10,000 mark, dropping to 9,95. An October decrease. . .contrary to the trends of the past several years. . .was attributed to the changes noted above. However, the 34,727 active job seekers at the month's end approximately equalled the figure for the prior month, and exceeded last year's comparable figure.

Non-farm job openings dipped sharply to 11,667, while non-farm job placements, likewise, fell off to 9,669. Both these totals are well below the year ago figures. According to local Employment Service Offices, less labor turnover, the completion of construction projects, and a general slump in hiring contributed to job placement decline.

Initial claims for unemployment insurance for the month of October were up 17.4 percent, to total 9,982. However, this was a boost of only about 6 percent as compared with the year ago period.

Contributing factors to the claims rise were: Part-time employment in primary metals and textile mills, layoffs by machinery manufacturers and transportation equipment manufacturers, as well as the shift in eligibility requirements at the beginning of a new quarter, and claims filed by out-of-state workers returning to Alabama.

A total of $574,364 in unemployment insurance was paid to an estimated 12,000 persons during October. First payments were down from September.

? In Ala.'s Educational System

Will the $6,750,000 "bonus" given Alabama teachers by the 1953 Legislature become a deficit in 1955?

How can enough school buildings and facilities be had for Alabama's children of today and tomorrow?

How can the excessive number of pupils assigned to a teacher in many school be reduced?

How can the flow of Alabama teachers to other jobs and states be stopped?

These and other hard-to-answer questions must be faced by the candidates for the Legislature and the governorship when they qualify next March.

Splendid gains in state school support have been made in recent years. In 1947 the income tax was allotted to schools and in 1951 the sales tax was increased by one cent. Today these two taxes, augmented by the use tax, contribute $70,5.7,000 to the Educational Trust Fund. Even so, swelling enrollments, high living costs, and competition for trained teachers continue to make schools Alabama's number one economic and social problem.

In the opinion of the Alabama Education Association it would be highly unfortunate for the children of the state if the next governor and members of the next Legislature were to assume office without fully understanding the imperative need for improving school conditions throughout the state.

The 1953 Legislature allotted the surplus in the Building Commission for teachers' salaries. This will yield a "bonus" of approximately $3,379,000 for each of the next two years. This "bonus" provides a monthly increase of about $14 to Alabama teachers and lifts the annual average salary to approximately $2,700. This average, however, is still below salaries paid in North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, Florida, Texas and Virginia. Moreover, salaries paid Alabama college teachers are well below those current in other states. As a consequence, it is difficult to hold highly trained men in specialized fields at the college level.

In 1955 this "bonus" must be replaced by a continuing appropriation or it will lapse, which would mean a cut in the salaries of public school and college teachers.

In addition, the recent Legislature increased continuing appropriations by approximately $2,500,000. This new money was used principally to improve teacher retirement benefits, the extension service at Auburn, and the several trade schools. No increases were authorized to improve school transportation, to buy enough textbooks, to expand vocational education, or to provide school buildings and facilities.

With mounting enrollments and with many school buildings now in use over-crowded, poorly lighted, and otherwise inadequate for teaching, the school building problem for both whites and Negroes is especially acute.

A federal survey of school building needs completed in Alabama some months ago showed that a sum approximating $300,000,000 would be required to provide enough buildings and facilities to meet state needs adequately. This survey was made before the unprecendented first-grade enrollment of the current year. Today practically every Alabama town and city has had to add additional first-grade teachers or to report first-grade registrations of thirty-five and up. The building problem is further complicated by the imperative need of providing improved housing and facilities for Negro school children. Regardless of the decision to be handed down by the U. S. Supreme Court relative to segregation in the public schools, more and better buildings for Negroes cannot be further delayed in Alabama.

In their efforts to find additional school revenue parents, candidates, and voters in general may examine the following possible sources of new money:

Increase local funds for schools by (1) raising the assessment on property on which the 7-mill county and district tax is now levied; (2) raising the constitutional limitation on local school taxes from 7 to 12½ mills. Certain school systems have already followed both of these plans of action in part.

Abolish in whole or in part the current exemptions under sales and use taxes.

Raise the rates on income taxes paid by corporations to equal the rates paid by individuals.

Disallow deductions for federal income taxes in calculating taxes on income due the state.

Levy a tax for schools upon Alabama-produced petroleum products.

Reclean seed immediately after harvest to remove green or immature seed, weed seed, and foreign matter.

A year-around pasture system pays because it increases gain of beef cattle and hogs and raises milk and egg production.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

Reds South Of The Border—
Future Not Rosy One—
HST and Herbert—
Byrnes A Key Man—

Washington — While the United States has been spending hundreds of millions of dollars fighting Communism in the Far East, and billions carrying on the world-wide battle, an ugly growth has gotten underway right in Uncle Sam's backyard. First the cancer was detected in Guatemala, and now it shows strong signs of infesting Honduras.

The government in Washington is concerned with the threat, but the question is whether it is already too late to wipe it out. That is what the new U. S. Ambassador to Guatemala is trying to decide right now. He must have been surprised at the reaction his appointment got in the leftwing press in Guatemala.

The U. S. Ambassador (John E. Peurifoy) was branded a murderer of Greek Children among other things, when he headed for Guatemala, and the press has abused him as bad or worse, than the leftwing press did in the Balkans. Peurifoy was the U. S. Ambassador in Athens before going to Guatemala.

It has become evident that Guatemala is supposed to be the hub of Communist activity in Central and perhaps South America. The Communists are strong and influential in the country and are sending organizers out to neighboring countries in an effort to communize them. They now appear to be making good progress in Honduras where the Nationlist party now rules.

The Liberal Party, supported by the Reds, is gaining strength daily and next years elections will probably give them control of the country. The Communist are said to be doing everything in their power to wreck the Natoinalists and aid the Liberals. If both Guatemala and Honduras become Communist sympathizers, the situation in Central America would be serious indeed, for there is no reason to think the growth would be limited to two countries.

he problem in these countries is that the majority of the population is ignorant and resentful of all monied classes. This is perfect breeding material for Communism, and Red agitators are finding ready listeners to their pie-in-the-sky-for all demagogery. This progress is getting embarrassing to the United States, which has enough on its hands at the moment, in every other part of the world, without the added threat of Communists subversion in the Americas.

Harry S. Truman, a man who eats, thinks and dreams politics, is back in the thick of national publicity today as a result of the sensational charges of the Attorney General, Herbert Brownell, Jr. Brownell, it seems, stirred up more of a hornet's nest than he bargained for when he implied that the ex-President had knowingly promoted a Communist spy.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower as usual, was put on the spot by the nature of the charges. After all, it was Truman who named Ike to the NATO command, who gave him other high comissions during his term of office. It was Truman who began Marshall Plan aid, designed to check Communism. It was Truman who ordered U. S. soldiers into action against the Reds in Korea, with the late Senator Taft's blessing, and it was Truman who started the get-tough policy with the Russians. It was also under his administration that the United States undertook a record peacetime rearmament program.

Ike knows Truman is bitterly anti-Communist. And when the ex-President is put under a cloud of suspicion, as possibly having aided the Reds knowingly he cannot swallow that. Nor could he go along with the move to hail the former Chief Executive before a House committee. It is all very embarrassing because his own party men are proposing the very things Ike cannot go along with.

Strange, to some, Ike still considers himself President of all the people in both parties and he will not get on a partisan level on the important issue of security. Had Truman been charged with laxness, or an incredible error, that would have been one thing, but insinuating Truman was a Communist dupe is too much. Ike had to deny that himself, in spite of the fact that the charge came from his own party's leaders. It is all very embarrassing.

Meanwhile, one of the key men to be heard is James F. Byrnes, Governor of South Carolina. The South Carolinian has been feuding with HST and didn't help him much with his first statement, although he said later Truman wasn't a Red tool. Byrnes is the only one of the two Cabinet officers who dealt with the White case alive. Fred Vinson the late Chief Justice, was Secretary of the Treasury, and White his assistant, at the time of the alleged "promotion."

SCANNING THE NEWS

WASHINGTON circles are still buzzing about the recent election which has been termed a jolt to the Republican party, especially their prospects for next year. The Democrats are calling the election a clear-cut victory and an indication that the public is unhappy with the Eisenhower administration.

President Eisenhower said he was not entirely pleased with the results, but added: "I've lost skirmishes before." He said he is confident that in the long run the American people will approve what he described as the dynamic program his administration is trying to carry out.

Chairman Leonard W. Hall of the Republican National Committee frankly acknowledged the Democratic victory in a number of states and added: "There is no question about it. As of today we (Republican party) are in trouble politically."

Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, said of the election: "It looks as though the fruit of Republican promises and performance is dissatisfaction, disillusion and defeat."

The biggest surprise of the election, of course, was the Democratic victory in New Jersey. The Democrats won the governorship for the first time in 10 years and sent a Democrat to congress from a normally heavy Republican district.

The election is also having its results in another part of the political field. A slight chill raced up the spine of a number of Democratic governors who supported President Eisenhower in his election. There is a feeling that many of these governors will weaken their allegiance as an outcome of the contest. It is predicted that these governors must get back into the good graces of the Democratic party or they are doomed.

The political picture is further complicated for the Republicans in the midwestern agricultural states. It can be said in all honesty that the midwestern farmers are more than unhappy with the administration's agricultural program. They are very near open revolt, politically speaking.

Republican, Democratic, and neutral observers are agreed that should an election be held today the Republican party would suffer defeat in the farm states, perhaps one of the worse in the party's history.

Facing an economic future anything but bright, the farmers want a sound farm program. The administration has promised them one, to be presented to congress in January. It had better be good, observers are saying, or the GOP will be in the worse shape it has been in many years—even if it does have a Republican president in the White House.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Edward Koch, Ft. Recovery, Ohio: When I was small my mother always set the incubating hens to get early fryer chickens. As soon as they were 2½ to 3 pounds, we carried them five miles to a general store where we got 15 cents a pound for them in trade.

We would get coffee in green berries that had to be roasted and ground. The white sugar we got was all in hard lumps; so was the brown. Pickles, prunes and crackers were stored in open barrels without covers and many times the grocer had to chase the cat out of the cracker barrel where she had been sleeping.

Nothing was packaged in those days; they didn't even have paper sacks. Everything had to be wrapped in heavy brown paper. Canned vegetables and fruits were unheard of.

We received 5 cents a dozen for eggs and 5 and 6 cents a pound for butter. We burned kerosene lamps and every time one bought kerosene the grocer put a small potato on the spout of the can so it would not spill

From Ida G. Billings, Albert Lea, Minnesota: I remember when the old time box heater was placed in the middle room at home to help the kitchen stove keep the house warm during winter. Father would take the embers and red hot coals in the morning, put them in our shoes and roll them around to get them warm before we put them on to start for school

Egg Prices Will Drop, So Get More Eggs Now

Before long egg prices will start their spring slump, so get top production now while they're still high.

In giving growers this word of advice, API Extension Poultryman John Weeks suggests they follow these management practices for more profits. Give hens a longer day by turning lights on early in the morning or by increasing the wattage used in all-night lights.

Close houses tightly on three sides, and allow plenty of ventilation from the fourth side. Keep litter dry and deep—eight to 10 inches will keep birds comfortable and the eggs clean.

Feed pellets at noon to increase feed consumption. Watch water supply on cold days, and encourage birds to drink as much water as possible. And keep birds confined to the house all day.

DAY-OLD POLICY GOOD

Denver, Col. — George Smart, 31 head file clerk for a railroad, applied for a life insurance policy which guaranteed the $9,000 mortgage on his home and paid the first premium on it, $9.46. The next day, Smart died of a heart attack, although he had taken a physical examination for his policy the day before. Actuarial experts estimated odds against such a circumstance at more than 1,000,000 to 1.

Farmer-Retailer Team Means More Farm Sales

Auurn, Ala. — Retail food stores are the show windows of agriculture.

And their increasing search for quality merchandise to meet consumer demands is creating one of the largest and most profitable markets the individual farmer has ever enjoyed. Armed with a variety of foods to satisfy their customers, retailers are doing an effective job of selling farm products.

These were a few of the observations made here this week by Austin Ezzell, API Extension distributor marketing specialist. He urged farmers to visit their local food stores to learn the mechanics of this selling job and the part they play in it.

"Today's high-y-paid consumer is demanding more and more in the way of variety and quality," said the specialist. "And this means that retail food stores are finding it necessary and profitable to make good use of farm products from local areas, as well as from other sections of the country. Individual farmers with something to sell can fit their crops into this picture and secure a year-round market."

Cooperation is the key word in the alliance between farmer and retailer, continued Ezzell. Growers will find that the modern highly-skilled sales force that stands between them and the consumer is willing to do its part in promoting even bigger and more eye-appealing food displays.

He advised farmers to seek out this ever-growing market. County farm and home agents can help farmers locate existing demands, and retailers will help transfer farm products from the field to the consumer.

LEAPS FOR BILL, DROWNS

Lewas, Dela. — Jennings T. Mapp, 26, was standing on the wharf of a fish - processing plant counting his money. A gust of wind caught up one of the bills and tossed it into the bay. Mapp took off his outer clothes, his shoes and socks and leaped into the water. He swam a few feet, then sank. Police were unable to find his body after several hours of grappling.

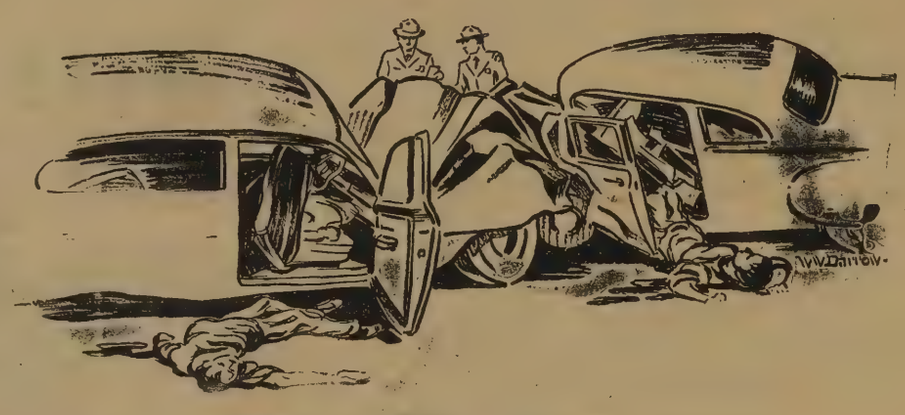
WE URGE YOU TO BE EXTRA CAREFUL DURING THE HOLIDAY TRAFFIC



DEADLY WEEK-ENDS

Pleasure time is no time for accidents and sudden death, but unfortunately that is when the grim specter works overtime.

On the average week-end about 290 persons are killed and more than 13,600 injured. In a year's time, week-end and holiday casualties climb to the numbing total of 15,000 dead, 750,000 injured, or about 41 percent of all lives lost annually in traffic accidents.

With a week-end or holiday coming up, families and vacation parties swarm the roads to places of recreation, traffic is congested, driving strain increased—and then the fatal count begins.

Millions of good, bad and indifferent drivers speeding, cutting in, weaving, ignoring the rules of courtesy, challenging traffic controls, provide the lethal ingredients for crashing and killing. Add to this the potion of the drinking driver and the mixture is deadly.

When you plan week-end driving be doubly cautious. Try to avoid peak hours of travel and congested routes. Start early, return before or after the rush. Watch your driving, keep your temper, don't contest the right-of-way—and watch the other driver!

Slow down—take a little longer and bring your family home alive.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

The other night we met Joe Campbell at the post office and told him that the Junior Department of the Methodist Church, of which his daughter, Paula, is a member, was planning a picture show party. Joe said he was going to be out of town with his family on the night of the party, but to just give him the money and he would send his daughter to the picture show the following week. Joe's on the ball.

Which reminds us of the story of the two ants. There was a golfer who had a lot of trouble with his drives who one day landed not too far from his tee. Close by there was an ant hill with exactly 1,002 ants in the hill. The golfer thought it might be a better place to swing at the ball, so he placed the ball upon the ant hill. He took a mighty swing and destroyed half the hill and killed 500 ants—but he didn't disturb the ball. Again he took a hard swing at the ball and again he killed 500 ants without touching the ball. This left just two little ants. After surveying the destruction to his friends and kinsmen one little ant turned to the other little ant and said: "Say, buddy, we better get on the ball."

Probate Judge Tingle told us the story of the missing automobile tags the other day. Seems the Legislature passed the law exempting pickup trucks from paying full truck tag costs if the truck was the only means of transportation the family had. Well, this was done after the 1954 tags had been ordered by the Probate Judges of the 67 counties. And, it caused each of the counties to run out of tags before all vehicle operators had been able to buy their tags. Judge Tingle was a lot more fortunate than most other Probate Judges in that he was able to get a supplementary order of tags and most of the other counties were not. We were asking Dave about it the other day at the courthouse. He told us that a number of things enabled him to accomplish this, but the main thing was that the guard at the first gate at Kilby (where the tags are made) is from Chilton County. The guard at the second gate at Kilby is from Chilton County and the man at the tag plant is a native of Chilton County. The day after he got his extra tags the tag plant shut down for repairs, so we suppose many counties are still waiting for their tags. It just goes to show you it pays to be from Chilton County.

Two women on a bus were having a lively conversation when one suddenly exclaimed: "Heavens to Betsy! I forgot to pay my fare." "Oh, nobody noticed it," returned her new friend. "I'd forget it." But not so. The righteous woman pushed herself to the front of the bus and back again, her face alight and beaming. "You see," she said, "honesty pays. I gave the driver a quarter and he handed me change for a dollar."

He has been in serious condition for some time, but we learned that he was operated on a week ago and has had a decided improvement since that time. We're glad, too, for Mrs. Nuss. And Citizens of Clanton:

Since the following statement and audit of the records and books of the City was completed September 30, 1953, we have made the first payment on our Natural Gas System of $10,000.00 with interest. Therefore, the outstanding Gas Bonds today are $10,000.00 less than is shown on the Auditor's Report published in connection with these remarks.

You will notice also that we have reduced the general debt $9,000.00 during the fiscal year, ending September 30, and increased our worth in City-owned property, $30,640.41.

We have 1,142 gas customers. We are endeavoring earnestly to improve our Gas and Water System wherever improvement is needed and is possible. We have 1,450 Water Customers. The water system has been in operation 39 years. The Gas System has been in full force not quite three years. I am pleased with the number of Gas users in so short a time, but that number should be increased along as our electric stoves and heaters wear out, as I think we should replace them with gas appliances. The Gas System is OUR OWN PROPERTY. Let's improve it and make it a comfort and profitable to ourselves. The Water System also is ours; it is yours. When you have an excess water bill, do not be so quick to blame the Meter Reader, or your water meter, just find the leak in your own home. Many times it is there.

Respectfully,
C. FENN JONES, Mayor.

Clanton Wins Last Football Game 26-14

(By Harold Smyer)

The Chilton County High School Tigers defeated Marion Institute's "B" team here Monday night by the score of 26 to 14. The Tigers thus ended their 1953 season with six wins, three losses and one tie.

Clanton scored against Marion the first time they got possession of the ball on a 45-yard drive. Roy Mims scored on a wide sweep around end, which was good for 18 yards. The Tigers failed on the try for the extra point. Marion came right back and scored in 7 plays. Marion's left halfback sprint-54 yards to score. Marion got ahead 7 to 6 as they passed for the extra point. The Tigers also came right back to score in 9 plays after an 80-yard march. Wayne Hardy plunged over from the one-yard line. Mims' place-kick was wide and the score was Clanton 12, Marion 7, as the first quarter ended. Marion received the kickoff, fumbled on their own 33 with Clanton recovering. The Tigers drove down to the 3-yard line before losing the ball on downs. Marion gained out to their 18-yard line before having to punt. The Tigers took the punt on the 50, and with a 19-yard run by Mims and a 22-yard run by Littlejohn, put the ball on the one-yard line. Hardy again ran for the score. Mims kicked for the extra point and the Tigers were out front 19 to 7. Marion ran back the next kickoff 10 yards to their 20. then passed 41 yards to the Tiger 39. Their next pass backfired as Clanton intercepted on their 27 and returned 13 yards. Caton gained one, then Mims passed to Duren, the play was good for 36 yards and a first down on Marion's 23. Mims gained three, then nine and another first down on the 11-yard line as the first half ended.

The Tigers received the second half kickoff on the one-yard line, Mims returning to the 27. Hardy bulldozed his way downfield in thrusts of 15, 5, 11 and 3-yard gains; and with Caton getting away for 8 and 9 yards, drove to the 12-yard line. Mims fumbled on the next play and Marion recovered on their 17. With the aid of a 28-yard pass, Marion drove 83 yards to score from the one-yard line via a line buck. Their kick for the extra point was good, and the score was, Marion 14, Clanton 19. Marion's kickoff went out of bounds, so from the 40 yard line Mims, Hardy and Caton went to the visitors 23 yard line. On the next play Marion intercepted Mims' pass on the 10-yard line and started passing and running down into Tiger territory. They advanced to the Tiger 20 before losing the ball on downs. From their 20 Hardy, Caton and Mims picked up a total of four first downs to Marion's 24-yard line. Littlejohn swept wide around right end and went all the way, 24 yards, for the Tiger's fourth touchdown. Mims ran for the extra point and the score was Clanton 26, Marion 14. Clanton kicked off to Marion, Marion passed 26 yards and the game ended.

Wayne Hardy played his best game of the year. It always took three or four tacklers to bring him down. Richard Caton also made some nice runs, as did Roy Mims and Edmund Littlejohn. Seniors who played their last high school football game, and played it well, were: Wayne Hardy, Alford Littleton, Phil Simms, Richard Caton, Larry Minor, Russell Lewis, R. W. Duren, Billy Nelson, Harold Connell and Ronnie Smith. Mims, Robinson, Littlejohn, Baker, Ingram, Payton, Wilson, Puckett, Comer, Billingsley, Lowery and at least a dozen other fine prospects will be on hand to carry on for the 1954 Tiger team.

Monday night Mims accounted for 154 yards; Littlejohn 99; Hardy 82; Caton 80; Duren 37; Minor 2 and Baker 1.

Ruby Willingham Is TB Seal Chairman

"Let's give thanks that the fight against TB can and will be won."

That's the Thanksgiving message expressed here this week by Mrs. Ruby Willingham, Seal Sale Chairman of the Chilton County TB Association.

"Tuberculosis is curable and it is preventable. And the prevention and cure of the disease is the purpose of the annual Christmas Seal Sale.

"We're thankful so many people are having a part in a great crusade because they buy and use Christmas Seals. Death rates have been dropping steadily since the first Seals were sold nearly 50 years ago.

"But a strong fight still must be waged. The battle is only half won.

"There are active, infectious cases of TB in every Alabama county. Many of them are known cases, recorded on health department files, but there still are just as many unknown cases. A lot of people have TB and do not know it, because in the early stages tuberculosis gives no warning signs.

"Tuberculosis is everybody's business because it is a 'catching' disease. The purchase and use of Christmas Seals gives everybody a chance to fulfill his responsibility in this once-a-year drive.

"Let's be thankful we have this opportunity — and give as generously as we can.

"Money contributed now will help hospitalize, treat and prevent TB the whole year through."

WASHINGTON PRACTICES FOR ATTACK

The news services, and all publicity media, gave considerable publicity recently to the mock air raid drill held in Washington. Even President Dwight D. Eisenhower stopped his work and hot-footed it to an air raid shelter, where he remained for some eighteen minutes.

While the President does not take the threat of war too seriously, as a military man he knows the value of preparedness. Anyone who has lived in Washington very long realize that the Capitol City of the U. S. Government is not very well prepared for atomic attack. Nearly everything is above ground and only in a few cases are vital installations properly dispersed.

The surprising thing about this situation is that this Government is not busy constructing underground armaments works and more underground facilities for vital government installations. On the contrary, defense production continues about as it has before, concentrated in highly vulnerable industrial areas and with work being carried on almost as before.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

On the former Charlotte Thompson plantation two miles north of Hunter's Station in Montgomery County, was an Alibamo town called Pawokti and several mounds give evidence of the old Indian village site. Sawonogi, on the south bank of the Tallapoosa River near the former Ware's Ferry, one mile below and adjoining what was later the pioneer town of Augusta, was a Shawnee and Creek town. The Shawnees were of the Hatawekcha band and the inhabitants of the town were industrious, making fine crops of corn and had hogs and horses, but no cattle. The French census of 1760, gave this town as of 50 warriors.

During the Creek Indian War, Pawokti in Montgomery County was a Red Stick town and was the home of Savannah Jack, a bloodthirsty Indian leader who took part in several massacres in Clarke County and the surrounding country.

Tussi, in Montgomery County, located on a high bluff overlooking the Alabama River, about five miles above the bridge on the Birmingham highway, on the north bank of the river and on the golf course of the present Maxwell Air Force Base, was a town of great antiquity and was visited by DeSoto in 1540, his expedition spending the week of September 6-13 at this place. On leaving, DeSoto was furnished with needed baggage carriers and 32 women as slaves. The people of the town were continually being traded by the Alibamu Indians, causing them to migrate to the south near Mobile where they were given a grant by Bienville.

Near Carpenter's Ford on Catoma Creek, eight miles west of Montgomery, there is an unidentified village site. Two miles south of Hope Hull on the Marsden Road on Pintlala Creek, ten miles above its mouth, is an unidentified village site and mound. Eight miles west of Montgomery on the Alabama River, just north of the Selma Road, on the Cobb Plantation, there was another village site. At the mouth of Catoma Creek another village site and one-half mile north of the Selma Road eight miles west of Montgomery on the George Wright place, was a village site. Another was on the Alabama River, one and one-half miles below the mouth of Catoma Creek on the old Stone place on the Montgomery and Selma Road.

Bank Of Maplesville Shows A Steady Progress Through Thirty-Four Years Of Service

The Bank of Maplesville was chartered September 19, 1919, with a capital of $10,000 and a surplus of $2,000. Since that time it has grown to a bank with assets of more than $1,600,000. This growth is credited to the cooperation of the good people of Maplesville and surrounding communities by the bank officials and it's Board of Directors.

In 1930 John Maples, who is still Cashier, joined the staff at the Bank of Maplesville and the little bank boasted assets of $200,000 Mr. Maples has watched the bank grow to its present strength of more than a million and a half dollars.

Depositors from five counties use the Bank of Maplesville as a depository, according to the officials. Situated as it is, it serves the banking needs of residents of Chilton, Autauga, Perry, Dallas and Bibb Counties.

Dr. H. M. Nix, who is president of the Bank of Maplesville, is a native of this section. He has worked with the other members of the Board since its beginning and is justly proud of "The biggest little bank in Central Alabama."

Other officials of the bank are: J. J. Hayes, vice-president; H. G. Herrod, vice-president; John Maples, cashier; W. C. Gray, E. T. Clapp and E. P. Jones, assistant cashiers.

A page adv. elsewhere in this issue pictures the new, modern "Bank of Maplesville" and all of its friends and customers are invited to visit them at any time.

THE INCOME TAX BITE

The Department of Commerce issued a statement recently showing that about eight and a half per cent of the total family income of 1950 was paid to the Federal Government in income taxes. This figure may seem surprisingly small to some, especially those who thought that many families paid more than fifty per cent of their income to the Government in income taxes.

While there are families who pay income taxes in these high brackets, the number is so small that the national average income tax payment is eight and a half per cent of the total family income for the nation.

The latest Commerce Department figures show Federal income taxes, in 1950, took eight per cent of the income in the $7,500-$10,000 class family. Families and non-dependent individuals with incomes over $10,000 paid nineteen per cent of their income to the Federal Government as income tax.

An interesting part of the report is that which shows the national family income, before taxes, to have been about $4,460 in 1950. The report shows that family income is up considerably but the average Federal income tax is not as high as many assume.

A GOOD REPORT

Congratulations to the Mayor and City Council for a very good report on the financial condition of our City for the past fiscal year. The report will be found in this issue of Chilton County News.

The City's affairs are big business today, in fact, one of the largest businesses in Chilton County. It is with pride we look upon the directors of this business of ours and we feel secure that it is in competent hands.

This not alone goes for the Mayor and the City Council, but for all the other employees as well. We congratulate them all on a job being well done.

ALL DRESSED UP

The Bank of Maplesville has put on a new dress, and according to the last report of conditions of the bank, is going places.

The Bank of Maplesville has served depositors in five counties for the past 34 years and officers of the Bank are proud of it's growth.

Dr. H. M. Nix, president of the institution, and other officers point out that the steady growth could only have been accomplished with the support of the fine people of the community in which the bank serves and their thanks and appreciation is expressed in a page advertisement in this issue.

ideas from other editors

From The Glasgow Times, Glasgow, Kentucky: So far as domestic problems and issues are concerned, two subjects are being given intense attention now One is whether there is going to be a business recession of substantial proportions The other is what, if anything, will happen to the tax system and the tax rates

A high official view on these and other matters was recently provided by Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey in a question-and-answer session at the National Press Club

Mr Humphrey made it clear at the outset that he doesn't claim to be able to see far into the future with accuracy However, he found no reason "why anybody should anticipate any calamity or any great difficulty" He pointed out that production and employment are at the highest peaks we have ever known At the same time he recognized the fact that soft spots must inevitably appear. Then he made this observation: "The greatest thing that could happen to us in this country would be to have one industry at a time do a little readjusting in its own affairs and then be back again The thing we don't want is to have everybody readjust all at once I see no reason why anybody should be alarmed about business conditions today In fact I am very encouraged about them and I am optimistic"

The Secretary was then asked if the Administration has plans to offset a recession should it appear To this he replied with an emphatic yes, though he did not go into specific details as to what the plans involve No Administration, he said, could permit an economic catastrophe if there were any way to prevent it. He said: "I think the proper way to stop it is to do the sound things in money and finance, the sound things in business and production, in distribution, that can be done to let free, competitive enterprise operate itself in the right kind of way . . ."

Moving on, Mr Humphrey came to the question of taxes. A short time before the President had made an address in which he warned, in effect, that the Soviet menace to the free world was unabated, and many commentators assumed from this that past Administration plans for tax cuts would be abandoned. Going by Mr. Humphrey's remarks, that is not the case at all. He said: "If the deficit we are going to run is as we now expect and anticipate, if we can continue to make the progress in the reduction of expenditures for the rest of the year that we have made so far, I think the tax cuts should go through just as planned"

GOING INTO BUSINESS?

Traverse City, Mich. — The thief who robbed the closed Torch Tip resort near Eastport must be figuring on going into the hotel bed sheets, 122 pillow cases, 91 towels, 96 hand towels, 26 bath mats, 70 dish towels, 54 wash cloths, 40 dish cloths, 2 quilts, 2 bedspreads and other linens.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each and everyone who helped in any way during the sickness and death of our husband and father, Mr. C. F. Partridge. May God's richest blessings be on each and every one is our prayer. — Mrs. C. F. Partridge, Mrs. N. A. Norris, Mrs. Ed Humphrey.

Stretch Short It Costs More To Feed Pigs That Have Worms

Auburn, Ala. — Fall farrowed pigs being fed out now for market next spring will eat more feed and make slower gains if infested with internal parasites.

According to G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist, pigs that are victims of large roundworms will need from three to four extra bushels of corn and an extra month of growth from birth to market.

"Keep pigs off ground used by other pigs and hogs," advises the farm leader. "And if pigs and shotes appear unthrifty, have rough hair coats, are pot-bellied, and are making slow gains, give them the sodium fluoride treatment at 10 weeks of age."

Supply Of Hybrid Corn Seed

Next year Alabama farmers are expected to plant 60 per cent or more of their entire corn acreage to seed of hybrid varieties.

And, reports Ralph Jones, API Extension seed crops specialist, it is also expected that there won't be enough seed available to handle this big an acreage. However, he adds, growers can stretch the short 1954 supply by using the cheaper round grades of seed.

"Although round and small flat grades are not in great demand," explains Jones, "they nevertheless turn out yields equal to those of the medium or large flat grades. Research has proved this fact—and also dispelled the theory that they won't plant as uniformly as large flat grades. In addition, round and small flat grades plant more acres per bushel of seed."

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

TEN years ago John Noel, 608 Eau Claire Blvd., Wausau, Wisconsin, changed from one product to another, and with the change came worries and more worries. He had built a new house, bought furniture, a new car, and didn't know anything good about the product which he was then selling. He couldn't make a large enough loan to complete his house, and he had to run his face, as he says, for the furnace, wiring, painting and other accessories. Besides this, he had to buy a truck on time payments. Just then his second baby arrived.

CARNEGIE

Weeks went by without a sale. He worked day and night learning to sell his new product, often coming home after eleven o'clock at night. Always his wife would ask whether he had made a sale. Finally she didn't have to ask, all she had to do was to look at him.

The worrying he was doing each day was forestalling his sales. He was so worried that it was almost impossible to get a good night's rest.

One day he talked to a friend who had had a lot of experience in his business. Together they decided that he should go to a priest, who said that the flowers, trees, birds, animals, and all of nature's very own, have storm clouds—and yet they survive. All in all, he says he had a good confession, and learned to have more faith in God, and to think constructively. Since that time he finds time to spend three days a year with God at a retreat, which gives him great peace of mind and the ability to think and plan constructively.

SPORTS CORNER

This an' That

Baseball hero Mickey Mantle, underwent surgery on his bad right knee, and was reported doing fine. A torn cartilage in his knee was removed . . . Here's a record hard to beat: Salem College of Salem, W. Va., closed its 1953 football season with another defeat, making, in all, eight defeats in 1953 and the 26th straight loss in three and a half years . . . Baseball Rules Committee has changed the balk rule. Under the new rule, the offensive team will have an option of taking the balk called on the pitcher or the result of the batter's swing—possibly a home run. In the past, it was possible for a batter to hit a home run and have the hit nullified by the umpire's "balk" call . . . Jockies are often kissed after winning a stake by enthusiastic lady owners. Now, all jockies are small men and this is what one said recently about such an occasion: "That lady (a 175 pounder) has the biggest mouth I've ever seen. When she kissed me it covered the whole side of my face."

LEADS FIGHTIN' IRISH . . . Coach Frank Leahy, in action after two week illness, flashes victory smile as Notre Dame wins another game in march toward unbeaten season, nosing out a strong Penn team 28-26.

IS YOUR NET FARM INCOME GETTING THE SQUEEZE?

NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION
Federal Land Bank Loans
Low Interest Rates Long Term

The prices of most farm products ARE DOWN. The cost of what farmers have to buy HAS NOT declined. The margin of profit is LESS. These are facts faced by many farmers—

A PRICE - COST SQUEEZE!

Because of these very conditions, farmers may need MORE CREDIT — LONG-TERM CREDIT — the kind that is available in a LAND BANK LOAN. These loans are made for terms of 5 years up to 40 years, at 4 PER CENT interest—the LOWEST rate in the history of farm mortgage lending.

LAND BANK LOANS carry other special benefits, in addition to the low interest and long time in which to repay. A LAND BANK LOAN may be REPAID IN FULL at any time WITHOUT CHARGE for that privilege. You only have to pay the principal, and interest earned to date of payment.

LAND BANK LOANS are made through and serviced by your local NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION, which is managed by your own neighbors and friends.

If you NEED MORE OPERATING CAPITAL—if you have an accumulation of SCATTERED DEBTS—

...if there were only ONE telephone in the world

If you had the only telephone in the world, you couldn't use it. There would be nobody else you could call.

The value of a telephone is in the great number of people you can reach with it. You can talk with almost anyone, anywhere—quickly, easily and at low cost.

Last week the number of telephones in this nation passed the 50,000,000 mark. That's more than there are in all the rest of the world. It figures out to about one telephone for every three people in this country.

Most of these telephones are served by local Bell Companies like Southern Bell. Nearly 9,000,000, however, are operated by 5300 other companies.

In no other nation is the telephone so available, so useful and so low in cost.

FAST GROWTH IN DIXIE...

The number of telephones in the areas served by Southern Bell has jumped from 1,863,204 at the beginning of 1946 to more than 4,200,000 today.

ADVENTIST CHURCH

1. On the night of His betrayal what did Jesus say to Peter?

Ans. "Thou canst not follow Me now, but thou shalt follow Me later."—Jno. 13:36.

2. In explaining further what did Jesus say?

Ans. "I will come again and receive you unto Myself; that where I am—there ye may be also."—Jno. 14:3.

Note: Jesus did not tell Peter that as soon as He died He would come up to heaven and be with Him. He said: "I will come again and receive you unto Myself."

3. When did Paul say the saved will be "with the Lord?"

Ans. "For the Lord, Himself, shall descend from Heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall ever be with the Lord." Thes. 4:16-17.

Note: It is then and not until then that the saved shall be "with the Lord."

Sabbath School 9:45, followed by preaching service at 11:00 p.m. and vesper service at 4:30 p.m.—Allen Walker, pastor.

ADD a few snips of green onion and chopped ripe olives to cottage cheese to make a very delicious omelet filling for a luncheon or supper

Here are some simple but nourishing after-school or lunch box snacks that are healthful, too. Plump some prunes, remove the pits and stuff with a walnut, almond or maraschino cherry. Roll the prunes in a cinnamon-sugar mixture

Do you like to serve interesting sauces on your vegetables? You'll like this simple one: combine equal parts of mayonnaise and soured cream and then stir in some prepared mustard for zippy flavor along with chopped roasted almonds.

Slip this dessert into the oven as you sit down to eat the meal and it will be warm and luscious by the time you're ready for dessert: Place 6 canned cling peach halves into a flat baking dish. Sprinkle with ⅓ cup brown sugar mixed with ⅓ cup orange juice boiled for 3 minutes. Top with coconut and marshmallows and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 20 minutes.

Have you tried rolling seasoned mashed potatoes around marshmallows? They're wonderful, broiled, with a slice of ham.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gordon Persons, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 15th day of December, 1953, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"In addition to all other taxes now or hereafter authorized by law, the governing body of Chambers County shall have the power to levy and collect, for a period of not exceeding twelve years, a special ad valorem tax on real and tangible personal property only, situated within said county, at a rate not exceeding five mills on each dollar's worth of said real and tangible personal property, as assessed for state taxation for the preceding tax year, the proceeds of said tax to be used solely for acquiring, constructing, and equipping public school buildings within said county, including public school buildings for any city school system therein; provided, however, that the special ad valorem tax authorized herein shall be levied only in the event that no other additional ad valorem tax is authorized to be levied by a constitutional amendment submitted at the 1953 regular session of the Legislature; and provided further, that before said special ad valorem tax shall be levied, the question as to whether said tax shall be levied shall have first been submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of said county at an election to be called by the governing body of said county, and shall have been voted for by a majority of said qualified electors voting at said election. The election provided for herein shall be called, held, conducted and canvassed, and may be contested in the same manner as provided by law for the calling, holding, conducting and canvassing of county bond elections. Upon the expiration of any tax authorized pursuant to this amendment, no further tax shall be authorized hereunder.

"In the event the said special ad valorem tax shall be authorized by a majority of the qualified electors voting on said question at said election, the governing body of said county shall thereupon be authorized to sell and issue its tax anticipation bonds for the purposes for which said tax was authorized, which bonds shall be in such amount as the governing body of said county shall designate, and shall be subject to the provisions of the general laws pertaining to the issuance of county bonds except that no further election shall be required therefor. The revenue derived from the sale of said bonds shall be expended by the Chambers County Board of Education for the purposes stated herein. Any bonds issued pursuant to this amendment shall be payable solely out of the proceeds of the said special ad valorem tax hereby authorized which shall be pledged therefor, and after the issuance of said bonds, the proceeds of said tax remaining after payment of the cost of assessment and collection shall be used only for payment of the principal of and interest on said bonds, the creation and maintenance of a reserve therefor, and the redemption thereof. Said bonds shall constitute negotiable instruments although payable from a limited source and shall be eligible for the investment of trust funds. The said bonds shall not constitute general obligations of the said county and shall be in addition to all other bonds which said county has heretofore issued or is authorized to issue under the Constitution and laws of Alabama."

STATE OF ALABAMA A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at the Regular Session 1953, ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that said election be held on the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed; and

WHEREAS, the first Tuesday following the expiration of three months after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature at which the amendment was proposed will be and occur on Tuesday, December 15, 1953; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law, and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for the election:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gordon Persons, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 15th day of December, 1953, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form provided by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"In addition to all other taxes now or hereafter authorized by law, the governing body of Chambers County shall have the power to levy and collect, for a period of not exceeding twelve years, a special ad valorem tax on real and tangible personal property only, situated within said county, at a rate not exceeding five mills on each dollar's worth of said real and tangible personal property, as assessed for state taxation for the preceding tax year, the proceeds of said tax to be used solely for acquiring, constructing, and equipping public school buildings within said county, including public school buildings for any city school system therein; provided, however, that the special ad valorem tax authorized herein shall be levied only in the event that no other additional ad valorem tax is authorized to be levied by a constitutional amendment submitted at the 1953 regular session of the Legislature; and provided further, that before said special ad valorem tax shall be levied, the question as to whether said tax shall be levied shall have first been submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of said county at an election to be called by the governing body of said county, and shall have been voted for by a majority of said qualified electors voting at said election. The election provided for herein shall be called, held, conducted and canvassed, and may be contested in the same manner as provided by law for the calling, holding, conducting and canvassing of county bond elections. Upon the expiration of any tax authorized pursuant to this amendment, no further tax shall be authorized hereunder.

"In the event the said special ad valorem tax shall be authorized by a majority of the qualified electors voting on said question at said election, the governing body of said county shall thereupon be authorized to sell and issue its tax anticipation bonds for the purposes for which said tax was authorized, which bonds shall be in such amount as the governing body of said county shall designate, and shall be subject to the provisions of the general laws pertaining to the issuance of county bonds except that no further election shall be required therefor. The revenue derived from the sale of said bonds shall be expended by the Chambers County Board of Education for the purposes stated herein. Any bonds issued pursuant to this amendment shall be payable solely out of the proceeds of the said special ad valorem tax hereby authorized which shall be pledged therefor, and after the issuance of said bonds, the proceeds of said tax remaining after payment of the cost of assessment and collection shall be used only for payment of the principal of and interest on said bonds, the creation and maintenance of a reserve therefor, and the redemption thereof. Said bonds shall constitute negotiable instruments although payable from a limited source and shall be eligible for the investment of trust funds. The said bonds shall not constitute general obligations of the said county and shall be in addition to all other bonds which said county has heretofore issued or is authorized to issue under the Constitution and laws of Alabama."

I further direct and proclaim that this election on Tuesday, the 15th day of December 1953, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 15th day of December 1953, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said county.

Amos 5:24. Let judgment run down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream.

Rev. Hamm brought us two fine messages Sunday.

We were very happy to see Mrs. Ruby Johnson able to come to church Sunday.

Mrs. G. W. Melton is ill at this time. Let's pray for her.

We had a fine singing Friday night, not a large crowd, due to inclement weather. J. E. Minor, our chairman, directed the first two hymns. Rev. Herman Lowery opened with prayer. Those directing were: A. O. Boswell, Dr. T. W. Whitehead, Herman Kendrick, Stancel Boswell, Mrs. Beulah Bean, S. V. Miller, Wallace Kendrick, Junior Hamm, Lloyd Boswell, Bro. Herman Lowery, Green Melton, Alton Hamm; pianists were Mrs. T. W. Whitehead and A. O. Boswell. Solo was by Mrs. T. W. Whitehead. Closing song and prayer by Rev. George Hamm.

Come again, folks.

Roger Lee Ivey is home from the hospital and back in school. He has had another eye operation, and we are in hopes it will be the last one. Come see us, Roger and family.

A few women from our church attended the W.M.U. meeting at Mulberry Church, and report a fine meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson and family had as their Sunday guests, Rev. and Mrs. Hamm, Rev. Lawton Wilson and family. Their afternoon guests were Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Oates.

WARDEN KILLS BUCK

Bisbee, Ariz. — Out to find violators of the deer law, Deputy Sheriff Bennett Moson drove into a game preserve. Suddenly, a four-point buck darted across the road in front of Moson's car. Moson tried to avoid hitting the deer but there wasn't time before the collision. The embarrassed Moson pulled the deer into his car and contributed it to the county hospital.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—Which one of the 10 Cabinet Departments of the federal government has the most employees? Which has the fewest?

A—The Department of Defense employed 1,257,657 civilians, more than any other executive Department, at the end of fiscal year 1953, last June 30. Of the total, the Army employed 504,490, the Navy 448,874, the Air Force 302,307, and the office of the Secretary 1,986. Only 5,627 persons were employed by the Department of Labor at that time, the fewest in any Department. Next lowest was the Department of Justice with 30,625.

Q—Has the American Indian always been a citizen of the United States?

A—Not all of them. One June 2, 1924, President Coolidge signed legislation granting citizenship to all U. S. Indians. Prior to that time, a minority of individuals and tribes had been granted citizenship from time to time.

Q—What are the plans of the committee studying foundations?

A—The Select Committee to Investigate Tax-Exempt Foundations, created by the House Aug. 1, is organizing a staff prior to beginning hearings "sometime in the fall" according to its Chairman, Rep B. Carroll Reece (R. Tenn.). The five-Member group was authorized to spend $50,000 to probe educational, philanthropic and other "comparable" organizations exempt from the federal income tax.

Q—How many commissions, boards and other advisory groups have been established by the President and the Congress since the Republicans took over in January?

A—Twenty-six, as of Oct. 28. President Eisenhower established 14 of them, while Congress, by public law, created the other 12. Another six study and advisory groups have been set up by cabinet members.

Rev. E. C. Hand, pastor.

Attendance was very poor Sunday and Sunday night. We were sorry more people could not attend church Sunday because of sickness and the weather. We were hoping a larger crowd could be present Sunday because we observed the Lord's Supper.

Since next Sunday is the fifth Sunday we probably won't have preaching since we haven't been having preaching on the fifth Sunday.

Let's all keep in mind we still have Training Union each Sunday night at 6:00, with preaching following. Let's keep this in mind and be present promptly at 6:00 next Sunday night for Training Union.

We are sorry we still have a good bit of sickness in our community. We hope each of you will keep in mind they were supposed to load the car for the Orphan's Home Tuesday. We hope each of you made your contribution, whether large or small.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. E. H. Hunter, Booneville, Arkansas: I remember in September, 1901, when President McKinley was assassinated.

At the time I was a teacher in a remote, wooded district of Alabama. The school term was six weeks between laying by of summer crops and picking fall cotton. Pay for the term was $30 and board.

The box-built schoolhouse of one room had two doors—one for the boys and the other for the girls. Three windows with wooden shutters, long home-made benches, a small blackboard, a few pieces of chalk, a water pail and dipper. Water was supplied by a nearby spring. The boys played on one side of the house and the girls the other, never together.

The twenty pupils ranged in ages from six to 19 and furnished their own books, slates and pencils which they used from year to year. All brought dinner in tin buckets with lids and usually consisted of soda biscuits, fried meat and eggs. Some children walked two miles. Two children wore the same dresses, washed and ironed over the weekend, every day of the term.

The post office was three miles through the woods. Only weekly newspapers reached the community. The county seat was 19 miles away.

On Saturday of the week of President McKinley's death, the family where I boarded and I climbed into their big wagon and went to spend the day with neighbors. Here I first saw account of the tragedy in the weekly newspaper. When I began talking of it, my landlady said, "Yes, we had heard something about it, but hadn't thought to mention it."

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Ya know, the old world would still turn around if you'd say good things about, and to, the other fella. What I want to know is who's gonna start it off?

Best talking point an office-seeking politician has these days is, "I need the job."

Apparently someone doesn't understand the total significance of a street light. Well, they happen to be there to see by and for that reason only. You pay for 'em, you benefit by them, so why not take care of them. Now, we know there aren't many people who like for their block, or street, to be in darkness because of the selfish-satisfaction of others; it must be self-satisfying as we've found no other logical or sensible reason for breaking them out. Now, if it's very young hoodlums it's understandable (boys will be boys and all that) but still not excusable; if it's older hoodlums, then it isn't even understandable. Parents, do you know where your children are tonight? If not, then you're responsible.

There's no such thing as a sarcastic remark, it just depends on who's remarking.

Met a fella the other day who told me he had a friend who was a plumber. If he was telling me the truth, though, I've been disillusioned all along 'cause he didn't look much like a plumber's friend.

The old Christmas spirit is really coming in early this season. Saw a fella down the street the other day with a Christmas tree in the trunk of his car. Probably his kid's first Christmas and he couldn't wait to play Santa Claus.

And speaking of Christmas, there are already some mighty pretty windows around town, and we think it would be your pleasure and worth your while to notice and appreciate them.

Know what they tell the birds and bees these days? "Just want to get the facts, fellas, just the facts."

Here's a dirty trick. I've heard of putting bells and stuff on a "just married" car, but never this: Some fella told us the other day that he had just returned from a wedding in south Alabama. He said they tied, or rather chained a cow bell to a guy's exhaust pipe, put a padlock on the chain and then threw the key away. Man, somebody really hated that poor fella.

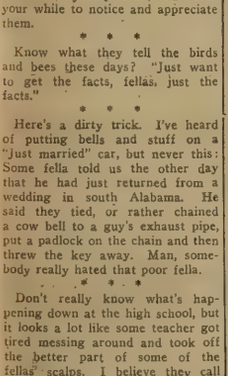
Don't really know what's happening down at the high school, but it looks a lot like some teacher got tired messing around and took off the better part of some of the fellas' scalps. I believe they call it a football initiation just to cover up. I know one fella went home sporting a Comanche haircut and his mother made him wear a hat even to bed. This fella must look awful, his own mother couldn't look at him. I don't suppose you could say it was an improvement anyhow.



SPOTTED PANTS . . . Maxine Zaret of New York city dons pair of leopard skin pants for plane trip to West Coast where spotted garb may become the fad.

When ironing bias-cut pieces, avoid stretching the fabric by ironing it with the grain of the material.

Poultrymen should use six to 8 inches of litter—dry shavings, crushed corncobs, sawdust, chopped straw, etc.—over the entire brooder floor.

Christmas Seals Finance Fight

Christmas Seals are the big guns in the fight against TB, the Number one infectious killer in Chilton County, in Alabama and the nation.

"Have you bought yours yet?" asked Mrs. R. M. Tucker, President, Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

"We have 73 known cases of TB right here in our couhty, and there is a total of 11,555 throughout Alabama. These are known cases, on health department records. Medical authorities say there are at least that many more unknown victims of the disease, people who do not realize they are suffering with an illness that can be cured, can be prevented.

"More tuberculosis hospital beds, more money to run them and more adequate facilities to find TB in the early stages are the great needs in Alabama.

This is the message of the Christmas Seal. 'The death rate from this disease has been forced down steadily since the first Seals were sold 47 years ago.

But tuberculosis still strikes down too many people. It kills one American citizen every 17 minutes.

Christmas Seals will do their part if given a chance.

"Have you bought yours yet?"

Forest Fires Did Big Damage In Nov.

Montgomery, Ala.—The State Department of Conservation says that 67,762 acres of Alabama were burned by forest or prarie fires during the first 17 days of last month.

This compares with an area of 16,992 acres burned in October, and 20,564 acres burned in September.

The extreme dry spell, which has turned Alabama's timber and grassland into fire hazards, caused Conservation Director Earl McGowin to close temporarily the hunting season in 26 North Alabama counties on Nov. 10, after 88 fires had been reported that day.

Prevent Home Accidents With These Simple Rules

Falls were responsible for almost half of the 29,600 fatalities occuring in homes over the nation last year.

In making this statement here recently, Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, suggested these safety precautions in preventing home accidents.

In the bedroom make sure there is a straight, clear path from the bed to the door. Arrange living room furniture according to travel areas so family members will have unobstructed walking space. Be sure to provide a non-skid mat near the tub in the bathroom.

Tack or cement the kitchen linoleum down flat, and make it a habit to wipe up grease, spilled water, etc., promptly. Have stairs well lighted to expose danger spots, and tack stair coverings securely.

Put in feed crops all land not needed for cash crops and timber.

Report From Your County Engineer

As most of you know your member of the Legislature passed a bill two years ago establishing a unit system in the Road Department. This means consolidating the various districts into a single County Unit, with a registrated engineer in charge of roads and construction of new roads as selected by your Board Members. The engineer is selected by and answerable to your Board and approved by the Alabama State Highway Director I am happy to have been selected.

As the year of 1953 has just closed, I feel it is my duty to give a full report of the year's activities and present status of the County Road Department. It gives me pleasure to do this, for we have had a good year.

Since the beginning of the year, 1953, the Road Department has straightened where possible, widened to approximately 24 feet roadway, placed new drainage with gravel surface on approximately 151.5 miles. Graded, drained, based, and paved between 24 and 25 miles of new permanent type roads, complete with double bituminous treatment. Including all necessary bridges. On maintenance, the County has rebuilt approximately 306 bridges, installed over twenty-four thousand lin. ft. of pipe, placed over one-fourth million cu. yds. of gravel surface and carried on routine maintenance some 1,410 miles of County Roads.

The County has purchased approximately $90,000.00 of much needed equipment, such as shovels, motor graders, trucks, etc. These were bought on highly competitive bids and paid for in cash. The Road Department is now debt free and has a cash balance of some $130,000.00.

One of the County's greatest assets is the Road Department Employees. They are a highly efficient organization with a personal interest in getting Chilton out of the mud, and a determination to do so. They should feel justly proud of the excellent work they have done this year.

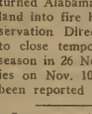
None of the year's accomplishments would have been possible, however, except for the Members of the Board, who have given guidance and encouragement to us and who have refused to put petty politics ahead of honesty and efficiency in County Government.

The outlook for 1954 is bright, many plans for improvements and additional undertakings for the Road Department are being considered by your Board Members. With the eager support of all forward-looking citizens, Chilton Coun should march ahead until she becomes a model for other counties to follow.

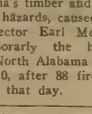
J. D. BULLINGTON,
County Engineer.

4-H Members in Alabama Win Trips

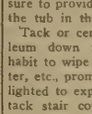
1953 HONORS in Alabama were presented to four 4-H Club members who reported exceptional work in the National 4-H Canning, Farm and Home Safety, Girls' Record and Health programs. Their rewards will be all-expense trips to the 32nd National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. Summaries of their accomplishments follow:



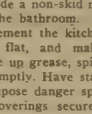
Jacquelyn Thompson



Betty Wise



Bobby Morgan



Hilda Terry

State honors in the 4-H Canning program for 1953 in Alabama were awarded to Jacquelyn Thompson, 16, of Columbia, who put up 1,623 quarts of meats, fruits and vegetables in her six years in club work. Much of the food preserved was grown in her own 4-H garden. Kerr Glass provided her trip to the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Exhibiting her colorful jars of canned foods at the County Fair won her a $25 bond and the title of county canning champion. With the help of her club leader, Mrs. Louis Tillery, she has learned that "I take no better product out of a jar than I put into one." Jacquelyn's canning projects have included meats, chickens, peas, pickled cucumbers, figs, pears and blackberries.

Her all-around outstanding record in home economics has brought a high honor to Betty Wise, 17, of Opp. She has been named state winner in the 1953 4-H Girls' Record program and her reward of a trip to the National 4-H Congress was provided by Montgomery Ward.

During her seven years in 4-H Club work, she has planned and made 380 garments, prepared 980 separate dishes of food, raised 350 chickens, had a garden of two acres, canned 363 quarts and 718 pints of fruits and vegetables, and improved they yard by trimming hedge and shrubs and planting flowers. In sewing, Betty has made everything from aprons to a wool dress; this year she made a pink net evening dress of tiny ruffles from top to bottom. She has presented six individual demonstrations before 160 people on eight subjects, some of which are: "Salads," "Mail Boxes," "Balanced Diet.," and "Christmas Gifts."

Noteworthy results in the 4-H Farm and Home Safety program have been accomplished by Bobby Morgan, 18, of Alabama City, for which he received as state winner the General Motors trip award to the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Bobby has done 182 jobs to make the farm and home safer during his nine years in 4-H.

His safety project was the making of a special pen for an injured bull. For the past seven years he has continued in the project, making a list of things to be done each year. Corrective action has included checking fuse boxes, repairing stove, adjusting tractor and the family car, and construction of a special shed for gasoline storage. In all, he has given 17 safety demonstrations to more than 2,600 4-H'ers, students and others.

* * * *

Achievement in the Alabama 4-H Health Improvement program by Hilda Terry, 16, of Moundville, has brought her state honors and a trip to the 4-H Congress in Chicago as guest of the Kellogg Co., of Battle Creek, Mich. With the held of her 4-H Club leader, Mrs. Charles Kerr, she shared in the responsibility for improving the health of the family and of the commhunity. Mary has been County Health winner in 1951-52-53. She was second place in the state health program in 1952. She taught junior 4-H Club members lessons in health in 1953. This year she started the community phase of her health project by preparing a window display during National 4-H Club Week. She was on a panel discussion on her health project at the meeting of the "Advisors of Youth and Children in Alabama."

All these programs are conducted under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service.

STARS AND STRIPES FOREVER

Good movies are rare—good musicals even more so. Coming to our local theatre downtown this week is a good musical picture. It is the music and life story of John Phillip Sousa, American Composer and Band Master. He was the organizer of the famous United States Marine Corps Band, and was its leader for twelve years. Sousa composed numerous songs, waltzs, operas and orchestra suites, but is best known for his marches. These include Washington Post, Liberty Bell, El Capitan, Emperial Edward, and his immortal Stars and Stripes Forever.

This picture is filled with humor and music everyone will enjoy. The Music Appreciation Club of Clanton urges you to see this picture.—Mrs. W. B. Crowe, Jr., Motion Picture Music.

Despite the expected slow-up in some business fields, you can be certain there will be many demands for increased pay in 1954.

ABOUT 1954 BUSINESS

Dr. Gordon McKinley, chief of the Prudential Company of America's economic staff, says business next year will be at about the same level as this year. These words, from the top economy expert of the nation's second largest insurance company, are newsworthy.

McKinley joins a number of other economists who refuse to believe a serious recession is in store for the American citizen in 1954. Many economic experts, perhaps a majority, are predicting business in general will be five to ten per cent below the 1953 level, and have been predicting a recession for at least a year now.

However, McKinley says there will be a sharp increase in consumer buying in 1954 and that this increase will offset expected decrease in Government spending, home building and other capital expenditures. In addition to his prediction on general business activity, Dr. McKinley foresees the following developments in 1954:

The number of workers employed will be up slightly, not down, in 1954. The average work week will decline slightly, although average wages will increase about six cents an hour. This increase in average wages is one of the reasons Dr. McKinley predicts that consumer buying will increase in 1954.

Since taxes will also be down, this will also increase disposable income, and will probably hike the total amount spent by consumers next year by five or six billion dollars. Dr. McKinley says consumers will enjoy a better market next year than they have since 1950, and predicts a decline in prices of two per cent.

ROADS BADLY NEEDED

Chairman Edward Martin, of the Senate Public Works Committee, says the United States needs $40,000,000,000 worth of new roads to bring its highways up to scratch. This outlay for highways is necessitated by the tremendously increased vehicular traffic using the public highways today, Martin says.

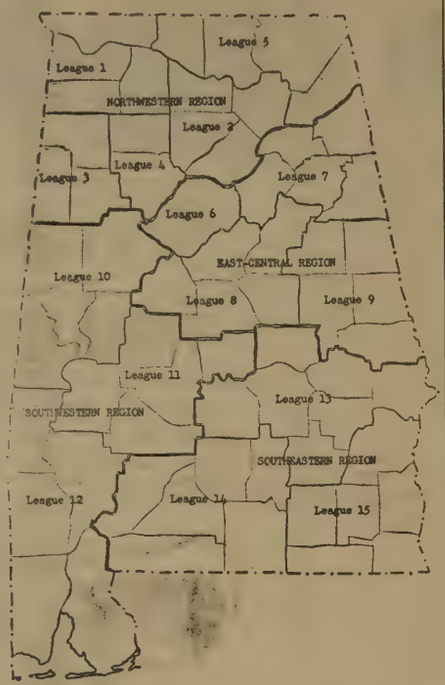
The Republican Senator from Pennsylvania says the capacity of our highway system has fallen behind the times. For instance, there are today almost ninety per cent more trucks in operation than there were just eight years ago, at the end of World War II. The estimate is that there are 9,000,000 trucks now in operation, compared to 5,000,000 in 1945.

Moreover, the net total of motor vehicles operating each year increases by approximately 3,000,000. Unless highway construction is boosted considerably, the need for better highways will continue to increase at a faster pace than those highways are provided.

Perhaps the cost of defense is the main reason many states, and the Federal Government, have not been able to make adequate outlays for highway construction and maintenance. Regardless of the reason, however, the time is approaching when something must be done and Martin believes that the traveling public should pay for new roads. He estimates that Federal, State and local governments collect over $7,000,000,000 in automobile and truck registration fees alone, and in taxes from the production and sale of automobiles, tires, gas and oil.

One plan advanced would be that to use about half of this money each year to bring the nation's highways up to current needs. In ten years, almost $40,000,000,000 would have been spent and the nation's highways might then be adequate for U. S. needs. If this is done, the local, State and Federal governments must earmark at least half of their revenue for road construction and maintenance. We join Martin in endorsing the idea.

Changes Made In Jr. Baseball Program



In anticipation of the 1954 season, precedent-shattering changes have been made in The American Legion's Junior Baseball program, it was announced today by L. W. Montgomery, Jr., of Pepperell, State Junior Baseball Chairman. A product of the Legion's Junior Baseball Committee, in session in Birmingham recently, a complete administrative reorganization is the most outstanding feature of the change.

The new set-up, according to Chairman Montgomery, will divide the state into four Regions: Northwestern, East-Central, Southwestern and Southeastern. For the first time in the history of Legion baseball in Alabama, four teams will be introduced into the State finals.

Last summer, three Area champions, Birmingham, Cullman and Montgomery, vied for the State Junior Baseball crown. In 1954, the championship teams of the four new regions will have a shot at the coveted state title.

Citing the need for tighter league play, Montgomery stated that fifteen leagues have been organized to replace the old nine-district system. Jefferson County, with fourteen teams in three divisions in play last summer, will constitute a league in itself. Other leagues have been set up as compactly as possible.

Each League and Region will be headed by a Junior Baseball Commissioner, who will supervise scheduling, play and administrative matters. The Commissioners will handle arrangements for elimination tournaments in the Leagues and Regions, preparatory to determining the entries in the 1954 State Junior Baseball Championship Tournament.

The Legion's State Junior Baseball Committee includes Chairman Montgomery, Vice-Chairman Ben Holmes of Cullman, E. W. Robinson, Jr., of Pepperell, John W. Daniel of Montgomery; David M. Vess of Montgomery, Administrator; E. Hewitt Pearce, Birmingham; Harold Irby, Prichard; Jack Moore, Opelika; R. Bruce Jones, Tuscaloosa; James M. Harbuck, Jr., Ensley; and John S. Foster, Birmingham.

Cotton Growers Can Get Ready Now For 1954 Crop

Auburn, Ala.—Early stalk destruction is one of the cheapest and best soil improvement practices farmers can use, says O. N. Andrews, API Extension cotton improvement specialist.

He lists these advantages in getting cotton and corn stalks on the ground now to rot before next spring. (1) Early stalk destruction reduces sheet erosion caused by heavy winter rains. (2) When litter is finely cut or disked in, it will decay rapidly.

(3) Next spring land will be easier to break and harrow, and a better seedbed can be prepared. (4) A better planting job can be done so farmers will get more uniform stands. (5) Stalks cut now during the slack season will allow the farmer more time for other jobs during the rush season next spring. (6) Stalk destruction also lowers the number of cotton insects going into hibernation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FEED THE FLOCK OF GOD

Yes, Mr. Preacher:

God is asking you like He asked Peter in John 21:15-16-17: Each time he asked him (Peter) if he loved him, He told him to feed his lambs, and his sheep.

Now, He is asking you if you love Him to keep His Commandments. John 14:15.

He that saith, I know Him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a lair, and the truth is not in him. I John 2:4.

He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. John 14:21.

Mr. Preacher, you may not know just who we are (we sheep); we are God's.

How we became God's, God created us in His own image, Gen. 1:27.

Then Jesus said, (I have said ye are God's).

Yes, Jesus said it, the Holy Spirit inspired it, the Psalmist wrote it. Psalms 82:6. (Read verse 1).

Now if you do not believe the above, then read the following:

Is it not written in your law, I said ye are God's?

The Apostle heard Jesus say this. John 10:34-35.

Feed the flock of God. I Peter 5:2.

Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being insamples to the flock and when the chief shepherd shall appear ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. I Peter 5:3-4.

This chief shepherd shall appear on the day of redemption (Luke 14:14), then you will be born of the spirit, receive immortality, Eternal Life, and be God just like Jesus is God.

As we are we are only begotten of God, and have to keep ourselves unspotted from the world (Last part I John 5:18.)

We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not. I john 5:18, first part.

Now this I say brethren that flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God. I Cor. 15:50.

Jesus settled the question when He told Nicodemus we had to be born again to inherit Eternal Life. It surely would handicap any person to be born before the time fixed. Our new body would be Spiritual, mortal man could not see us.

It just cannot happen as long as we are in this mortal body.

Your most humble friend,
LEE A. POPWELL.

AMERICAN HOME WEEK IN ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons has signed proclamations setting aside two special observances for Alabama citizens.

He said the period, November 22-29, would be American Home Week in Alabama. In response to a request by the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs, the governor asked that special emphasis during the period be placed on Sunday, November 29, which has been designated as "We Worship Together Sunday."

The other proclamation established November 29-Dec. 6 as Salvation Army Week.

Persons declared, "the Salvation army banner and the principles of which it stands are mighty bulwarks against spiritual and physical need, and our tribute to The Salvation Army during NATIONAL SALVATION ARMY WEEK is well earned and greatly deserved."

On most farms the first step in making a year-around pasture is the development or improvement of the clover-grass permanent pasture.

Around OUR HOUSE
by Kathryn Tucker Windham

When children go to school, they learn many things besides reading, writing and arithmetic. The six-year-old came home the other day very upset because some older child had told her the Devil was going to get her. It was the first time she had heard of this evil personage, and she was frightened.

I comforted her by trying to explain to her that the Devil got only bad people and that, since she loved God and tried to be good as He wanted her to be, the Devil would not get her. It's hard to explain evil to a child, but I tried to make her understand that only bad people need fear the Devil.

The four-year-old listened silently to the conversation, not saying a word. When the explanation came to an end, he said,

"Well, I like the Devil. I think he's nice."

I was astounded. "Why?" I managed to ask.

"Well," he explained, "the Devil's nice because he catches all the bad people so they won't bother us good folks."

That was an entirely new approach, the first defense I've ever heard for the Devil.

December, as is its custom, has slipped up on me again, giving me that terrible guilty feeling that "Christmas is almost here, and I haven't done a thing to get ready." At least I'm not alone in that feeling: I heard a group of shoppers at the super market (it was food they were buying, not presents) with the same lament this very morning.

Roller skating parties for the grammar school crowd have become very popular in our town, especially as celebrations of birthdays. The children have a wonderful time whizzing around on their skates and work up quite an appetite for hot dogs, cokes and birthday cakes on nippy afternoons or early evenings.

Our neighbor around the corner staged such an event recently, and she solved a problem that has bothered many other hostesses, the problem of who owns which pair of skates.

As each guest arrived, the hostess stuck a strip of adhesive tape under the bottom of both skates and wrote the child's name on the tape. When the youngsters took off their skates at refreshment time, it was simple to match the skates with the proper owners as the children's parents came by to take them home.

We got the six-year-old, the four-year-old and the one-year old all shining and freshly dressed at the same time one afternoon recently to take their pictures for Christmas giving. The four-year-old mugged happily, and we coaxed a grin from the baby, but the six-yeaf-old refused to smile—she didn't want to show the gap where her front teeth used to be.

If the pictures turn out well, there might be extra prints for readers of this column who request them.

Our next door neighbor has made several aprons for gifts this year. Her prettiest ones (the kind I hope to get) are made of navy blue material with cotton lace doilies tacked on them like giant snow flakes.

For a special dessert, core red apples and stuff them with chopped figs, raisins and nuts mixed with a little brown sugar. Bake as usual.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

GOITER

While the huge and very often grotesque looking enlarged thyroid glands are not seen as frequently in recent years, this medical condition known as goiter is still prevalent. Advances in medical and surgical therapy and early detection are responsible for the control of the growth.

The thyroid gland is a butterfly-shaped structure with a lobe on each side of the windpipe and with a central portion joining the two lobes across the front of the windpipe. The gland secretes a hormone directly into the blood stream. Its main function is to regulate the rate at which fuel is burned in the body. In other words, it controls the metabolism of the body.

A lack of iodine in the soil and water of a community results ultimately in iodine deficiency in the residents. The hormone of the thyroid gland contains sixty per cent by weight of iodine. If there is not sufficient iodine in the food intake to manufacture the required amount of hormone, the thyroid gland works overtime and becomes enlarged in a futile effort to compensate for the deficiency. Thus we may have what is known as a nontoxic goiter. The use of iodized salt in one's diet forestalls the development of this type of enlargement.

The toxic or hyperthyroid individual eats large quantities of food. This is burned rapidly, but the resulting energy is dissipated as heat. The patient loses weight and strength in spite of a good appetite. He becomes hot and perspires easily. The heart pumps more rapidly to furnish additional fuel to keep the body functioning. The patient is nervous, jittery and has a noticeable tremor. Another type of toxic goiter is the one associated with "pop eyes." This is called exophthalmic goiter.

Cancer of the thyroid is another type of goiter which is increasing in frequency as people live longer. Most cancerous goiters stem from the simple or non-toxic type, although there are exceptions. The condition is serious, as is every type of cancer; but early detection will forestall hopelessness. Surgery, x-ray management, and the bright potentials of radioactive iodine offer useful instruments in control.

CHRISTIAN COLLEGE DIRECTORS — Joe B. Greer, (standing extreme right) tells the Board of Directors of the Alabama Christian College in Montgomery that certain unidentified friends have agreed to set up a Matching Fund of $40,000 for the school. Montgomery, Ala. — A $40,000 Matching Fund for Alabama Christian College, termed by one school official as "the greatest thing in the history of the school," was announced today.

Joe B. Greer, president of the school's Board of Directors, announced that a number of unidentified "friends of the college" have agreed to match every dollar—up to $40,000—which is donated to the school by June 1, 1954.

"Forty-thousand dollars, successfully matched, will mean $80,000," Greer said. "And that would be sufficient to pay for all our equipment, our outstanding accounts, our mortgage indebtedness and will balance the budget for the 1953-54 school year."

Rex A. Turner, president of the school, was equally outspoken in his praise of the fund announced by Greer.

"This is the greatest milestone that we have reached in the history of the college," Turner commented. "I believe our friends have known of our toils, sacrifices and heartaches in bringing the college to its present place in our society, and I further believe that they will rally to our call to rid the school of all indebtedness and thus put it on a sound financial footing."

Alabama Christian College, formerly known as the Montgomery Bible School, has had a phenomenal growth since its organization in September, 1942.

From a beginning of only 23 students and total assets of $235, the college today has 350 students from 13 states, and its assets are valued at $225,000.

Located on Ann Street, three miles from Court Square, the college prides itself on a record of having never turned away a college student for lack of money.

The campus includes ten buildings, of which five were built exclusively by student labor.

Insufficient Pastures May Cause Overgrazing

A big majority of Alabama farmers overgrazed their pastures this year, reports D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist

Much of this problem of overgrazing, both in 1953 and in other seasons, stems from the fact that many growers do not have enough acres per cow to furnish adequate grazing even during summers when rainfall is normal, believes Harbor

"The answer lies in reducing the number of animals or in adding more pasture acres," says the pasture expert. "Applying the right amounts of recommended fertilizers and using other approved management practices will have a lot to do with getting desired acreage per animal."

Employment Drop Noticed In October

Montgomery, Ala.—State Industrial Relations Director Joe L. Coleman says there was a noticeable drop in employment security activity in October.

Part of this was laid to the closing of a number of local Employment Service offices, plus the loss of experienced personnel. He said the changes were necessitated by a drastic Congressional slash in the department's budget appropriations.

Coleman said that a total of $574,364 in unemployment insurance was paid to an estimated 12,000 persons during October.

Don't Let Influenza Take Your Pig Herds

Now's the time to be on the lookout for hog influenza, warns G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

"Infected pigs are listless and won't eat," he explains. "Other symptoms are loss of weight, fever, labored breathing, watery eyes, and coughing.

"Once the disease appears, it can spread rapidly through your herd. Although pigs with flu seldom die, they may take a week to recover, and there's always danger of pneumonia."

So prevent influenza before you have to cure it, advises Phillips. Don't let pigs sleep outside or in damp, drafty houses. Feed balanced rations and keep animals free of parasites.

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

I HAVE always thought it silly for husbands and wives to fight over a bridge game. I have changed my mind, however, since last night.

We had some friends in and we were right in the middle of a good game—not cutthroat, but good bridge—when my wife jumps up from the table with the remark it's time to serve something to "snack" on.

The cards had just been dealt and with one glance I knew I had a powerhouse. "Not now, honey," says I, "let's finish this rubber."

"Oh, we can play while we snack," says she and trots happily off toward the kitchen.

Impatiently I shuffled my hand. In about 15 minutes she returned with plates of cheese, olives stuffed celery, etc. These she puts on the bridge table. She retreats to the kitchen again and returns with cups and a pot of coffee cream and sugar. These too, she distributes over the bridge table.

"Now," she says, "we can play and nibble at the same time."

Things were all right for the next two or three minutes while we bid. I got it with a grand-slam bid in spades. Then the trouble began. She arranged her cards before her spades on one side of the celery hearts on the other side of the cheese, clubs arranged beautifully around her coffee cup, and diamonds on the very edge of the table, anchored by the olives.

Play began. I reached across to the dummy for a trump, the celery dish skidded and hit the cheese, the cheese bounced toward her coffee cup, the coffee cup sailed across the diamonds and smashed to the floor. The women screamed and jumped and the table danced. Cheese, celery, olives, clubs, hearts and spades tangled. It was impossible to separate them.

And my wife (bless her) can't understand why I blew my top.

Heavy Pruning Reduces Peach, Apple Crops

Auburn, Ala.—Heavy pruning of peach and apple trees will reduce yields, according to John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist.

"Thin bearing peach trees only moderately," says the specialist; "head back the branches, and remove dead or damaged branches. In pruning young peach trees, provide a framework of three to five branches, spaced six to eight inches apart on the trunk, with the lowest branch about 18 inches above the ground."

To prune old apple trees, continues Bagby, remove branches near the ground completely shaded out by those above. Also, prune out dead and broken branches and water-sprouts. In young apple trees maintain a central trunk or leader and prevent sharp crotches by removing limbs that threaten to form such crotches.

Tips From Home Leader On Storing Your Fresh Meats

Fresh meat, a major cost item on the family food budget, needs special attention when brought home from the grocery store.

First, says Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservationist, wipe the meat off and wrap it loosely in waxed paper. The loose wrapping lets some air reach the surface of the meat and the small dryness that takes place helps keep damaging bacteria under control.

After wrapping the meat, store it under the freezing unit of the refrigerator, concludes the home expert. In this way you can keep meat for several days.

. . . . . SECTION OF - CHILTON COUNTY NEWS - CLANTON, ALA. . . . . .

NO GUESSWORK HERE—When Buck Boyd saves a heifer to replace one of his cull cows, he's sure the calf came from a top brood animal. The Sumter County cattleman brands a number on each cow's fore quarter, and when she drops her calf he records the date in his herd book. This gives him a permanent record on each calf at market time. Then when a calf is sold, the livestockman makes a note of the weight, grade and price so he can see just how fast it grew off. This system of checking on his brood cows gives Boyd a chance to cull poor producers, but more important it helps him select replacement heifers from his best cows.

A GOOD START—Holding this youngster is a man sized job. But Buck Boyd, a Sumter County cattleman, likes for his baby calves to be big and husky. He says that's a sign they're off to a good start and likely to make a profitable animal. Boyd uses a number system and herd book to keep check on each brood cow. He saves replacements from only top producing animals.

THE PAYOFF—Through a rigid culling process, Buck Boyd of Emelle has built a fine herd of grade Herefords. The Sumter County cattleman looks over a group of young heifers that'll soon be producing his market calf crop. Boyd has built this fine herd from scrub animals he bought through stockyards. He has accomplished this feat in only seven years by saving replacement heifers from his top brood cows.

Stop Guessing

Keep Records, Save Best Replacement Heifers

HOW well do you know your cows? Can you point out the one that's making you the most money?

Or do you, like many other livestockmen, say at market time, "That's Old Spot's calf. Well, now let's see; it was born some time early last fall. It weighed 475 pounds, graded good, brought 18 cents per pound—uh huh, pretty good."

Well, that's just a wild guess. And maybe if beef prices had stayed up, you'd keep right on making a profit. But now with calves bringing less money, it would pay to look around and decide if Old Spot's calf did so well after all. This may involve some record keeping.

Buck Boyd, who started clearing pasture, smoothing out big gullies, and buying some scrub cattle after returning from the Army in 1946, has developed a system that works like magic for him. And he'd like to pass it along to others.

On his 335-acre farm the Sumter County cattleman carries 110 head of brood cows and maintains an accurate record on each animal.

Here's how his system works: All brood cows have a permanent number branded on their right fore shoulder. When a cow drops a calf, her number is recorded in the herd record along with the calf's birth date. The same system is used on every pair of animals. This identifies calves with their mothers at market time and takes the guesswork out of determining the age of baby beef animals.

Boyd is able to match each one of his calves with its mother without marking them. But, for herd owners who can't do this, he suggests identification by branding numbers on the calves also.

When the calves are sold, each animal's price, grade, and weight are recorded. With this information it's easy for the cattleman to use the herd record and check up on the brood cows when he gets home. And now that he has the exact birth date, grade, weight, and price, he may find that Old Spot's calf wasn't so profitable.

Here's where the record pays off: Boyd uses it in culling his least profitable cows. But more important it also helps him decide what cows he'll select replacement heifers from. Brood stock saved from cows that consistently raise top calves make the best mothers for future calf crops.

The West Alabama farmer is pretty choosey about his brood stock. In addition to their ability to raise a good calf, replacement heifers on the Boyd farm must have good milking qualities, beef conformation, and temperament. The mother of a replacement animal must also be a fast breeder, bringing a calf every 12 months.

Of course, all cattlemen have some goal to work toward, and Boyd is no exception. He thinks if he can grow 500 to 550-pound choice calves in eight months he'll be able to stay in the beef business. And judging from the progress he's making on his ranch, he's going to do just that.

Through his self-devised program of management, Boyd has built a fine herd of grade animals from culls he bought through stockyards. And he has accomplished the job in only seven short years.

Check On Your Hog Type

IN December porkers by the thousands will go into Alabama farmers' smokehouses.

Even for home use the meat type hog is better than the over-fat lardy type. Hog killing time is a good time to check up on your hog type.

Use a yardstick. After splitting the carcass, measure the distance from the aitch bone to the front rib. For a 225-pound pig, it should be 29 or 30 inches. Then if the back-fat averages about one and one-half inches in thickness, your type and feeding program are pretty good.

A Full House

"I'm just now learning how to make corn." Those are the exact words of E. M. Monicus, one of Randolph County's top growers of this important grain crop. When asked how he went about making his 126-bushel per-acre yield, the Almond community land tiller said plenty of fertilizer and a good hybrid variety were responsible for his success.

Here's how he applied the plant food for his corn crop. Before planting time 800 pounds of 0-12-20 were broadcast on the land. Then at the time the seed were put into the ground, 400 pounds of 4-10-7 plus 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate were applied. Later in the season the corn received another 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate as a side-dressing. The four-acre field of Pfisters 631 was planted on the second of June. (Monicus said this is too late but was as early as he could work in his wet bottom.)

Eight acres of other corn on the place are averaging 80 bushels per acre. The Randolph County corn grower has this advice for other farmers: Don't try to use hybrid seed from your crib for planting. He says that on a small area where he tried it this year, his corn yield was cut at least one-third. Looking at the crib full of corn are Sam Jones, Jr., Randolph County agent, (left) and Monicus.

Along the Way with P. O. DAVIS DIRECTOR, A.P.I. EXTENSION SERVICE

A big question confronting every cotton grower is this: How will I vote in the cotton acreage referendum of December 15? Will I vote for marketing quotas or against them?

With marketing quotas, prices will be supported at 90 per cent of parity, but acreage planted will be less. Secretary Benson set 10,000,000 bales as a 1954 production quota on 17,910,488 acres. This compares with 23,737,000 acres planted in 1953 and a production of 15,596,000 bales.

This year Alabama farmers planted 1,580,000 acres; their allotment for next year is 1,118,000 acres.

The national acreage reduction in 1954 compared to 1953 will be 24.5 per cent—29.3 per cent for Alabama.

The farmer will choose between fewer acres with higher prices and unlimited acres with much lower prices.

In the past cotton growers have voted in a big way for quotas. They voted in 1949 for the 1950 crop year and the vote was 94.4 per cent for quotas. Previously, quotas were used for the five-year period of 1938 to 1942.

THE Alabama Coliseum at Montgomery has been dedicated. It is a gigantic and impressive structure with a show ring in the center, 8,526 seats around it, and show facilities underneath. In addition, there are adjacent livestock barns.

Construction has required several years at a cost of $2,850,000. Wide use of its facilities is being invited by Commissioner of Agriculture Frank Stewart and others. The Coliseum will be used for educational events, shows, fairs, sports, athletics, entertainment.

A. W. JONES, our state leader in marketing, finds many interesting facts about farmer cooperatives. One is that in the ten states with the highest agricultural sales farmers did $1 worth of business through their cooperatives for every $3 in total sales. In the ten states having the lowest agricultural income, they did only a $1 worth of business through cooperatives for every $6 in total sales.

It appears, therefore, that farmers having the highest agricultural income do more business through their cooperatives in buying, selling, financing, and servicing themselves.

Doing more business through their own organization is one way farmers may relieve part of the price squeeze. A cooperative is a sound way to do business that helps farmers and non-farmers alike.

NOTHING good can be said about rats. They are mean, ugly, dirty, hateful, destructive, and expensive. It's a reflection on us that we continue to tolerate them.

We need to do more rat killing. The best way to do it is for all farmers in a community or area to work together. It's helpful for a few farmers to kill rats, but if his neighbors don't carry out the practice all premises will become reinfested.

Talk it over at your next community meeting. Ask your county agent for information about warfarin and other things needed to destroy these pests.

Don't forget that rats are much more expensive to keep than to kill. Your rat's board bill may be much bigger than you think.

Baldwin Group Named Top HD Club In The State

EARLY in October members of the East Fairhope Home Demonstration Club received some exciting news. Their club had been named Alabama's Home Demonstration Club of the Year.

This Baldwin County group was acclaimed winner over some 1,450 clubs competing for the honor this year. And a quick glance at their 1953 record proves why these industrious ladies led the big race.

The club's 23 members stressed work with youth more than any other one phase of their program "because children are the most important crop we raise." Two 4-H Clubs—one for boys, the other for girls—are sponsored by the women. Enrolled are 32 youngsters who receive help with farm and home projects plus training in a wide range of other activities. Twenty-two 4-H'ers were given a 10-lesson course in Red Cross first aid, and all the youngsters participated in various recreational programs directed by the homemakers.

As another campaign the 4-H Club House, an attractive and spacious building used by all Baldwin HD and 4-H groups, was painted recently by the East Fairhope members. The floors were sanded and refinished without any outside help. Keeping the club house in order was no small task in itself, for last summer it was the campsite of 500 boys and girls from six counties other than Baldwin.

As one part of their service to others, these community leaders gave to needy families 53 pairs of shoes, 50 packages of food, 1,038 garments, and 2,000 quarts of milk. To crippled children in a hospital they sent 36 dozen homemade cookies, three boxes of candy, 16 pounds of pecans, and $16 in cash for toys. Over 200 magazines were distributed to people unable to buy them. The local P.T.A. was assisted in raising funds for playground equipment, and a special donation was made to the cancer research fund.

Besides helping others, the ladies learned something new about homemaking at each of their monthly meetings. Tips on everything from dress fitting to refinishing furniture were passed on by the various club leaders. Equipped with these helpful hints, members made 403 garments, grew gardens valued at nearly $1,500, canned 2,011 quarts of food, and froze 8,435 pounds of food. This list of home improvements is long and impressive.

A bit unusual was the club's dress pattern exchange department. The leaders donated patterns no longer needed and borrowed patterns contributed by others. This, explained the women, lowered the cost of home sewing and gave members a wide choice of patterns.

The high HD honor came to East Fairhope's club at an appropriate time: for this year the group is celebrating its 25th anniversary. "We only hope," said Mrs. Krhut, "that during the next quarter of a century we can do even better in our service to the entire community."

The HD Club of the Year contest is sponsored annually by the Alabama Farm Bureau Insurance Company. The top award was a $100 Defense Bond and an expense-paid trip to the Alabama Home Demonstration Council meeting in Biloxi, Miss.

A GOOD SAMPLE—Bill Durden, 13-year-old member of the Hanover 4-H Club, shows County Agent J. R. Hubbard a sample of the cotton from his one-acre patch. The Coosa County youngster fertilized his Coker 100-W cotton according to recommendations and poisoned four times, which accounts for his bale-per-acre yield. Young Durden is also very active in leadership activities in his club and is serving as reporter for the organization this year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Durden.

Expert Advises

Shop Early For Best Seed Corn

FARMERS who wait until the last minute to buy their seed corn may find the cupboard bare when they go to their dealer for recommended hybrid varieties next spring. Here's why:

Ralph R. Jones, API Extension seedsman, says that hybrid seed production has increased each year. However, he explains that production of the best adapted hybrids hasn't quite kept up with the pace set by farmers who use the seed. For example, Alabama farmers planted 50 per cent of their 1953 corn crop with hybrid seed. This compares with only 39 per cent in 1952, 26 per cent in 1951, and 17.5 per cent in 1950. At this rate of increase more than 60 per cent of the state's 1954 crop will be planted to hybrids. This is also true in other southern states.

"A brief look at the seed supply side of the story shows that the 1953 production for seed of recommended varieties throughout the South will be sufficient to plant only about 40 per cent of the 1954 crop," says Jones. "Obviously, only the 'early bird' will get an ample supply of the best seed."

Jones' report continues: "The above information is based upon a survey conducted by seed certification officials August 1, 1953. The survey, covering nine of the southern states, reveals an estimated production of 740,000 bushels of seed of recommended hybrids from the 1953 crop. According to U.S. D.A. census figures, these nine southern states will plant about 16 million acres next year. Assuming that a bushel of the hybrid seed will plant about six acres, the total seed production will plant 4,440,000 acres—roughly 40 per cent of the 16 million acres to be planted.

"The survey also shows that the leading hybrid variety of which seed are being produced is Dixie 18. It is followed by N. C. 27."

Jones concludes his report on hybrid supplies for 1954 by advising late shoppers who find the seed supply of recommended varieties exhausted to ask their dealer about round grades. They are in less demand and the chances are good that he will still be able to get them for you. Properly planted, they'll give you the same results as the more expensive flat grades. This wise choice will help stretch our short supply of good hybrid seed and up the 1954 corn yield.

TIPS TO BAKERS—Lots of folks in Clay County recently got a first hand look at ways to cut their baking costs. Ladies from the Delta Home Demonstration Club exhibited home-candied fruits that may be used when baking time comes around. Their display took top honors at the annual HD achievement day program in Ashland. Some of the ladies who helped set up the exhibit are, left to right, President Mrs. O. K. Hardy, Mrs. W. D. Rooks, Mrs. J. C. Sims, and Mrs. Excell Dial.

Tips To Truck Crop Farmers

EVERY truck crop grower should ask himself these questions: (1) What crops paid best in 1953? (2) Why did some fail? (3) What can be done to improve production next year?

With the costs of growing vegetables at near record levels and the price of farm products considerably below those of a year ago, John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, reminds farmers that they need to plan their program carefully. It's essential to make the largest possible yields at the lowest cost per unit, he says. This means growers cannot get by with slip-shod methods.

The specialist says these practices will help you make big yields of high quality vegetables.

1. Plant adapted crops on your best soil. For most vegetables this will be fertile, well drained, sandy loam.

2. Use the best seed available of a variety well suited to your locality. Cheap seed usually result in poor stands or weak plants and prove to be the most expensive in the long run.

3. Use plenty of the right kind of fertilizer. Fairly high rates of commercial fertilizer usually give good results on vegetable crops. It is best to apply part of the complete fertilizer before planting and part three to four weeks after planting. Side-dressing with extra nitrogen is needed to keep the plants growing and in a thrifty condition as they reach their maximum size and begin making the crop of fruit. This is especially important on sandy soils or following heavy rains which tend to leach out the nitrogen.

4. Organic material is especially beneficial on truck crops. Animal manures are best; however, a good legume crop turned under gives satisfactory results. Organic material improves the land's physical structure, helps conserve moisture, and adds some plant food to the soil.

5. Research has shown that irrigation pays excellent dividends on most truck crops, especially when used with high rates of fertilizer and organic material. In Alabama there usually are two to three periods each year when rainfall is less than one inch over a three to four-week period. These dry spells may seriously reduce yields or even cause total crop failure.

6. A good program of insect and disease control is essential to successful truck crop production. Dusting or spraying before the crops are attacked is usually better than waiting until the crop is damaged. The saying "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is very true in the case of controlling disease and insects on vegetables.

Bagby concludes his advice to truck crop growers by saying that even though prices continue to decline next year, farmers who do a good job are likely to make a nice profit on their labor and investment.

LITTLE FELLOW, BIG CORN—Murphy Mostellar's crib is just as full of corn as his arms are, now that the crop has been gathered. The Randolph County youngster made 205 bushels on his two-acre patch this year. Although he has been in the 4-H Club only two years, he is off to a good start. He followed Assistant County Agent Haskell Lumpkin's recommendations and has seen the first link of his project pay off. Young Mostellar hopes to reap equally as good results with the next phase of the business—feeding his grain to beef calves. The Coker 811 corn received 500 pounds of 6-8-4 at planting time and 700 pounds of nitrate of soda as a side-dressing. Plants were spaced about 14 inches in the row. The young farmer is the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Murphy Mostellar of the Midway community.

SEED growers who plan to produce certified seed for the coming year should not wait until the last minute to complete plans for their operation. The selection and purchase of seed stock, land selection, and the studying of certiifcation regulations are jobs which need attention now.

FOR the last three years broilers have brought low prices during January. Growers who have broilers in houses should make a special effort to produce them at the lowest possible cost. To do this it is necessary to get broilers to consume as much feed as possible in the shortest length of time. Keep the birds as comfortable as possible and reduce feed waste to a minimum. Use plenty of feed hoppers and never fill these hoppers more than half full.

MAKE your plans for next year's laying flock. Place order now for chicks to be delivered in late December, January, or early February. A high quality laying strain of chicks may be hard to get when you want them, so place orders well in advance of time chicks are actually needed.

PRUNING and spraying are December jobs for orchardists. It's best to prune trees before applying dormant sprays. Removing part of the tree cuts down on the amount of spray needed and saves time required to apply it. Prune to develop the proper shape and a strong framework in young trees; this practice will stimulate growth of fruiting wood in trees of bearing age. Dormant sprays using lime sulphur or oil emulsion are needed to control scale. Ask your county agent for Extension Circulars 447, "Pruning Fruit Trees," and 448, "Fruit Pest Control."

USE the soil testing laboratory at Auburn next year. Competition makes it necessary to do everything possible to grow crops and pastures economically. When you make fertilizer plans, do it on the basis of soil tests. This enables you to apply the Experiment Station recommendations more accurately according to your soil and crop needs.

NOW is a good time to start planning your fertilizer program for 1954, In January and February you'll need fertilizer for pasture, sericea, kudzu, and small grain. Then in a few weeks you'll want it for row crops. It's always a good idea to plan your fertilizer program ahead and work out arrangements with your dealer to supply your need. Early buying is a good way to get the kind of fertilizer you want when you need it.

DECEMBER is also a good time to set new fruit trees. Early setting allows the soil to become firmly settled and some root growth to start before spring. Extension Circular 446 lists varieties of fruit adapted to Alabama and also instructions for setting young trees. This publication is available at your county agent's office.

ALFALFA FOR THE DAIRY ANIMALS—A firm cornerstone in any efficient dairy business is the feeding program. Realizing this, Ruben H. Patterson (left) of Athens Rt. 4 tells County Agent F. K. Agee that fertilizer is the key to maintaining a good stand of alfalfa or any other grazing crop. As they look over a few plants taken from the five-acre field of alfalfa, the Limestone County UTD dairyman explains that 100 pounds of potash, 450 pounds of phosphate, 500 pounds of basic slag, and all the chicken manure he can get are the life-blood of his 79 acres of pasture. The acres provide plenty of green and dry roughage every season in the year for 54 top producing grade Holsteins.

SANITATION MEANS A LOT—Ruben H. Patterson (above) demonstrates the reason for the low bacteria count in his milk, which ranges from 200 to never more than 5,000. Besides thoroughly washing each animal's udder at milking time, the Limestone County dairyman scrubs all the milk vessels, disinfects the milking parlor, and maintains a bangs free herd. Last year each animal in the herd averaged producing a little more than 7,000 pounds of four per cent butterfat milk.

With cotton acreage allotments in effect for 1954, you'll want to use every good production practice possible. And one of the most important of these is the use of good pure seed of the recommended variety. When a high yield per acre is at stake, you just can't afford to gamble with planting seed which may be all right.

To make sure you get the best planting seed available, buy early, use certified or registered seed, read the analysis tag carefully, noting the germination shown, and be sure that the seed have been treated.

It's Good Business

Limestone Farmer Likes Dairying

NINETEEN years ago a few bunches of grass and three dairy animals barely supplemented the farm income on 80 acres of land near Athens.

But today those same acres stand out as one of Limestone County's most productive farms of milk and money—quite a change from the original set-up. And a glance at the first page of progress, which was written in 1934, tells why.

In the early days Patterson planted a few acres to cotton and a patch of corn. These crops plus a pen of hogs, some beef animals, and the three dairy cows rounded out his farming operation. "Not such a good set-up," he admitted, "but after all, that was my beginning—not my destination."

The crop-livestock operation moved along smoothly—but closely—until 1945. By that time the farmer's five sons and two daughters had completed their high school education and were leaving home. This called for a change. With no help Patterson wondered what he would do about planting, cultivating, and harvesting. A keen thinker, he solved the problem in no time at all. Going into the dairy business—all the way—was his solution.

When Patterson set an ultimate goal of producing nothing but nature's most perfect food, he began by turning cotton and corn stalks. Then he seeded the area with improved varieties of clovers and grasses and dosed them with liberal amounts of recommended fertilizers. Every time he got ahead of his animals with a few acres of grazing, he added another cow to the herd. In today's grade A herd there are 54 animals—27 milkers, 11 dry cows, 10 yearling heifers, five heifer calves, and one purebred Holstein bull.

Furnishing these animals with plenty of green feed and all the hay they can eat are 79 busy acres. That's right, 79 of the 80 acres are in pasture. Patterson says a dairy farmer has "just gotta leave enough room for his home and barns." When passers-by drive through Patterson's community, they can't miss his neat white home framed with the flat green mat of clovers and grasses.

They see plenty of evidence of fertilizer and proper grazing management, too. In fact, Patterson attributes much of his dairying success to the amount of plant food he applies to his pastures and the way he allows the animals to graze them. Every year, on each acre, the UTD farmer puts down 100 pounds of 60 per cent potash, 450 pounds of 18 per cent phosphate, and 500 pounds of basic slag. This is done in late summer and early fall when he has spare time and when the fields are usually dry. To this mixture Patterson also adds a liberal supply of poultry manure. This year he has already put 250 dry tons on his acres. The dairyman says his fertilizer program also controls weeds.

Patterson's method of cross-fencing allows him to control grazing on the six individual areas. From them excess growth is cut for hay. This year on 64 acres of orchard grass and ladino clover, 10 acres of fescue and ladino, and five acres of alfalfa, he cut and stored 2,700 70-pound bales. The alfalfa was cut three times and the rest came from a single cutting of the other crops.

Weather causes little trouble at hay curing time. In the hay barn is a 36-inch fan propelled by an electric motor that artificially dries the green forage. The machine will reduce the moisture content of 40 tons of baled hay in five to eight days. When hay is dried loose, it's put in the dryer the same day it's cut. The propeller forces natural air up through a tunnel, a slatted floor, and through the forage.

Last year this consistent supply of green feed and hay supplemented with other commercial rations pushed the average production per animal to a little more than 7,000 pounds of milk having a four per cent butterfat content.

Recently Patterson leased an additional 100 acres, and he's making every effort to have the last line in his progress report read something like this: I now own 80 acres of land and am milking 50 top producing dairy animals.

SETS SIGHTS HIGH—Martha Boyett of Rockford Rt. 2 enjoys being a 4-H'er. This fact is clearly illustrated by her constant interest in the rural youth organization. Now a student at Auburn, the Coosa County lass is continuing her 4-H career as an active member of the college 4-H Club. During the nine years she was a member of the Rockford Club Martha carried out a bevy of projects. One of her favorites was sewing. Here she demonstrates how easy it is to make a straight seam. Her records also show that she was outstanding in foods, canning, home improvement, room improvement, poultry, and yard improvement. Because of her accomplishments in these fields Miss Boyett won the state's best record contest for girls in 1951. This isn't the end of her 4-H trail either. This year she is competing for honors in the national 4-H achievement contest. Martha is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Boyett.

Recipe For December

HOW about rehashing that dessert menu for for the coming holiday season. Chances are, you've been giving the family the "same old things" all these years and they're getting tired of them.

For a peppy treat that has a "different" taste, Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, suggests an angel pie. Here's one easy to whip up that will make an excellent substitute for fruit cakes and other rich desserts.

ANGEL PIE

4 tablespoons cornstarch	1½ teaspoons vanilla
¾ cup sugar	1 baked pie shell (9-inch)
1½ cups boiling water	½ cup whipped cream
⅜ teaspoon salt	Nuts, fruits, chocolate or peppermint
3 egg whites
3 tablespoons sugar

Mix cornstarch and sugar in saucepan; add boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and clear (10 to 12 minutes). Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff. Add 3 tablespoons sugar and vanilla, beating until egg whites are creamy. Pour hot cornstarch mixture slowly over egg whites, beating continuously. Cool slightly and fill pastry shell. Cover with whipped cream and sprinkle with chocolate, nuts, fruit, or peppermint. Make two hours before serving.

THE JOB'S EASY NOW—Cotton picking wasn't so easy on the J. E. Phillips farm until they bought a mechanical harvester this year. This new machine operated by T. L. Phillips gathers a bale per hour and makes the job much easier and faster than picking by hand. T. L. says the giant picker will enable them to grow their big cash crop cheaper too.

LOOKS PRETTY GOOD—Although the grade of machine-picked cotton is not quite as good as that gathered by hand, J. E. Phillips of the Calcedonia community says it isn't too bad. The Cherokee County farmer (right) tells County Agent J. J. Young that this sample will grade middling after it's ginned. Phillips and his son grew 150 acres of bale-per-acre cotton this year. They believe they could handle 200 acres of the crop now that they have solved the picking problem.

TO MARKET, TO MARKET—It's only been an hour since this giant machine started picking this bale of cotton. That's why J. E. Phillips likes it so much. The Cherokee County farmer says even though the grade of his machine-picked cotton is lowered some, he makes up the difference in price by saving so much on the cost of picking by hand.

Turkey dressing can be labeled and stored in one package or several packages.

KNOWS THE SECRET—When it comes to making lots of corn, C. E. Brannon of Ragland seems to have a special secret. The St. Clair County farmer has a 22-acre field on which he expects to make 75 bushels per acre. Brannon (left) and County Agent H. L. Eubanks look at a big ear of grain that's typical of the whole field. The corn will be harvested and fed to hogs this winter. When asked his trick of making corn, the farmer said he just used plenty of fertilizer. Each acre got 400 pounds of 6-8-4 at planting time and 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate as a side-dressing.

Alabama Gets New Elevation Map

WANT to know how far your farm is above sea level?

According to Frank Stewart, commissioner of agriculture, many rural people are asking that question these days.

To meet these requests, the Alabama Department of Agriculture recently completed a map that shows in color 500 elevations ranging from sea level to 2,407 feet—the highest point in the state. From this map you can tell fairly accurately the elevation of your farm.

The map was prepared by L. G. Brackeen, chief, Soil Survey Division, Alabama Department of Agriculture, under the supervision of Commissioner Stewart. It is available to anyone upon request from the commissioner of agriculture.

Material and information furnished by the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Surveys and railroads made publication of this chart possible.

Meat shoppers are one-stop folks. The National Livestock and Meat Board found that 86 per cent of all customers buy most of their meats in one market. This, according to the board, is probably a much higher percentage than would apply to shoppers in other food store departments.

Wood is the No. 1 crop growing on Alabama soil. Trees, most of which are planted by nature, sell for more money than cotton, or livestock or any other crop grown in Alabama.

Cotton Pickers Are Here To Stay

WHAT farm boy working in a cotton field under a broiling September sun hasn't wished for a mechanical picker?

Although it seemed beyond the realm of possibility that a machine would ever roll down the rows and gather the snowy white fiber from the sticky burs, all rural youngsters kept right on hoping. And maybe some of those boys who knew the backaches and heartaches that go with picking cotton were responsible for the invention of today's gadget that's appearing on more and more farms.

Now that mechanical harvesters are here to stay—many farmers agree this is right—it's going to be necessary to make some changes in the production of Alabama's biggest cash crop. And farmers need to plant their cotton with this fact in mind.

Research has proved that machines do their best picking job when plants don't grow too tall and dense. This means planting more stalks per acre—around 40,000 have proved successful. Thick cotton also causes the bolls to form higher off the ground—another advantage for the harvester.

Here's how one of the leading cotton farmers in Cherokee County feels about his new picker. Mr. J. E. Phillips, of the Calcedonia community, who with his sons grew 150 acres of bale-per-acre cotton this year says he thinks most farmers will come to this method of harvesting. He believes it's necessary if the South is to keep its place in the cotton production world. Mr. Phillips points out that it's impossible for hand labor to compete with the machines. When a picker can gather a bale per hour, it's hard to believe that any farmer wouldn't like to have it in his field, he explains.

The North Alabama cotton man realizes that machine-picked cotton is not as clean and will not turn out as high quality samples as that gathered by hand, but he does not think the lower grade hurts a producer too much. The amount saved in reduced labor cost more than offsets the decrease in price due to lower grades. In some cases, the speed with which a machine gathers cotton might enable a farmer to pick his crop ahead of bad weather. Hand labor is often too slow to gather it early enough in the season to stay ahead of rainy weather—another cause of lower grades. This tends to offset the difference in grades of hand-picked and machine-picked cotton throughout the season during some years.

Another thing in favor of mechanical harvesters is that one farmer can grow a lot more of the crop. T. L. Phillips, who farms with his father, says he thinks he'll be able to grow 200 acres of cotton now that he has solved the picking problems.

They plan to use machinery all the way next year. The crop will be planted thick and flat cultivated so the field will be left smooth. About the only thing they'll need hand labor for is hoeing out some weeds. They're glad cotton chores on their farm have been made lighter too.

So even though it's been a long time happening, the very thing that little boys dreamed of many years ago has at last come to pass.

The Record

Prices Decline But --- Farmers Had Fair Year

By A. W. JONES
API Extension Marketing Specialist

AS the year closes, most Alabama farmers are finding they haven't had such a bad year after all. (There are some exceptions.) In fact, many of them are discovering that they came out pretty good this year considering the cost-price squeeze they've been in.

It's true that the cost of goods farmers buy hasn't come down in proportion to the decrease in farm prices. On the average, farmers have received 92 per cent of parity for their total products sold—a nine per cent decrease over last year's markets.

Many products have sold far below parity, while others have been above the so-called fair price. Beef cattle are a good example of farm merchandise that took a serious nose dive in price this year. They are selling for about 76 per cent of parity now, compared to 111 per cent a year ago.

Cotton is selling for about six cents per pound less than it brought last year. Other products such as soybeans, peanuts, sweetpotatoes, wholesale milk for all purposes, turkeys, and broilers have sold for moderately lower prices. Corn, cottonseed meal, and other feeds are cheaper, too, but this is in the Alabama farmers' favor for they use more of them than they grow.

Looking at the bright side of the picture, they'll find that hogs have brought 20 per cent more this year than they did last year. Eggs have also been higher throughout the year, and with feed costs down poultrymen have had one of their best seasons on record.

Even though broilers and turkeys sold a little cheaper this year, reduced feed costs have been favorable for the producers.

Another factor affecting the farmers' income was the quantity of products they had for sale. Taking this into consideration, they find that good yields of many crops helped make 1953 a fair year for the men on the soil.

Corn this year is setting a record per-acre yield—production is nearly double that of last year. The state's cotton crop is about 100 thousand bales more than it was a year ago. And wheat production has more than doubled. Farmers produced nearly six million bushels of oats, compared to about three and one-fourth million last year. And the production of potatoes, sweetpotatoes, soybeans, peanuts, and grain sorghum is considerably larger than that of last year. Fruit and vegetable yields have also been good. A record crop of pecans—estimated at 21 million pounds, 50 per cent larger than that of 1952—is being harvested.

Pastures are the only crops producing less than last year's record. Their condition on October 1 was estimated at 66 per cent, compared with 68 per cent a year earlier.

So, from a yield standpoint, farmers have had a very good year.

It's true that many farmers had difficult problems this year, and they will, no doubt, face possibly more serious production and marketing adjustments in the years ahead. That's why they need to give serious thought to improving their future operations.

SHE'S PLENTY SMART—One of the most active members of the Larkinsville 4-H Club is Carolyn Travis. Although the pretty young miss joined the club only last year, she has already served as reporter and sewed herself right up to first place in the local junior apron and dress revue. Later Carolyn captured second place in the county junior apron and dress revue. Evidently, the young seamstress, who also carries a grooming project, has learned quite a lot in her personal relations project too. The Jackson County youngster was recently elected president of her local club for the coming year. Miss Sara Jacks, assistant home agent of Scottsboro, shows Carolyn how to make her clothes look their best when they're freshly ironed.

Four-H Home Management Profitable For Parents Too

A 4-H Club project, originally designed only for home management experience, turned into a profitable enterprise for Jo Ann Bartlett of Wedowee.

Last summer the Randolph County girl made an agreement with her parents to do the cooking and housekeeping—just for the experience. Jo Ann knew that to do a good job with her club training she'd have to work out a system. So she made out a day-by-day meal plan for each week. Next she fixed up a food budget. To make the most of her household allowance, the young homemaker bought nearly all of her week's groceries at one time. This eliminated extra trips to the store.

After counting up her expenses, Jo Ann discovered each week that she had been able to save part of the money. Of course, that was her good luck, for her parents had agreed that all the extra cash she saved was hers to keep.

How did the meals turn out? Her mother and father agreed that she served them excellent meals all the time and didn't waste any food. In fact, she tried lots of new recipes during the summer and found several ways of dressing up left-overs to make them tasty treats.

The young farm girl doesn't stop with her cooking and house keeping chores either. She is an excellent leader, according to Home Demonstration Agent Billy Cotney, and is now serving as president of her local club and vice president of the county council.

In the field of project work she has a long list of achievements. Such activities as canning, cooking, sewing, poultry, and personal grooming have been her leading home projects. Another honor that came to the hard working miss this year was being named county dairy maid.

A member of the Randolph County High 4-H Club, Jo Ann is the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bartlett.

OKRA SUPPLEMENTS FARM INCOME—John McClendon (center) of Ft. Mitchell explains to V. O. Deloney (left), county agent of Phenix City, and Clifford Nix, a produce merchant of Columbus, Ga., that the variety of okra can mean the difference in making or losing money. The Russell County farmer has found out during his 13 years of producing the crop commercially that it pays to satisfy Mrs. Housewife. He plants the long green velvet variety in four-foot rows after the danger of frost is over, leaves the stalks about two feet apart in the drill, and fertilizes and cultivates it like he does his cotton. There's no need for an insect control program. The harvesting operations get underway about the first of July and continue until the first frost. The annual yields, which depend a great deal on the amount of rainfall, net about $250 on each of the 12 acres. Nix furnishes McClendon with a ready market for his crop and says he can sell okra from 40 acres.

LESSON IN HOME MANAGEMENT—Jo Ann Bartlett isn't doing her school work here, but she's learning a valuable lesson all the same. The Randolph County 4-H'er is working out the family menu for a full week, which was part of her money-saving plan when she took over the home chore last summer. Her parents agree she did an excellent job of planning and cooking their meals. In addition to the training Jo Ann received, she made some extra money by saving part of the weekly allowance for meals. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bartlett of Wedowee.

Improves Home The Family Way

No wonder the women in Russellville have named their club The Better Homes Home Demonstration Club. Mrs. McKinley Daily (left), who put her name on the membership book a little more than a year ago, has already refinished the floors of her new home. And as Mr. Daily put sheet rock in her living room, she followed him with a paintbrush. The Franklin County lady has a new back porch and has redecorated the outside of her house with shingles. Mrs. Daily, who has been a member of other home demonstration clubs in the county for 25 years, tells Assistant Home Agent Frances Parsons of Russellville that her project will not be complete until she has a brand new concrete front porch and a new roof on the house.

Watch Your Eyes

Use Proper Lighting For Best Television Reception

HOW about the lighting arrangement for your television set? Are you satisfied with the results you're getting? Or does the glare make you look like Gloomy Gus?

It's possible, says Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, to work out a system that's easy on the eyes and at the same time permits a clear picture.

Don't make the mistake of having the room entirely dark. This, explains the home leader, tires the eyes like looking at the oncoming headlights of an automobile driven by a thoughtless motorist. To avoid this sharp contrast between the screen and the dark room, use subdued general lighting.

Low, soft, indirect lights placed at the back, sides, or above the set will balance the illumination from the screen. When lamps are used for room light, it's best to have medium to dark shades, rather than white or light colored ones. Miss Mitchell points out that many lamps, both table and floor models, have three-way switches so they can be turned low when the television is on. Keep this point in mind also: The lamp should be placed so light will not be reflected onto the screen to cause a bright spot and conceal part of the picture.

Miss Mitchell concludes her advice to television owners by saying that daylight viewing also calls for some light adjustments. It may be necessary to install curtains, drapes, or venetian blinds to prevent light from shining directly on the screen and reflecting into the viewer's eyes.

MILK MAKER—This trench silo full of good sorghum silage saved the day for Wilse Daniel of the Napolean community. In September when dry weather withered his pasture, the Randolph County farmer just opened up his big "hole in the hillside" and started feeding his animals some of the aromatic ration. And the cows kept right on giving milk. The East Alabama dairyman says he's sold on the value of silage in a milk production program and intends to keep right on feeding the crushed feed during the winter while his cows are on green grazing crops. Of course, he will reduce the amount. Relatively new in the dairy business, Daniel started out with grade animals. But he plans to build up a good milking herd by breeding his best cows artificially. "Before too long," says the ambitious dairyman, "I hope to have most of my 111-acre farm converted into pastures. But I'm going to save some room to grow sorghum silage for drought insurance."

CATTLE GRUBS CAN BE CONTROLLED by proper treatment at the right time. Experiments have shown that rotenone sprays, dusts, or washes are effective when applied after the grubs have made small holes in the skin on backs of the cattle. Recommended rates are as follows: Spray—10 pounds of five per cent rotenone powder in 100 gallons of water; wash—one pound of five per cent rotenone powder and one-fourth pound of soap to one gallon of water, dust—two per cent rotenone powder.

SHELLED CORN STORED at moisture contents of 12 per cent or less has kept without loss in quality for a year. But results show that it is risky and uncertain to store shelled corn at higher moistures. To prevent losses to insects, store the corn in a structure tight enough to permit fumigation. If already stored, corn should be checked for moisture content to be sure it will keep safely.

NEW PEACH VARIETIES RECOMMENDED for home and commercial planting in Alabama include Dixired, Raritan Rose, Fairhaven, Loring, Southland, and Vanguard. Dixired is a very early yellow clingstone. Raritan Rose is an early white freestone. Fairhaven, Loring, Southland, and Vanguard are early midseason yellow-fleshed freestone varieties showing great promise. Redcap and Coronet appear very promising and are suggested for trial on a small scale.

SOME OF THE MAJOR PROBLEMS that peanut producers in Southeastern Alabama are facing include possible further reductions in acreage allotments on peanuts to be picked or threshed, high production costs, high labor requirements, maintenance of satisfactory farm incomes, and maintenance and improvement of soil resources. Farmers, therefore, must seriously consider all possible ways of increasing production efficiency, and lowering costs of production. They must also keep in mind the addition or expansion of enterprises to supplement peanuts and/or shifts to alternative enterprises that may completely exclude peanuts from individual farm programs.

DESPITE INCREASED SALES TO CONSUMERS in recent years, most of the milk used in the state as bottled milk and cream was obtained from year-round sources of supply in Alabama and in adjacent states. As long as economic activity is maintained at its present level, a growing urban population and increasing per capita consumption probably will result in further expansion in Alabama markets for fluid milk.

If on that table grim and bare
I find a bowl of turkey hash.

Mr. Charlie said that a goat was sold down there for $17.00 and a mule for $14.00. What he wants to know is: If that's the condition after only one year of Republican rule, what's it going to be after four years?

Guess this is as good a place to make a correction as another. In our article on the Bank of Maplesville the other issue we had the Bank's total assets as $1,600,000. That was an error. The total assets of the Bank of Maplesville at this writing is $1,060,000 which difference is over a half million dollars and is not hay. Mr. Maples also states in his letter of correction that the founding date was September 9th, instead of 19th, which in our opinion makes little difference. What's ten days in 34 years.

We will not publish her name as she asked that we withhold it, but she complimented the boys in the mechanical department of the News on their ad composition and typography. And, by golly, we things so too. Anyway, lady, thanks a million!

Roy Mahan told us the other day about someone seeing a sack of dog food in the back of his car. You know Roy keeps about 15 Beagle hounds. They asked him why in the world he didn't keep a hog instead of feeding all of those dogs. Roy told them: "If you ever find a pig that will chase a rabbit I'll buy him."

"HOW MANY SAFE WALKING DAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS?"

Montgomery, Ala. — That's a question that might be expected to confound the weatherman himself. But Earl M. McGowin, chairman of the Alabama Safety Commission — the man who asked it—claims every walker in Alabama can supply his own answer.

"I'd like to say to everybody in this state: 'Every day can be a safe walking day for you if you make it safe.'"

It's McGowin's belief that pedestrians don't take their own safety seriously enough. They expect motorists to look out for them all the time while they take every unnecessary risk, he said.

"Walkers are particularly careless at Christmas time. They're so preoccupied with shopping and holiday plans that they give no heed to getting to their destinations safely. They walk with vision blocked by embrellas or piles of packages and cross streets without looking for oncoming cars. How can they expect to stay alive?"

McGowin and the Safety Commission joined the Alabama Safety Council in appealing to walkers to stay safe at Christmas by observing these simple rules:

1. Stay alert. 2. Don't obstruct your vision with umbrellas or packages. 3. Don't hurry. 4. Cross only at crosswalks, and look well for oncoming and turning traffic.

For an extra special flavor, roll a tablespoonful of cinnamon and drop it into the cup before pouring in hot cocoa.

Workers Census To Be Taken This Month

Special questions on part-time workers will be asked in addition to the usual inquiries on employment and unemployment in the December Current Population Survey, according to District Supervisor, Mrs. Ruth O. Jones, of the U. S. Census Bureau's district office at Birmingham, Alabama. The survey will be conducted in this area during the week of December 14.

The purpose of the special questions is to provide information on the number of people who work part-time, the reasons for their short hours, and how many want and could accept full-time work. This information, along with similar data collected in previous surveys, will make possible accurate estimates of employment conditions in the Nation, indicating how many persons work part-time from choice and how many do so because of economic factors, such as material shortages or layoffs.

Current Population Survey interviews in this area are conducted by Mrs. Pauline Nivens of Clanton, Alabama, and Mrs. Gertrude Eiland of Marion, Alabama.

Isabella Junior Class Presents "Special Delivery"

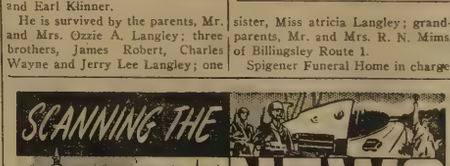
On December 4, 1953, the Junior Class will present Robert Ray's newest and most novel comedy, entitled, "Special Delivery," at Isabella High School.

This play has been chosen by the local group because of its very "humanness," and different plot. At some time later in our lives we have all lost a valuable letter. But supposing that letter contained a check for two hundred dollars when you needed just that amount in order to take your sweetheart to the big Junior League Ball? Suppose that said sweetheart was a very flighty young lady and had threatened to go with your hated rival if you couldn't dig up the cash?

Suppose you had given the letter —unopened—to a friend, thinking it contained a mere five dollar bill. Then, when you realized your mistake, you learned that your friend had taken a boat across Lake Michigan, to be gone over the week end?

Well, these are just a few of the mixups and laughable situations in "Special Delivery." Events happen so rapidly, and so many innocent characters become embroiled before the missing letter is eventually found, that an audience will be kept laughing half of the time, and in the throes of suspense the rest. If you want good, clean amusement, and an evening packed full of genuine enjoyment, chalk up the date, December 4, 1953, and remember the place, Isabella High School.

The characters are the following: Polly Rambeau, a stenographer; Ruth Dean Bray; Ruby Gershwin, a debutante, Edith Leach; Peggy James, Poly's friend, Joyce Davis; Angie, a cleaning woman, Marlene Wright; Mrs. John Jacobs, Jaspers, three times married, Dorothy Collins; John, an electrician, Bud Roper; Mike, a janitor, Leroy Kelly; Waiter, Paul Franklin; Everl Stone, a friend of Monte's, George White; Monte Bryan, a young attorney, Pat Webster.



LAST week the background of the Harry Dexter White case was discussed in this column. Attorney General Herbert Brownell charged that the Truman administration was lax in its handling of the case and implied that the former President's actions were harmful to the security of the United States

At this point the House Un-American Activities Committee entered the picture by subpoenaing Mr Truman to answer charges before it that he had been lax in his handling the case. Mr. Truman accepted the subpoena, but later refused to honor it on the grounds it would shatter the constitutional doctrine of presidential independence of Congress

Up until this point Attorney General Brownell had been telling his side of the controversy, that is, that White was a Communist spy and the Truman administration kept him in office even when his officials knew of his (White's) Communist activities

Then Mr. Truman made a radio and television speech, that has been termed one of the most bitter in the history of American politics, in which he told his side of the story. Truman claimed White was kept in the government to further aid an F. B. I. investigation o° White and a number of other persons under suspicion at that time. He told of talks between high government officials concerning the case and said the final decision was his own.

A discussion of this case, about which volumes have already been written, could go on forever. Who was right and who was wrong? Who has won the battle of words"

Not even the most ardent Democrats will deny that their party has not emerged unscathed from the argument. But on the other hand many Republicans believe that Brownell weakened his cause when his charge against Truman was ultimately limited to "laxity" instead of betrayal as was so strongly hinted in the beginning

One Republican observer has said that Brownell made the wrong charge at the wrong place at the wrong time.

Those observers who have looked as objectively at the case as is possible under the circumstances, believe that no one has won. And, they add, the American people have lost. The wild charges of one side, the wilder charges on the other, the hysterical cries of politicians at all levels of government, have convinced most Europeans, including those friendly to the United States, that Americans have gone crazy

And the average American on the Main Streets of the nation is so disgusted with the exhibition that he is ready to wipe off the whole thing "as just politics"

It seems that no one has won and the American people have suffered.

INSURANCE FOR NON-DRINKERS

Recent reports have told of a new automobile insurance company in Chicago designed to serve only abstainers. In other words, when buying an automobile insurance policy from this company, the applicant must sign a statement he does not use alcoholic beverages, and that he will not do so during the life of the policy.

The new firm's rates are reported about twenty-five per cent below average rates for liability, and property damage, coverage. They are about twenty per cent under the average for collision coverage, and therefore those who can obtain insurance from this company do so at substantial savings.

It has long been a known fact that non-drinkers have a small percentage of automobile accidents and that they actually pay some of the cost of insurance for habitual drinkers and those who drive and drink, and therefore have more accidents. The efforts of the new Chicago insurance company is one to give non-drinkers a rate commensurate with their collective accident record.

The new Chicago firm is following an example set in Iowa recently, where that firm also wrote low-cost policies for non-drinkers. Evidently the success of the Iowa firm, which has now been operating in the black for six years, encouraged the founders of the Chicago firm, and it may be that soon many companies will be competing for the insurance of non-drinkers, or drivers without accidents to their credit, both of which driver classes are entitled to insurance rates adjusted to their accident records.

BRITAIN - FRANCE SHOW THE WAY

Between England and France, in the English Channel, are a group of islands known as the Minquiers and Ecrehou. For some time now, both the British and the French have claimed ownership of the islands.

But, instead of letting this issue flame up into an emotional threat to peace, the British and French agreed to submit the question to the International Court of Justice at The Hague.

Unlike the dispute between the Yugoslavs and Italians over Trieste, and between many other countries over minor territorial areas, the British and French decided that their relationship with one another was more important than the status of the minor territories involved in the dispute. Actually, the islands are worth little, if anything.

Accordingly, in 1950, the British and French submitted their dispute to the International Court. Recently, the Court ruled out the French claims to ownership and confirmed British rights to the islands. It was announced that France would respect the Court's award, and recognize the Minquiers and Ecrehou islands as British territory.

What the world needs are more examples of this kind and less examples of the tension and strife now occurring over the disputed city of Trieste.

THE $64 QUESTION

FIN-FAN ITEMS

Gordon Gauntt, Tallassee, won the September monthly cash prize, and Lester A. Johnson, Wilsonville, was awarded the October prize of the month. Both winning entries were selected from a long list of very close competitors by official Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest Judges.

As this newsletter goes to press the 1953 contest will have terminated, November 30, and no entries can be made after this date. The Judges will hold their annual meeting early in December and decide the outcome, all winners will be promptly notified. This year's contest has been highly successful and as in the past four years, has proven the great fertile lakes of the Coosa - Tallapoosa Rivers provide Alabama sportsmen with bountiful fishing pleasures. Each succeeding contest year has seen a growing enthusiasm in the contest and through this medium places like Lake Martin, Lake Yates, Lake Thurlow, Lake Lay, Lake Mitchell and Lake Jordan have become known and made popular to the fishermen of the State. If you feel that through the efforts of the Alabama Power Fishing Contest you have derived the slightest measure of benefit, then, we feel that our goal has been accomplished.

Reports and late November entries are pouring in and those as of today are as follows:

Lake Martin—

John W. Hodnett, Manager, Kowaliga Beach Resort, near Alexander City, reports: J. W. Richardson, Joe W. Richardson, Jr., 13, and Millard Yates, Alexander City, fly fished Big Kowaliga Bay and boated 21 Largemouth Bass. Joe Jr. was responsible for eight of the total caught which included the largest catch, 4 pounds, 2 ounces. Millard Yates picked up the next largest 3 pounds, 8 ounces.

Contest Judge, Thomas Thompson, Gene Brown, Dr. J. J. Walls, all of Alexander City, and Marvin Mariani, Birmingham, teamed up to bring in one of the largest strings seen there since the big spring catches. They had an assorted string of 53 Bass and Stripes that tilted the scales some 57 pounds. Dr. Walls had an added thrill when he hooked a 4½ pound Largemouth Bass, the largest catch of the day. The thrill and sweat came when the good Doctor's Lazy Ike pulled loose from the leader and was caught by the trailing spoon attached to his line. After about five minutes play Doc was able to boat his "Whop Sided" catch, the Bass that was caught twice and DIDN'T get away. Some of the Stripes on the string went as high as 2½ pounds.

W. L. Pemberton, Manager, Lake Hill Inn, at the River Bridge below Alexander City, reports: Adrain Jones, Fairfax, used a Dive Bomber and Ikahatchee Creek to catch a nice string of Largemouth Bass, his largest was 7½ pounds. William Price, West Point, Ga., used the same combination as Jones and his best Bass weighed in at 8 pounds even.

Lake Lay—

Edgar Hardiman, Manager, Riverview Fishing Camp, above Lay Dam, near Clanton, reports: L. B. Rainey, Jr., 2503 South 11th Avenue, Birmingham, had some fun with a spinning outfit when he hooked a 5½ pound Smallmouth Bass.

Lake Mitchell—

Raymond Wyatt's Fishing Camp on Walnut Creek, near Clanton, reports: Ximon Taylor, 132 S.W. 14th Place, Birmingham, brought in a string of Bass in, all caught with a spoon as bait. His best was a 4 pound, 13 ounces Largemouth Bass.

Lake Jordan—

H. C. Blackwell's Fishing Lodge, Shoals Creek, near Holtville, reports: Mrs. I. C. Gantt, 816 Pelham Street, Montgomery, had good luck with live minnows and fishing deep in Shoals Creek. Mrs. Gantt caught a large string of very nice Crappie, her best was 1½ pounds. William B. Adams, Jr., 3671-A Southmont Drive, Montgomery, used a gold spinner to hook several Stripes. His best whopper was 2 pounds, 2 ounces.

H. H. Sears, Manager, Swayback Bridge Boat Dock, Sofkahatchee Creek, near Wetumpka, reports: G. D. Arnold, 620 Madison Avenue and L. A. Minor, 3677 Oak Street, Montgomery, creeled 34 Crappie and 8 Smallmouth Bass with live minnows as bait from the waters of Sofkahatchee Creek.

Chief Alapoco Says: Some of the year's best fishing lies ahead, during the cold winter months. Occasionally the water will be stained, cold and rough, so wear your life preserver at all times and catch a big one SAFELY!

THIS WEEK in Washington

Peace Prospects Dip—
Kremlin Personalities—
Red Army Gains Influence—
U. S. Business A Puzzle—

Washington — Hopes for peace with Russia, which soared just after the death of Joseph Stalin, have sagged badly in Washington in the last four weeks. The Russians wanted the Korean fighting stopped in March, April and May. They were somewhat hesitant to risk a war with the United States at that time.

Uncle Sam had the hydrogen bomb and the Communist didn't. It was like 1946 all over again—when the United States had the atomic bomb and the Russians had not yet developed the weapon.

Like 1946 the bomb was the major stop sign holding back Communist aggression against the free world.

Now Kremlin leaders know they have the hydrogen bomb secret too. There are reports, not confirmed, that the Russians have discovered a cheap and easy way to make the hydrogen bomb. U. S. scientists know that is quite possible, technically, although they doubt the reports for several reasons. But it is possible.

The Reds solved the hydrogen bomb puzzle after the Korean fighting ended, and Premier Georgi Malenkov waved the olive branch for two months after assuming power. Malenkov at that time announced his program would be one of more and cheaper goods for the people, and he aimed the economy in that direction.

There are signs in the puppet countries this program is official policy. But the Red Army is reportedly insisting the armed services get more attention. Malenkov, not a military man, is successfully maintaining his hold on the throttle, but with civilian secret police chief Beria out, and a new man in his place, the Army leaders carry more weight.

The next purge or in-fighting, in Russia may be between the Army and Balenkov. Either Malenkov is getting bolder as a result of Russian H-bomb progress or he is being prodded by the army. Whatever the motivation is, Washington knows that relations have suddenly worsened.

And despite the U. S. rearmament program, which has the nation at least partially prepared, the Reds still have a great preponderance of military equipment especially artillery, tanks and fighter planes. It will be recalled that Nazi Panzer General Heinz Guderian estimated Red tank strength in 1933 at 10,000—an estimate which caused ridicule at the time.

But when Hitler believed the rosier figures of other subordinates in 1941 and attacked Russia (with 3,100 tanks), he found to his dismay the Russians tanks not only outnumbered him, but the T-34 was better than anything the Germans had. Hitler told Guderian months later he probably would not have started the war had he known the true strength of Russia.

Today, Russian tank, plane and artillery strength are still secret but the Reds possess a huge edge over the United States. Now that they think they are close at U. S. heels in the field of atomic energy, they become dangerous, bolder and could become very much more aggressive.

The latest Kremlin note to Washington reflects just such a trend. Moscow was more blunt than in months, possibly years. The administration, from the President down, noted the icy tone with dismay. And peace prospects, which many thought brighter when Joe Stalin died, suddenly disappeared around the corner.

Conflicting estimates on next year's business activity continue to come into Washington, and out of Washington. In recent days there have been several bright predictions from the business world to back up official Washington pronouncements that here will be no serious drop in the nation's economic health.

Some of the more recent predictions estimate consumer spending will be up next year over 1953 totals. And 1953, has been a record year for most businesses. But since taxes will be lower and average wages higher, it's likely that consumer spending will also be higher next year.

The question is whether reduced government spending will offset this change, more than offset it, or prove a lesser influence on the national economy than the higher wages and lower taxes. One clue might be found in the attitude of many of the country's big companies. Spokesmen for Sears-Roebuck, many of the biggest insurance companies, Macy's and others have all said recently that 1954 looked like another good business year to them.

PLEASE BE THOUGHTFUL

Hamilton, Ohio — Officials of the McGregor Ice Cream Company hope the next burglar who enters their office will be thoughtful enough to close the refrigerator door. One who recently broke into the plant stole only $37.91, but his failure to close a refrigerator door cost the company $30 in melted ice cream.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

IN 1946 Irving H. Tolach, 48 Aster Avenue, Merrick, New York, went through the darkest period of his life. His wife had just undergone a serious operation for incurable cancer. It was only a matter of time, maybe a year for her, maybe two. Irving was stunned; the world had suddenly collapsed at his feet.

In the month that followed, while his wife slowly gained strength life was a nightmare. He couldn't eat, he couldn't sleep. He lost weight. But he always tried hard to be cheerful in her presence. Apparently she noticed that he was making an effort, and said to him one day, "Irving, why are you so unhappy, don't you have any faith in God? If God, in His infinite wisdom decides to take me, why should we question His motives? Our life, here on earth, is such an infinitesimal speck of time, compared to all eternity that we don't have time to be despondent, or unhappy. All our time should be spent in preparation for the wonderful life that is to follow."

CARNEGIE

Her courage was so great, her faith so sublime that it kindled in Irving a similar faith. He felt as though a great weight had been lifted from his shoulders, and that God was carrying that weight. For the first time in his life, he felt the all embracing love of a personal God. His wife died four years later, but those last four years were the happiest they had ever known.

Every night he gets down on his knees and thanks God for the gift of faith. With His help Irving can face all that life has to offer, and beyond that all Eternity, where he is sure his loved one will be waiting.

Thoughts On Christmas—

The year is swiftly drawing to a close and the lovely and joyous Yuletide season is here. Soon the Christmas bells will be ringing, heralding the good tidings of great joy, "Christ Is Born."

This story will be told again all over Christendom, because it is one that never grows old, that no one ever tires of telling. It is the greatest story ever told. It has been a developing miracle, one that still holds our world in wonder. It deals with a day made Holy in remembrance of the greatest gift to the world.

Luke 2:10. Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; For unto you this day, is born in the City of Bethlehem, A Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. From Bethlehem the flame spread East, West, North and South. It lit up the years, perhaps not brightly at first, but with a glow that has never died out. For man this light is a life-giving torch which is at once the memory of the past and the promise of the future. It is a light whose message is the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

This is why we celebrate Christmas. The Christ Child came on earth, not in guest of any material rewards. His objective was a Spiritual one. He was to teach men the truth whereby they would be free, to light the beam that would guide men to their Eternal Home.

This day is more than a time for presents, carols, and all the good things to eat, it is a time for devotion, compassion and tenderness for our brothers.

Library: (Mrs. Harding). Victor wrote "Les Miserables" in 1862. If length of literary life is the criterion by which to judge a book this one must be good.

A list of "best books" published tion gives "Les Miserables" fourth place. Asa Don Dickinson's One Thousand Best Books collected from other lists found Hugo in twenty-five lists. (Shakespeare 34).

This is the book which tells of Jean Valjean finding himself with Cosette in a dead-end street with the police after him. What did he do? The rope in the street light was torn out, tied under Cosette's arms, then with the other end in his teeth, Valjean raised himself in the angle of the wall as though he had a ladder under his feet and elbows. The rest was easy. Cosette felt herself lifted from the ground and was over the top of the wall before the pursuers saw them.

To Our Friends And Customers:

A Message From Dent Williams Motor Co.

In recent weeks you have been reading and hearing of some fantastic new and used car advertising, such as "$500.00 cash if you buy a certain make car; $1000.00 off list price on another make car; Twice as much for used car on another make car." Now, we all know that this is "Come-On" bait, designed for the so-called sucker. It is an established fact that a man in business can't give his merchandise away and still continue to do business. In other words, you still can't get something for nothing. However, some dealers seem to think they can fool the motoring public along this line. These "Fire-Sale and Give-Away" operators are fast playing out.

If you have been buying automobiles from a dealer you have confidence in and feel that you have received a fair deal in the past, then it's better to think twice before jumping at some of these "Come-On" deals.

Now, it is true, that you can get more for your used car on a new 1953 model new car, because in a short time all dealers will have 1954 models on their showroom floor. This has always been the case just prior to showing of new models. There is nothing new about this fact.

So if you are planning to buy a new or used car, it will pay you big dividends to trade where you know you will be given a fair trade. In view of the foregoing we have listed below a few of the used cars we now have on hand; Used cars we believe are honest values, both in price & dependability.

Smith - Cowan Vows Said—

The wedding of Miss Martha Alice Smith and Mr. Frank Dail Cowan of Maplesville was solemnized in a beautiful ceremony on Thanksgiving Day at the Maplesville Baptist Church, at four-thirty p.m. The soft glow of Autumn twilight accented the beauty of the altar which was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and tall candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Werth Foshee, of Charleston, S. C., wore a white embossed faille waltz-length dress which featured a circular yoke scollaped to match the tiny waist on to which was gathered a bouffant skirt. Her illusion veil was adorned with pearls and lace medalions. She carried a white prayer-book marked with an orchid.

Miss Carolyn McGehee of Eufaula was the bride's maid of honor. She wore a rust colored faille dress and carried a fan-shaped arrangement of bronze chrysanthemums. Miss Mary Virginia Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hayes, of Birmingham, was flower girl. Her dress of sea-foam green net and faille was ballerina length. Her flowers were deep yellow roses arranged into a nose-gay. Frank Daniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Daniel, of Maplesville, was ring bearer.

Before the ceremony the candles were lighted by Miss Bettye Barnes, dressed in kelly green antique taffeta, and Mr. Jesse Bedgood, Jr., of Mobile. Music for the ceremony was by Mrs. Richard Speidel, sister of the bride, and Mr. William Harrell of Billingsley, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer," at the conclusion of the wedding vows. The vocalists were accompanied by Mrs. Earl Caver of Billingsley and by Miss Janice Young of Clanton. Mr. Frank Dail of Jackson, Tenn., acted as his nephew's best man.

Reverend W. F. Rasberry of the Maplesville Baptist Church performed the ceremony.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Howard L. Smith, wore a dark aqua crepe with black velvet accessories. The groom's mother, Mrs. McNair Cowan, of Fruitdale chose navy with pink accessories. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

'Twas weeks before Christmas
And all around town,
The buyers, the sellers
Were bustling around.
The folks down at Watson's
And David Lee's too,
Were selling like crazy,
Things just made for you.

And Reedie with his glasses
And Mullins with his Scott,
Were all set to sell us
The things we don't got.
Then all of a sudden
It dawned on the shoppers,
That out of town buying
Don't save many coppers.

They tear down to Daniel's,
To Johnson's and Wright's,
Then over to Upchurch
Till way in the night.
To Britches, to Jimmy's
To Dock Levine's too.
To Elmore's and Claud Craig's
They're all in a stew.

With little ole salesmen
So lively and slick,
They know in a moment
How to sell this stuff quick.
On Thrifty, on Herman
On A&P and Moatts
Low prices this season
Are getting their goats.

And Jitney the Jungle
Is right in there pitching,
Even Burton the Mullins
In his window is stitching.
From the top of the list
To the very last day,
The busy little shoppers
Are all in the way.

But, a Merry, Merry Christmas
With exception to none,
From the Chilton County News,
We hope you get one.

Chambers County Voters Seek Adoption Of Amendment 9

LaFayette, Ala. — On December 15 the voters of Alabama will go to the polls to pass judgment on 10 proposed State Constitutional Amendments. One of these proposed Amendments affects Chambers County only. This is Amendment Number 9.

Amendment Number 9 would give the voters of Chambers County the right to vote in a special election whether or not they wish to levy an additional ad valorem tax not to exceed 5 mills and for a period not to exceed 12 years for a school building and repair program. Two years ago this was a proposed Constitutional Amendment, and although it was approved by the Voters of Chambers County over two to one, it was narrowly defeated in the State as a whole.

Chambers County is in need of additional school buildings and building repairs. Your approval of Amendment Number 9 next Tuesday will allow the good people of Chambers County to decide for themselves if they desire to levy this additional tax on themselves in the interest of their schools.

The Chambers County Committee for better Schools urges you to vote "yes" on Amendment Number 9 when you go to the polls next Tuesday.

Grade Sizes Of Hybrid Corn Seed Not Uniform

Auburn, Ala. — Check the plantability of hybrid corn seed before starting actual planting operations, advises Ralph Jones, API Extension seed crops specialist.

"There is at present no uniformity in grade size terminology," he explains. "For example, hybrid seed producers in North Carolina may have one screen size for large flats, growers in Georgia another, and those in Alabama still another."

This means that even though farmers may have had excellent results from large flats last year, they may be disappointed if they buy next year's seed strictly on the basis of grade size. Until grade sizes are standardized, concludes Jones, check seed carefully before planting.

CAR RADIATOR STOLEN

Dallas, Tex. — Unable to understand why his new car began to heat up, Bobby Storyo pulled into a filling station and asked the attendant to see what was wrong. The man raised the hood to find that someone had stolen the radiator during the night and had rolled on the road.

Use Extra Caution At Christmas Time

Fairfield, Ala. — An incendiary bomb will be concealed in many Alabama homes this Christmas, according to an official of the Alabama Safety Council.

Luther Fuller, chairman of the Council's farm and home division, said the lethal elements of that bomb "will be a tinder-dry Christmas tree, paper wrappings and combustible decorations, and an electrical spark."

In addition to the fire hazard, Fuller said, "guard against falls from littered floors and accidents due to unsafe toys. Falls cause half the home fatalities in the nation, and more than a fourth of Alabama's."

For a safe Christmas, Fuller said the Council suggests using only Underwriter Laboratories-approved lights on trees. Be certain they are in good repair before installation.

Place Christmas trees in a stand containing water, and maintain this later level carefully. This helps keep the tree fresh. A dry Christmas tree can burst into flame in a matter of seconds. Discard the tree as soon as its needles begin to drop.

Concerning gift wrappings, Fuller said it's "just plain fire prevention sense to have cartons handy for scrap gift wrappings. If a smoker is present at this time, provide him with a safe ash tray."

Fuller suggested parents should guard against toys beyond a child's age level, or not safe for him to play with. Toddlers at the hand-to-mouth stage should have only toys too large to swallow and without parts which could be pulled or knocked off.

Dart games, bows and arrows and other such target games should be used only under close supervision of adults until it is assured they will be used safely, Fuller said.

MATCHES, HAYSTACK, CHILDREN

McArthur, Ohio — Seven children, none more than 6 years old, were building a haystack in a pig pen. One little boy had matches and set the hay afire, trapping the other children. Their parents, visiting nearby, hearing their screams, managed to pull five children to safety, but two, Oakey McNealy, 4, fell back into the fire as his parents' hands grasped for him. He burned to death. They managed to see Dolores Ann McNealy, 3, from the pen but she was so badly burned she died in a hospital a few hours later.

Traffic Toll Reaches 700 Over State

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's 1953 traffic toll for the week of December 4 reached the 700-mark, 25 below the score for the comparable period of 1952, Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan announced.

He said the "small margin of 35 last week was cut deeply by our tragic recent Thanksgiving week end, with 17 traffic deaths recorded. We had anticipated eight."

Sullivan re-emphasized earlier appeals to pedestrains and motorists to "look out for your lives — literally!" during the very dangerous month of December. "Christmas shoppers blinded by umbrellas and packages, and in the midst of the holiday rush spirit, lose tragically during December."

He reminded these shoppers that "the best Christmas gift of all is you—safe and sound at home on Christmas morning. Window-shopping for 'holidayngers' is the most valuable pastime a pedestrain can enjoy for the remainder of the year."

"Messiah" Will Be Presented By Montgomery Churches

The combined choirs of Montgomery Churches, 200 voices strong, and the Montgomery Symphony Orchestra will present "The Messiah" at the State Coliseum in Montgomery Sunday afternoon, December 13, at 3:00 p.m.

Robert F. Henry, President of the Montgomery Symphony Orchestra said this week the program will be the largest choral group to present the famous work of Handel in Montgomery.

"The Messiah is great because it is music easily approachable and readily enjoyed by everyone, whether they are accomplished musicians or have little knowledge of music," Mr. Henry said. He explained that it appeals to all people.

Miss Ruth Rankin, international concert artist of Montgomery will sing the soprano. Miss Rankin recently gave a concert in Montgomery that was enthusiastically received by the audience. The contralto will be sung by Miss Martha McClung of Birmingham. Bates Bowers, well known throughout central Alabama for his ability will sing the tenor and Richard Rives, music director at Huntingdon College will sing the baritone.

Mandel began the great work in August, 1714, and finished it in 23 days. The 200 voice choir and the 90-piece Montgomery Symphony Orchestra have been rehearsing more than two months in preparation of the event.

There are 8,000 permanent, comfortable seats in Alabama's new State Coliseum and the building is equipped with theatre type sound. The box office will be open at the Coliseum at 2:00 p.m., but advance tickets can be purchased at Jesse French Piano Company in Montgomery. Admission is $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for students and children.

The Montgomery Symphony stated that it hopes to have the largest crowd ever assembled to hear the Messiah in Alabama.

The couple was married by the Rev. R. E. Wilkins.

1953 Review Shows Many Farmers Are Still Ahead

Auburn, Ala. — A review of 1953 farm operations reveals that many Alabama growers fared pretty well in spite of the current cost-price squeeze.

Hogs have brought 20 per cent more this year than in 1952. Eggs have been higher throughout the year, and with lower feed costs poultrymen have had one of their best seasons on record. Reduced feed costs have also helped make the situation more favorable for producers of broilers and turkeys, which sold for a little less this year.

These are a few of the price summaries made this week by A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist. Continuing his report, the farm leader said, "Good crop yields also helped make 1953 a fair year for men of the soil.

"Corn production is almost double that of last year. Alabama's cotton crop is about 100,000 bales bigger than in 1952, and wheat production has more than doubled. The oat crop is almost twice the 1952 yield, and production of potatoes, sweetpotatoes, soybeans, peanuts, and grain sorghum is considerably larger. Fruit and vegetable yields have been good, and a record crop of pecans is being harvested. Pastures are the only crops producing under last year's record."

On the dim side of the picture, concluded Jones, beef cattle took a serious dive, and cotton is selling for about six cents per pound under what it brought in 1952. On the average, farmers have received 92 per cent of parity for their total products sold—a nine per cent decrease from last year's marasmus.

Local Poet Writers For National Asso.

Montevallo, Ala. — Madge Mullins, 304 - 2nd Ave., So., Clanton, is one of two Alabama College Juniors who have had poems accepted for publication by the National Poetry Association.

Miss Mullins and Marjorie Peregoy, Theodore, both submitted poetry in the Association's annual competition a few weeks ago. This week they received notice that their works would be published in the Association's "Annual Anthology of College Poetry."

Madge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reid Mullins, entered "Hope," expressing the idea that without hope we are nothing, and Marjorie's entry was "Soberano" or "Sovereign," a suggestive poem setting a mood of quiet, deep thought and meditation.

An English major, Madge is a graduate of Chilton County High and takes an active part on the Montevallo campus. She sings in the Glee Club and Chorale, and is a staff member of the ALABAMIAN, college newspaper, and the MONTAGE, the yearbook. In addition, she participated in last year's College Night, all-student dramatic production, and is on the staff of WRSD, college radio station.

The "Anthology," soon to be published, will contain the poems of these two Alabama College students and poetry selections from the colleges and universities over the nation.

Mrs. Dorma Prickett was returned to her home Monday after spending a week in a Montgomery hospital. Her condition is much improved. Martin's ambulance made the trip to Montgomery and brought Mrs. Prickett to Clanton.

LINEN SAFE UNSAFE

Salt Lake City — Reading so much about safe robberies, the co-owner of an ice cream company decided to fool any burglars who might have designs on his safe. He hid more than $200 in a bundle of linen. A few days later, he went to his hiding place. The money was gone but the company safe hadn't been bothered.

DONKEY KILLS BOY

Perpignan, France — Wanting to see what would happen, Bernard Champenois, 12, tied one end of a rope to the tail of a donkey and the other end around his waist. The donkey became frightened and galloped off dragging the boy to his death over 600 yards of rocky ground.

11 Alabama Farm Families Receive Master Farm Family Awards

Birmingham, Ala. — Eleven Alabama farm families have been awarded one of the nation's top farming honors, the Master Farm Family Award, The Progressive Farmer announces today. The South-wide magazine, cooperating with agricultural agencies, is sponsor of the program.

Those honored by the publication this year for their well rounded farming, homemaking, and community life are: Mr. and Mrs. James E. Brady, Perry County; Mr. and Mrs. George L. Braly, Limestone County; Mr. and Mrs. Eldred E. Elkins, Lawrence County; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Henry, Montgomery County; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hill, Talladega County; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hutto, Dale County.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Locker, Lauderdale County; Mr. and Mrs W. M. Pitchford, Henry County; Mr. and Mrs. Amzi G. Rankin, Sr., Marengo County; Wadsworth Brothers, Autauga County; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Wise, Coffee County.

The Progressive Farmer began the Master Farm Family program in the South 30 years ago. "We believed we could render a great service to Southern agriculture in honoring farm families of outstanding merit," Alexander Nunn, editor, says. "In almost every field distinguished accomplishments are recognized and publicly honored. This has not always been the reward of farmers. It was to honor at least a few of our finest farmers that The Progressive Farmer began its Master Farm Family program."

The program is not a contest. Farm families do not compete against each other, but only against high Master Farm Family standards. Nominees will out detailed record books, which are carefully studied by Progressive Farmer editors. All nominees whose records indicate far above average farming and home management practices are visited by editors of the magazine.

Master Farm families are not confined to any size or type of farm—it is neither a reward to big farmers because they are big or little farmers because they are little. This year's families to be honored come from farms from 119 to several thousand acres.

Alabama now lists 50 Master Farm Families. The newly selected group will be honored at a State Award dinner in Birmingham early next year.

Beginning with the February issue of the magazine and continuing through 195, each issue of The Progressive Farmer will carry a well illustrated article featuring the farming and homemaking activities of one of these families.

Prepare Holiday Dinner In Advance Says Expert

Auburn, Ala. — When planning your Christmas dinner, make a list of the foods that can be prepared a day ahead of time.

In offering this advice to homemakers, Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, suggests these day-before jobs to relieve the last minute rush. Stuffing made with bread crumbs, flaky cooked rice, or cornbread can be prepared early and stored tightly covered in the refrigerator. If oysters are to be used, says the home leader, add them just before the stuffing goes into the turkey.

"Cranberry sauce or jelly can be made ahead of time and put in the refrigerator," continues Miss Hulsey. "Likewise, celery, radishes, carrot sticks, and lettuce can be washed the day before and then be kept crisp overnight in the refrigerator. Make gelatin salads early and whip up the filling for pumpkin pies the day before."

A.A.U.W. Urges Voters To Go To Polls Dec. 15

The Chilton County Branch of the A.A.U.W. urges every voter to go to the polls on December 15th and vote for Amendment No. 1. This Amendment, if passed, will permit any registered voter to vote upon payment of two years back poll tax.

Did you know that Alabama is one of five states requiring poll tax; that she is the only state with cumulative features, forcing a voter to pay for every year since he was twenty-one?

This affects all voters, but it is particularly vicious toward women who would like to vote, but are not financially independent.

Many women, now long past 45 would like to vote, but to do so they would have to pay as much as $36.00 back poll tax—if they had never registered.

Are you old enough to remember the depression? Think what one dollar and fifty cents meant to people then. Numbers of women lost their right to vote during those years because they could not afford to pay poll tax.

Our country needs its women voters for women have an intense interest in education and a great civic pride.

The A.A.U.W. urges you to go to the polls on December 15th and vote "yes" on Amendcent No. 1! Help thousands of women to secure the right to vote!

R.A. RALLY HELD

Chilton-Unity Associational R.A. Rally was held on November 30th with the West End Baptist Church Royal Ambassadors from all over the county attended. One hundred and forty-five were present. Mr. J. C. Boockholdt and Mr. Joe Williams, Associational R.A. Leaders, were in charge. The devotional was given by Mr. Joe Williams. The group sang several songs together and then Rev. L. D. Brookshire, pastor of the Liberty Hill Baptist Church, brought the message, using as his text, "Here Is A Lad."

The boys then went upstairs and were served hot-dogs and cold drinks by the ladies of the West End Baptist Church. A wonderful time was had by all present. We encourage those churches in our association who do not have an RA to organize one that these boys might have missionary education.

SHOOTING FOR 108

Adlai Stevenson, defeated Democratic candidate for the Presidency, told an Atlanta group recently he would be willing to shoot a 108, when asked about golf and politics. Explaining this afterwards, he said he meant the Democratic Party went out in '52 and would be satisfied to come back in '56.

The subject of golf became involved when the former Illinois Governor was reminded he was in the President's favorite golfing state. Thus the remark about the 108-score for the Democratic Party.

After visiting in Georgia, Stevenson moved on to Alabama, and other points, in an attempt to strengthen the National Democratic Party ties with the South. During his trip to the South, Stevenson was introduced as the next President of the United States and the next probable President of the United States, and so on. This sentiment is a reflection of the current wave of optimism in Democratic circles, which is probably based on the troubles the Administration has had, thus far, in the farm and labor fields.

There is one big if in the speculation about Stevenson's chances. If President Eisenhower refuses to run for reelection, no doubt Stevenson will have a good chance in the 1956 race, providing he gets the nomination. Having polled almost 27000,000 votes, in losing last year, Stevenson not only set a record for a losing candidate, but received more votes than any winning candidate except Roosevelt in one election, and his opponent in the 1952 race.

CHILD LABOR STILL A MAJOR PROBLEM

Though most Americans might not realize it, the problem of child labor, and of young children leaving school to go to work, is still a major problem in the United States. Those who thought the schools are today claiming all teen-agers will be surprised to find that more children were working in 1950 than in 1940.

The increase in the last decade has been greatest among fourteen and fifteen-year-old children, and today one child in eleven is earning money on his own, whereas, in 1940, only one in twenty-three had a job. Of the one-in-eleven working today, seventeen per cent of this age group are not in school.

The National Child Labor Committee recently reported the attitude on part-time work for teen-agers has changed completely since World War II and that it is now an accepted activity for school children. The Committee's annual report showed that, in the fourteen and fifteen-year age group, the State of Connecticut had the best record for educational attendance and South Carolina the worst.

Some of today's problems may surprise the reader. Approximately 200,000 children are now working and not attending school, according to the National Child Labor Committee report. The report also showed a large number of children carry a work load of thirty-five hours a week and attempt to attend school too. Such a work load is sure to interfere with their proper education, according to the committee.

The committee urges all states to enforce properly the child labor laws, which require children of certain ages to attend schools. Not only should the laws be better enforced, but, in many cases, the laws can be improved, and since the future of this country, and perhaps the world, depends upon the younger generation, better school attendance and better child labor laws will be a good investment in the country's future.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Right now the big calendar on the kitchen door is the most important thing around our house to the children. It doesn't have especially pretty illustrations, and the children have scarcely paid it any attention at all during the eleven months it has been hanging on the door, but now their interest centers on the calendar because it tells exactly how many more days before Christmas.

Every night before they go to bed, the four-year-old and the six-year-old carefully mark off another day and slowly count the days remaining. The one-year-old is plainly puzzled by the nightly ritual, but she watches it carefully as though hoping each night to catch on to its meaning.

Yesterday the four-year-old came in from play to ask again how many more days before Christmas.

"Do you want to know how long before Santa Claus is coming?" I asked him.

"Well," he answered, "I really want to know how many days I've got to be real, real good. I'm getting tired!"

Already the postman is bringing Christmas cards with their messages of holiday happiness. These greetings from friends, many of them with notes telling of family happenings, are one of the nicest of our Christmas customs, and the cards this year are the prettiest ever.

We've been having long discussions around our house about the most effective way to display the cards. Our neighbor around the corner painted a bare tree limb silver, anchored it in a gayly-painted pot and has turned it into a Christmas card tree. As the cards arrive, she hangs them from the silvered branches with pieces of colored ribbon.

Our next door neighbor salvaged huge pieces of cardboard from a box she found on a downtown trash pile. She cut big trees from the cardboard, painted them green and is using them as a background for displaying her cards. She has put a tree on each side of her front door and tapes the cards to them as they arrive.

The neighbor down the street is hanging her cards on red ribbon which she has strung across her living room. She tacked the ends of the ribbons to the corners of the room, putting them high enough so that cards hung on them won't bump anybody's head. She has put small sprigs of mistletoe at intervals along the ribbons for added interest, she says.

The four-year-old and the six-year-old have been busy making Christmas cards for their friends. The six-year-old has made most of her cards by tracing cooky cutter designs and decorating them with crayons and gummed stars, just as she did last year, but for a few friends she has drawn original designs, scraggly but her own.

The four-year-old's cards are simpler: He cuts out pictures from cards saved from last year and pastes them on squares of colored construction paper. He cuts out the words of greeting, too, but, since he can't read, they're sometimes a bit strange, like "Season's" or "And A Very Happy."

Children like to help make goodies for the holidays, and here's an uncooked fondant recipe our neighbor with the big family uses: In large mixing bowl, blend 1-3 cup margarine, 1-3 cup white corn syrup, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Add 3 1-2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar. Knead until smooth. Color with food coloring and use with nuts, candied fruits, etc.

Under The Study Lamp

(By William Crowe)

THE FRUIT OF CONVICTION

"If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones become bread." Matthew 4:3. Satan said that, basing his challenge on the logical presumption that one's claim to power or authority should be substantiated by achievement. He was therefore testing our Lord just at that point, virtually demanding, "Demonstrate your claim by proof that you have supernatural power." Jesus met the challenge, but not by performing a miracle for his own benefit. Selfishness was simply not a part of his nature. The "how" of his proof will be mentioned later.

It is too often the case that a profession of religion is not followed by an effort to prove by actual achievement that the profession is genuine. It is one of the Devil's tricks to deceive people with the idea that religion is a mere sentiment; or that it is simply an agency of escape from fear; or that the life of a believer can be spent in negative complacency.

The Gospel was a spoken word, glad news that a merciful God was spreading abroad, but it was far more than just something to be heard. The closing passage of the Sermon on the Mount is an eye-opener to those who would think of Jesus simply as a "pale Galilean." The busiest life that was ever lived on earth was his. Weariness faced him with unremitting pressure day by day, but with a boldness that amazed the awestruck crowds he drove right on. Fearless and confident was he, for to him the Gospel was no light chaff blown by the winds. It was a whirlwind force that swept through village and capital city, uprooting the complacencies of those that were at ease in Zion. Even in the throes of death on the hideous height of Calvary, he was more dynamic than in his startling and dramatic deeds. Returning to the closing passage of the Sermon on the Mount, hear his assuring word to all who would accept his claim that he was the Son of God; "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man which built his house upon a rock; and the rains descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock". That speaks for Deity, does it not?

Therefore if we are to follow him as the Son of God, we are expected to prove our religious conviction by our achievements in propagating the Kingdom. That is, if we have real convictions. Wherever His word goes through the agency of his followers, it should prove to be a fire on earth, kindling a conflagration that cannot be extinguished. We are to persuade a carping world that this Jesus of Nazareth was no fanatic carpenter, but One who proved Himself to be the Eternal Son, commissioned of His Father. That is our claim and should be followed by action.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

WHILE Wanda Wisniewski, 3907 Yolando Road, Baltimore, Maryland, was an army nurse overseas during World War II, she had the good fortune to be reunited with her two brothers who were also serving with the armed forces overseas. Four weeks later she had the terrible misfortune to lose one of her brothers; ten weeks later she lost the other brother.

The news of these two tragedies in such quick succession, stunned her. Never before had life dealt her such a blow! And now she didn't know how to cope with it. She became bitter, despondent, and her grief was inconsolable. She worried, too, about her mother who was so many thousands of miles away, and whom she felt must be prostrate with grief.

CARNEGIE

One day the Chaplain stopped by to see her, and noticing her bitterness asked her to pray, to pray for the grace of perfect resignation to God's will. That morning she went to the chapel and prayed. After leaving chapel she felt calm. It was then that she decided that she was going to try to accept the inevitable. She said to herself that she must stop brooding. In order to do that she had to keep busy. So she got into uniform and reported on duty. That day and every day thereafter she made sure that her days were crowded with plenty of work and other activities.

It wasn't easy at first. There were many times when she felt herself crying on the inside, but she made sure that she was always laughing on the outside. And it was then that she realized the true meaning of the line: "When you cry you cry alone. But when you laugh the whole world laughs with you."

Persons Says Record Speaks For Itself

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Persons has denied reports Alabama cities and towns had a hard fight getting laws through the 1953 legislature.

Declaring that "the record speaks for itself," Persons pointed out that more than 150 bills directly affecting municipalities were passed. All 31 bills on the program of the Alabama League of Municipalities were placed on the special order calendar of the House, and all but three minor ones were signed into law.

"All these bills were passed in the final days of the session," Persons said, "and I could have killed any or all simply by a pocket veto. I signed every single one."

SPORTS CORNER

This an' That

The Philadelphia Phillies gave Bill Nicholson, one of baseball's best liked players, his unconditional release, closing a career that started in 1936. The 39-year-old outfielder said simply, "I ran out of gas as a player" . . . The NCAA put its stamp of approval on eight post-season football games—Cotton Bowl, Dallas; Gator Bowl, Jacksonville, Fla.; Orange Bowl, Miami; Refrigerator Bowl, Evansville, Ind.; Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif.; Sugar Bowl, New Orleans; Sun Bowl, El Paso, Tex., and Tangerine Bowl, Orlando, Florida . . . Tom Fool, the seventh leading money winner, retires from the racing world with $570,165 in earnings. He did not race as a three-year-old . . . Charlie Dressen has a precedent in baseball—he is the first man in history ever to actually resign as manager of a major league championship club when he refused to sign a one-year contract. He found the security he was looking for when he signed a three-year contract as general manager and field manager of the Oakland Acorns of the Pacific Coast League.

BEST GOLFER . . . Ben Hogan, winner of Masters, U. S. and British Open championships, was named 1953's "professional golfer of the year" for fourth time in the six years award has been made. Hogan got plurality of 748 votes over Lew Worsham.

THERE's one sure way to get yourself knocked on the head. Play some of your boyhood tricks on your wife.

For instance, my wife has a horrible time, I must admit, getting me out of bed every morning. She begs, threatens and finally storms. At this third stage I usually get up.

One morning this week, however, I slipped out of bed as soon as she called the first time. I arranged the pillows under the covers and waited.

She returned in a few minutes and threatened. "Get out of that bed," she screeched. "You make my life miserable every morning by causing so much trouble. If you're not up in five minutes you'll be sorry."

In five minutes she returned "Get out of that bed," she screamed, and yanked at the covers. The silence that followed was enough to give a fellow the willies.

I stuck my head out of the bathroom door and said, "Hello dear."

"Beast," she screamed and threw the pancake turner which she had carried from the kitchen

I didn't duck in time and the heavy handle caught me right between the eyes. A knot as big as an egg popped out.

"Serves you right," she said and flounced toward the kitchen.

The people at the office think she hit me with a flat iron.

Teachers Receive Small Boost In Salary

Montgomery, Ala. — Some 23,601 Alabama teachers will receive boosted pay checks in mid-December in compliance with the measure sponsored by Gov. Gordon Persons to give the instructors surplus funds in the Alabama Special Educational Trust Fund.

Prior to action by the 1953 legislature, the money had gone to the State Building Commission for capital outlay purposes.

State Finance Director D. W. Hodo said that around December 15 the teachers will receive an additional $63, each one's initial share of $2,974,067, being distributed this year. The cash comes from a $6,759,244 surplus in the Trust Fund.

He said a similar payment, slightly larger, will be made to the teachers next June 30. Hodo said that according to present figures, each public school teacher will get $126.01 this year, and the same amount next year.

In addition to the public school teachers, instructors at the state's institutions of higher learning and trade schools will get a part of the surplus that was in the ASETF at the end of the 1952-53 fiscal year. Total to be divided among this group is $405,554, with a like amount available for next year.

Similar payments will be made to the public school and college and trade school teachers in the 1954-55 school year.

SS DEFICIT?

The Administration's best hope for the fiscal 1955 budget is a deficit of $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000—attainable only if spending can be cut almost $6,000,000,000 from the current rate. A high administration official, in making this prediction, said that obviously a big part of any $6,000,000,000 saving would have to come from national security spending, and is not yet in sight.

ADVENTIST CHURCH

1. What sets forth the believer's faith in the resurrection?

Ans. "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we should walk in newness of life." Rom. 6:4.

2. What does the Christian do to show he believes Christ died for his sins?

Ans. "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come." 1 Cor. 11:26.

Note: Burial and Resurrection in the baptismal waters sets forth the believer's faith in the resurrection of Christ. Observing the Lord's supper sets forth the believer's faith in the death of Christ. We are not told to keep Good Friday in memory of Christ's death and neither are we told to keep Sunday in memory of the resurrection.

Reminder Issued Company Employers On Employment

Birmingham, Ala. — Employers who plan to hire teen-age boys or girls for temporary or part-time jobs during the coming holiday season were reminded today that they are subject to the child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, if the youngsters work in establishments shipping merchandise or producing goods for interstate commerce.

Regional Director of the U. S. Labor Department's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions in the Southeastern States, Homer E. Krog, pointed out that employees in central warehouses, servicing several stores operated as retail establishments, may be covered by the minimum wage, overtime and child labor provisions of the Federal law.

In all establishments engaged in interstate commerce, a 16-year minimum applies to work in general occupations and a minimum age of 18 applies to eleven hazardous occupations, including motor vehicle drivers or helpers, elevator operators, the operation of power-driven woodcutting machines and off-bearing; occupations involved in the operation of punch presses, shearing machines and power-driven metal forming equipment; mining operations; jobs in or about slaughtering or meat-packing establishmenst or rendering plants, occupations involving the operating of power-driven bakery machines such as dough mixers, batter mixers, bread dividers, and cake and cookie cutting machines; and logging occupations and sawmill work.

Employers hiring young workers 14 and 15 years old should take special care to see that they do not work in unhealthful surroundings nor in tasks that are unsuited to their strength, he said

He pointed out that the child labor provisions of the Wage and Hour Law permit the employment of 14 and 15-year olds in certain non-manufacturing jobs such as office work, but they may not be employed for more than three hours a day or 18 hours in a week when school is in session, nor more than 8 hours a day or 40 hours a week when schools are closed. In addition, the employment of the 14 and 15-year old children is limited to the hours between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m

Krog urges employers to contact the Division's State offices for reliable and official information concerning Federal child labor laws In the southeast, the State offices are located in Birmingham, Alabama; Jacksonville, Florida; Atlanta, Georgia; Jackson, Mississippi and Columbus, South Carolina.

Removing White Spots From A Shellac Finish

Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishings specialist, advises homemakers to try these removal methods on white spots that appear on shellac finishes.

First of all, let the finish dry—the spot may disappear. If the spot remains, remove the wax with a cloth dampened with turpentine or a non-inflammable dry cleaning fluid; then rewax. Or remove the wax and rub down the white area with pumice stone and linseed oil. Then shellac the spot if it needs it and rewax.

Remember, warns Miss Peavy, never wash a shellac finish with water or alcohol.

From the Bassett and Henry County Journal, Bassett, Virginia:

From a weekly newsletter received each week by the Bassett and Henry County Journal we are always finding something interesting in the way of news. In this particular case, this newsletter gives us the information that meat packers of the country make a profit on their processing of less than one-half cent on the dollar volume. And while we are doubtful of the truth of this statement, it nevertheless comes from a reliable source

What this editor wants to know is who is reaping the profits on the meat you supply your table with. Back when choice cuts of meats were retailing for practically the same price as they are today, and cattle on the hoof was around 43 cents per pound, today the same cattle is retailing on the hoof in western markets for less than 25 cents; yet there is no lowering of the retail price. Somebody, somewhere, is making a lot of money on the deal. It isn't necessarily the butcher shop on the corner. And if it isn't the processor, then where is the difference? The "middleman" must certainly be getting more than his share.

So much fuss has been raised in different sections of the country that the Secretary of Agriculture has promised to have the matter looked into But even if he does, the guaranty that the consumer will benefit is remote. There have been investigations before, and there will continue to be such going on, but never will the public receive any benefit. It will be whitewashed and sink into oblivion.

And the same way with cotton goods. There is no appreciative difference in the price of a pair of sheets, or a man's shirt, on any other class of cotton materials than there was when cotton was selling in the open market at 12 cents above the current price. But, on the other hand, if cotton quotations are upped as much as a cent a pound, these goods immediately take a jump, yet never are they lowered when the market goes down. The same with pork, eggs, and other table necessities. Let eggs, for instance, take a sudden drop, the consumer pays the high price; but should they advance say one cent, up goes the product. There is no denying this fact.

Don't Lose Game Meat By Careless Handling

Sportsmen are reminded by Earl Kennamer, API Extension fish and wildlife specialist, that game meat can be easily lost through improper handling and spoilage.

"Small game should never be carried around in a hot hunting coat or bag all day long," he warns. "Small birds and animals should be cooled immediately in the open air and cleaned as quickly as possible. All game should be aged at low temperature for a few days and if not eaten then should be frozen."

The body cavities of small game animals and birds should be wiped clean with a damp cloth or washed sparingly. Too much water will remove meat flavor, explains Kennamer. And, if possible, leave the skin on game birds—just pluck the feathers and singe the bird.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Ordinarily we reserve such things as you are about to read for the editorial column, but since the writer of a post card we received Monday asked for the "column," we will oblige him, or her. You see, we do not know which it was, as they lacked nerve enough to sign their name. And, oh yeah, that brings up another explanation. We never, as a rule, run articles that are not signed, whether we print the name or not we must know who the author of the article is, but we are making this an exception. The unsigned message on a 2c post card follows:

"Mr. Charlie" might be able to buy some Democratic donkeys for less than $14.00, and if all the braying jackasses over the U.S.A. were gagged for a while, they might find out how much the Republicans have already done. Then, if they would wait four years, I'm sure they would find we have a far better country than it has been for the past 20 years under the DOLE system. Do you Democrats still want your living handed out to you? Do you still want Communists in control in Washington? Do you still want subsidies, so people can sit down and do nothing? Thank God for a Republican Regime that believes in an Independent America! I pray God every day that the Eisenhower Regime will pull us back to an Honorable America! Now, print that in your first column."

First let us say we admire General Eisenhower as a General very much. Without the hinderance of the Republican Party he could be a great president. The truth of the matter is that the Republican Party rode in on General Eisenhower's coat tail and within thirty days had tried to divorce themselves from him and had grabbed the ball. The President hasn't located it since.

We wonder where the writer of the above Post Card was twenty years ago? We wonder what he was worth, if he even had a job? We wonder what kind of life he lived and if he had all the modern conveniences we have learned to take for granted within the past twenty years — under Democratic leadership. We do not now, and never have wanted Communists in Government, and the Lord knows our "living has never been handed out to us" under any administration. But, who are we to argue about jackasses. It takes another jackass to know about jackasses.

Our first Christmas Card of the season came from Judge Oakley Melton, and much appreciated it was. Of course the subscription check pinned thereto didn't lessen our enthusiasm. However, we wish for the Melton's and all our other friends a very happy holiday season.

We're pretty sure that according to some Chilton County citizens there was too much of a good thing in town the other night. There were two Sheriff Kendricks. Yep, believe it or not, a Sheriff R. L. Kendrick of Escambia County, Florida, stopped here with a prisoner he was bringing back to his home town of Pensacola from Jackson, Michigan. He placed the prisoner in the county jail and spent the night here. Next morning he visited a while at the Sheriff's office before continuing his journey. Sheriff Luther (local boy) Kendrick said he has known the other Sheriff Kendrick for many years, having been stationed in south Alabama when he was a member of the State Highway Patrol.

Very sorry to hear that our friend, Hugh Champion, is laid up for an indefinite spell with his back. That is, with a back injury. Understand he will have to stay off his feet for quite a while to correct some trouble he has been having with his back. The State Patrol will miss the services of a mighty good officer. We wish for him the fastest possible recovery.

Leo Thompson is using a new band on his laundered shirts. It says: "Beautiful Dry Cleaning." We can't tell any difference in the shirts, but the band is pretty. Don't get us wrong. We didn't see anything wrong with the shirts in the first place.

We wouldn't be without those beautiful Christmas lights we have in the downtown area for a million dollars, but aren't they confusing to the motorists. We mean when you are driving at night up to a street light. You cannot tell which light is the street light. Neither can you tell whether the street light is red, green, amber, blue, orange, or tinsel. Like we said, we couldn't do without the pretty decorations at all, but ain't they confusing. We're just proving your point for you. Some people just cannot be pleased no matter what.

COUNTY VOTERS URGED TO CONSIDER SCHOOL AMENDMENTS ON DEC. 15

Chilton County voters interested in the development of better schools should seriously consider amendments No. 4, 6, 8 and 9, in the election of December 15th. These amendments would enable the counties of Talladega, Lawrence, Marshall and Chambers to determine whether or not they could levy additional taxes for school purposes. It should be kept in mind that voting for the amendment does not mean a vote for a tax, but means that you are willing for the people of these counties to levy the tax if they want to. If these people wish to do something about their school conditions, it seems that they should be allowed to do so, and other people over the state interested in helping them to help themselves can do so by voting for these amendments.

Amendment No. 7 pertains to Mobile. This amendment would allow the people of Mobile to divert money from other funds to school funds. This would be another case of voting to grant privilege to local people to help schools if they see fit.

Farmers To Vote On Cotton Referendum December 15th

On Tuesday, December 15, 1953, the Nation's cotton growers will go to the polls to vote on whether marketing quotas will be in effect on the 1954 cotton crop. That is only a few days now, so don't forget the date.

The Secretary of Agriculture is required by law to proclaim marketing quotas if the supply of cotton is more than the normal supply. Such a proclamation was made by Secretary Benson on October 15, 1953.

Marketing quotas cannot be put in effect without the approval of at least two-thirds of the cotton growers voting in a referendum. The next step, then, is to hold a referendum in which farmers who produced cotton in 1953 are eligible to vote.

The voting in Chilton County will take place Tuesday, December 15, 1953, at the polling places designated for the Community Committee Elections.

If quotas are approved, price support at the full rate will be available on the 1954 crop for those producers who plant within their farm acreage allotment. If quotas are disapproved, cotton acreage allotments without quotas will remain in effect, but price support will be limited to 50 percent of parity, under present legislation.

VERBENA GETS SECOND NEWS FOOTBALL TROPHY

(Taken from The B'ham News)

BY JERRY BRYAN)
Asst. Sports Editor of The News

Verbena, Ala., Dec. 5 — The nimbled-footed Red Devils of Verbena, who picked their way skillfully past nine foes this Fall to extend a winning streak to 39 games, last night received formal recognition for the feat.

The Birmingham News trophy for Class A schools in the second division was presented at the annual banquet held in the high school building. The lunchroom was filled with county school officials, trustees of the school and community leaders who have backed the team. The squad turned up with many of Verbena's pretty girls as their guests.

This is the second year Verbena has won one of The News awards. No other team, except Bessemer Triple A- has accomplished the feat.

The theme of the banquet was success, past and future. One of the students had drawn a big poster showing the Red Devils taking hurdles toward a state high school record for a winning streak. The Demons, adding one additional game to their schedule, go for 49 next Fall and then immediately ahead of the obstacle was depicted Tallassee's record of 54.

The Red Devils will play the same schedule next year, except that Shelby County High has been added. Since Coach J. R. Porch loses only three starters from his team, there appears to be little relief in sight for bedeviled opponents.

The banquet was handled expertly by Toastmaster Hollis Messer, one of Verbena's recent big stars at fullback, now attending Auburn.

Talks were made by Principal H. G. Daniel; County Superintendent Howard Boockholdt; county board members; school trustees and several school boosters. Prof. Daniel, who has been at the school 11 years, said he had seen years with no victories.

Coach Porch expressed high praise for the spirit of cooperation and hard work his boys turned in en route to the perfect season. In addition, he announced two annual awards given by the school. One was for the best blocker, won by Hugh Prickett, and the other the best defensive man, which went to Harold Patterson. These awards are by vote of the players.

The cheer leaders of the school sponsored the banquet through a popularity contest in which Miss Virginia Robinson was elected Miss Verbena.

An excellent banquet was prepared and served by the ladies of the lunchroom and the community.

Go To The Polls Tuesday And Vote

Tuesday, December 15th, is the day to go to the polls and vote on the ten Constitutional Amendments. It is your duty as a citizen to get out and vote.

A quick summary of the ten amendments are:

Number 1 and Number 2 are amendments to change the poll tax laws of the state. Heretofore to be eligible a voter had to pay the current year plus all accured poll tax at the rate of $1.50 per year since becoming 21 years of age. The new law would permit anyone to vote with the payment of two years poll tax taking into consideration that all other requirements had been complied with

The other amendment with statewide application would remove the expense and inconvenience of holding an election to fill a legislative vacancy when there is an unopposed candidate for the office

Here are the other eight amendments in a nutshell

No. 3 would permit Franklin County municipalities to issue interest bearing warrants to attract industries and promote their further development

No. 4 applies to Talladega County and would authorize it to increase local property taxes to build schools and roads.

No. 5 would allow Russellville in Franklin County to issue bonds up to $150,000 to build plants in an effort to attract new industry.

No. 6 is a Lawrence County proposal and would let it designate one or more additional school districts and sell bonds for new buildings.

No. 7 would permit diversion by Mobile County of the five-mill road and bridge tax to finance bond issues for a new courthouse and jail and schools.

No. 8 would give Marshall County authority to levy new taxes for school construction.

No. 9 would let Chambers County increase property taxes for new school buildings.

No. 10 would permit Chambers County to take officials off the fee system and put them on salaries.

CLANTON TIGERS PLAY JOHN CARROLL TONIGHT

John Carroll High School will invade Clanton tonight in search of a victory over the Clanton hardwood five. There will be two games with the first getting under way at 7:00.

Tuesday night the Lanier Poets beat Clanton by the score of 74 to 54. Center Joe Limbaugh and Guard Phillip Hunt were the high scorers of the varsity game, compiling 16 points each. Bobby "Zip" Easterling was high point man for the losing Tigers as he hit the nets for 15 points. Bryce Thornton and Roy Mims tallied 12 points each for the Tigers. Other leading point makers for the Poets were Warren Gilley with 15 points and Joe Wright with 11 points. Lanier was in the lead at the end of the first period 15 to 13, and at half time the Poets left the court with a one-point lead, 32 to 31. The third quarter was the Tigers' downfall as the Poets sacked up 32 points to the Tigers 8, due to the Poets controlling the backboard.

The Tiger Cubs won a thriller from the Lanier "B" team, 32 to 26. Robert Popwell and Harold Thornton were the spark plugs for the Cubs as they each found the hoop for 9 points. Jim Ellis led the scoring for the Lanier team with 6 points. The Cubs were behind 12 to 15 at half time but came back and hit the cords for 20 points to Lanier's 11 in the last half.

MT. PLEASANT BAPTIST

Rev. George Hamm, pastor.
Sunday School at 10 o'clock.
Morning Worship 11 o'clock.
"Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness is accepted with him." Acts 10:34-35.

Rev. Lawton Wilson delivered a fine sermon Sunday morning.

Come to church Sunday. We will draw names for our Christmas tree. Everyone is invited

The W.M.S. held their day of prayer Friday.

Mrs. Preston Ousley and Mrs. Dock Ousley visited Mrs. Charles Riggins Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mat Ivie and children visited Mrs. J. L. Whitehead of Tuscaloosa. Mr. Cecil Ivie spent the week end with the Madison Ivey family.

Rev. Lawton Wilson and his R.A. Boys attended the Rally at West End Baptist Church.

Prayer service every Thursday night.

Mrs. Leona Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson spent Sunday in Aldridge visiting relatives.

We have new neighbors in our community—Mr. and Mrs. Rube Riggins and Mr. and Mrs. Lyles and family. Mt. Pleasant bids you welcome.

Christmas is almost here. It is the time of year when we know Jesus was born into this world, to bleed and die for our sins. Commercially speaking, it is the time of year when we present our gifts one to another. As we make out our list of gifts for our family and friends, let's add an extra gift for a child or elderly person.

Try giving a gift or a lift to some needy person.

Use borax and cold water to remove chocolate and cocoa stains.

When buying a sewing machine, consider these questions: What kind of sewing will be done, will a cabinet or portable machine be more practical, will the long-shuttle or round-shuttle be most suitable?

HUNTERS—HEAR THIS!

This is a note to hunters in this area, to be heeded by all who call themselves sportsmen. It concerns the preservation of wild life in this state, which is rapidly becoming a problem.

Too often we have heard hunters boasting of killing more than their quota, and of using unsportsmanlike methods to bring home game. Among some circles, it is considered the vogue to violate laws designed to protect wild life.

However, one cannot justify such practices by any reasoning whatsoever, and those who persist in violating laws to kill game are guilty on two counts: the legal count and the sportsmanship count.

Naturally, it is impossible for game wardens, or Federal officials, to discover all hunting violations, especially because many of them occur on land owned by those breaking the law.

The appeal is an appeal to all men who call themselves sportsmen—to observe limits, the law, and the practice of good sportsmanship in hunting this winter. In the long run such a policy will pay personal, as well as community dividends, and moreover, it is the sportsmanlike thing to do.

THE LAST POLIO BATTLE?

What might be the last major battle in man's attempts to solve the terrible puzzle of polio will begin February 8th, 1954. At that time, the newest anti-polio vaccine will be used in quantity.

Over 200 counties in the United States will be affected in this mass vaccination attempt, which is one of the largest projects of its kind ever undertaken. The newest vaccine is a triple-vaccine, and its developers hope it will prove far more effective than that used in tests this summer.

Approximately 500,000 to 1,000,000 children will get shots of the new vaccine in the drive which begins in February. The immunization drive will probably start in Louisiana, Texas or Alabama, where polio strikes earliest in the year and then include other states. The immunization effort is scheduled to end prior to summer, when polio begins to strike.

Children who receive the injections, consisting of three shots over a period of five or six weeks, will take them on a voluntary basis. It is estimated that most of the injections will be given to school children of second-grade age.

The great hope concerning this new serum is that it will provide immunity against each of the three known types of polio virus. After the 500,000 to 1,000,000 children have been vaccinated, between Feb. 8th and June 1st, experts will keep records on the children, and the success of the immunization shots, as the polio season develops in 1954. If the vaccine lives up to what some expect it to, results might show that an answer to polio has at last been found.

U. S. DEATHS IN KOREA

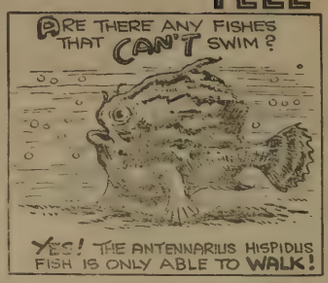
The death toll for members of the United States armed services in Korea will probably pass the 30,000-mark next year. Pentagon officials are already classifying many of the 7,955 original "missing" service men as presumed dead.

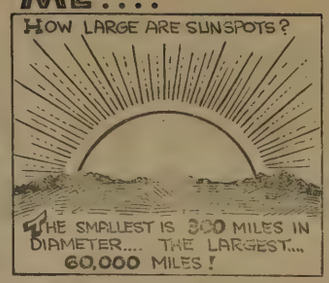
When the truce in Korea came into effect it was estimated the United States had suffered something over 25,000 fatalities. The Army, of course, suffered the brunt of the losses and some 4,000 Army officers and men, who have been listed as missing, will be declared presumed dead shortly after the first of the year if new information does not appear on them.

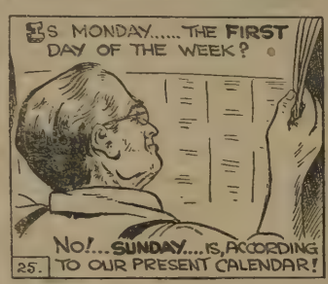
The Air Force has some 671 of its personnel still listed as missing, although that service will declare over 150 of them presumed dead next month. The Marine Corps has about 500 men listed as missing. The Navy's losses in Korea were negligible.

Thus the known cost of the Korean War is still rising. The complete casualty total in Korea stands at 142,277 killed, wounded and missing. That figure will remain the same. The transfer of so many men in the missing classification to the killed classification is somber news for many American families, although the worst has been expected since the Communists returned such a small number of U. S. prisoners in the much-publicized prisoner exchange which followed the signing of the truce.

TELL ME....







PSYCHOLOGY AT MIDNIGHT

By Rob E. Mack

DAISY O'NOON whisked her feet off the manager's desk as the door opened. Dropping her book, she assumed the attitude of a busy scrub-woman while Mr. Legree, the night superintendent, stood watching her frantic struggle with mop and bucket.

"Mrs. O'Noon, you are fired! I've told you for the last time—this is no library, it's an office building—and you're getting paid to clean it." He scooped the book off the floor. "Everyday Psychology," he sneered. "Now what does a scrub-woman know about psychology? "Did you clean Mr. Caton's office?" He nodded toward an adjoining room.

"No, sir—he's still working."

"Nonsense. It's nearly midnight. Did you knock?"

"Well, no . . . I heard Mr. Caton's been biting people's heads off lately. Poor man, they say he ain't been himself at all since his wife died and left him with them two young boys."

Daisy shuffled into Mr. Caton's office and turned on the main light with a weary grunt. She was puzzled to see one of the big windows wide open. Crossing the room, she stopped dead in her tracks. Something had moved on the balcony just outside the window. Tightening her grip on the mop handle, she stared in horror. A man was climbing onto the stone parapet, with the obvious intention of leaping to the street, ten stories below.

"No — don't!" yelled Daisy. The man turned and waited.

"Couldn't have done it, anyway . . ." he muttered. "Lost my nerve. Guess poison would be easier."

"Well, I don't know, now —" said Daisy, climbing over the window sill. "I've tried both, and one's about as hard as the other."

The young man stared at her quizzically. "You mean you've tried it, too? Why?"

Daisy shrugged her plump shoulders and sat down on the window ledge. "Oh, the usual reasons. After my mister died, there just didn't seem to be much worth living for. The kids had grown up and left town. It's different if you've got little ones who need you."

The man frowned, hanging his head. "I've got two," he said.

"I know, Mr. Caton. I seen their pictures on your desk. Fine little lads—just at the age when they'd be needing a father most."

He looked startled. "See here—you won't tell anyone about this? I—I've been a fool! Those kids mean the world to me, but it's been so darn hard ever since their mother died. We've no relatives who could care for the boys, and I've done nothing but hire and fire housekeepers."

Daisy stood up. "Sure, I know how it is. But don't you be worrying, Mr. Caton—I'll keep mum. Hmph! Speaking of firing—that reminds me—I was just fired myself. Ah, it's a hard life—sure and it is . . ."

He reached out quickly. "Wait! Do you like children?"

Daisy registered surprise. "Love them. Why?"

"Well, you say you've just been fired, and nobody needs you. Would you like to work for me?"

Daisy gave his arm a motherly pat. "Mr. Caton, you've got yourself a new housekeeper!"

"Start now!" he whooped. "Come on, I'll drive you home."

Inside, a door banged and Mr. Legree stormed into the office, his face the color of ripe tomato. "Mrs. O'Noon!" he bel[lowed]. "Where—" his mouth dro[pped] at the sight of Daisy b[eing] escorted through the o[ffice] by Mr. Caton.

As they passed by Mr. [Legree] handed him the mop.

"Mrs. O'Noon [is] no longer employed ing this any longer. She's [fired] to work for me."

Still speechless, Mr. Legree gaped at Daisy who gave him a roguish wink and whispered, "Psychology!"

As the door closed behind them Mr. Legree turned to the waste basket. He fished out a book and blew the dust from its cover.

Clanton Stores Open Wednesdays Through Holidays

Clanton stores and business houses will remain open on Wednesday afternoon through the month of December to serve the shopping public in this rush season of the year.

This report was issued this week by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce Merchant Committee.

Christmas lights were put up this week and the local merchants are readying their stores for the Christmas rush. Practically all the stores have beautiful windows decorated with Christmas scenes for the holidays. Shop local stores before you go elsewhere for your Christmas presents.

FARM PRICE SUPPORTS

The Government had a record $4,053,142,000 tied up in farm price support programs on September 23, according to the Agriculture Department. The previous high was $4,036,175,000 on March 30, 1950. The CCC has authority to commit as much as $6,750,000,000 at any one time in carrying out the price-support programs.

Non - Farm Employment Above Total Of 1952

Montgomery, Ala. — Non-farm employment in Alabama, at 684,400, continued high during October, according to Joe L. Coleman, director of the Department of Industrial Relations. This topped the September figure by 1,300 but was only 100 above the total for October 1952.

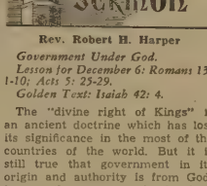
Factory employment decreased by 600 over the month but gained 2,400 over the year. Both durable and non-durable segments showed employment losses as compared with September. The largest decline in durable goods factories occurred in the ship repairing group, attributable to completion of contracts.

Most soft goods groups showed some loss or no change from September. Exceptions were the chemical and allied products and the printing and publishing groups. The closing of several vegetable canning plants reduced employment in the food industry. Other changes were small and not traceable to any one factor.

Employment in the lumber, transportation equipment (other than ship-building), fabricated metals, apparel, and chemical industries was higher than a year ago. However, these gains were offset somewhat by losses in blast furnaces, ship repairing yards, and textile mills.

Non-manufacturing industries revealed a 1,900 worker boost over September but a 2,300 drop over the year. Trade establishments added 1,000 employees in October. Over the year losses in transportation, mining, and construction out-weighed increases in other industries.

Average weekly earnings of production workers in manufacturing industries during October were off just a few cents from last year's similar period.



Rev. Robert H. Harper

Government Under God.

Lesson for December 6: Romans 13: 1-10; Acts 5: 25-29.

Golden Text: Isaiah 42: 4.

The "divine right of Kings" is an ancient doctrine which has lost its significance in the most of the countries of the world. But it is still true that government in its origin and authority is from God just as that was true in the day when government was associated with the rule of kings. The rulers of Israel were spoken of as the "Lord's anointed."

We find Paul urging obedience to constituted government on the ground of the existing powers being ordained of God. Even though the Roman government was imperfect it preserved law and order through out the Mediterranean world. And the apostle sought to bring Christians to a fitting loyalty to the established government.

Paul then lays down a principle of abiding by the law. Love, he says, is the fulfilling of the law. Love will work no ill to a neighbor and it will commit no offense against lawful authority.

In the fifth chapter of the Acts we read of the second imprisonment of Peter and John. When brought before the Jewish authorities and reminded that they had been forbidden to teach in the name of Jesus, they replied that they "must obey God rather than men." The right of a Christian to follow his conscience has been allowed to the "conscientious objectors" to service in war. In America the doctrine of the separation of Church and State prohibits the interference of the State in matters of religion. It is safe to assume that all true members of the Church will be loyal citizens under the State.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Kirby V. Flecks, Harrisburg, Penn.: I remember when I was a young boy in the late 1880's when it came time to preserve quinces, my sister always saved the seeds and the pulp in which they were embedded. It was a very sticky combination and when mixed with water the girls used it to keep their bangs and hair in place. The preparation was also used as a hand lotion.

From Mrs. Evelyn Smith, Pikeville, Kentucky: While watching television recently I was struck with the thought of how much science has accomplished in such a short time.

Do you remember the old time silent movies? I remember how excited I used to get when the prolific piano player would take his seat in the orchestra pit and begin to play.

I remember that music well and how the player would keep it to the mood and action of the film. Television is certainly a great advance from those days.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

CHARLES LUDOVICO, 602 E. Price Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, loved his father dearly, more than anyone else in this world, and his father had been taken to the hospital, seriously ill. All he could think about was what if his father should die? He was afraid and he was terribly worried. He would gladly have exchanged places with his father if it had been possible.

Each day he would get into his car and drive to a lonely spot in the country. There he would talk to God. He begged, and begged—and prayed. He said, "Dear God, please, please, let me keep my father." He promised he would do anything in return, and he felt he could hear God answering him in his thoughts and in his feelings.

Then one afternoon came a telephone call from the hospital. "Come immediately." No one could ever imagine his agony. It took him five minutes to get to the hospital in his car, and while on the way, a phrase came into his mind: "Let it be done unto me according to Thy will." The world seemed suddenly to be changed.

He walked into the hospital room in which his father lay unconscious and felt that his father had been waiting for him. The older man slowly opened his eyes, looked at his son and grasped his hand as he said very slowly, "Charles, take care of your mother." Then he closed his eyes again as if he were going to sleep—and he was gone. Charles could do no more; he was through.

But that phrase "Let it be done unto me according to Thy will" helped him through the crisis and has done much to help him through other troubles since.

STANTON NEWS

(By RUTH HICKS)

This community was made sad when the news reached this section of the death of Dr. A. D. Wallace at 7:00 p.m. Sunday night, December 6th, 1953, in the Selma Baptist Hospital. A more complete write-up will follow in next week's paper.

Most every child in the first grade had the chicken pox. It seems that some of the children don't even stop school when they have some of these contagious diseases. Although the chicken pox isn't so dangerous, there are others that are really serious and harmful to children and should not be scattered if possible.

Preparations are being made for the Christmas program to be put on at the church Christmas. The young people and the intermediates are planning to put on a play by the name of "Christmas Comes To Shiloh." The Sunbeams are planning on a little program by themselves. All in all we want to have an enjoyable evening.

Friends and relatives were sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Gus Wallace. She died December 1, 1953, and was buried in the Pleasant Grove Cemetery. Coosa River Supervisors Return From Conference

Coosa Pines, Ala. — The Coosa River Newsprint Company Woodlands Department has a staff of 71 persons of whom 19 are graduate foresters. Three of the men who supervise the Coosa River woodlands operations have just returned from Neenah, Wisconsin, where they participated in a three day conference for Woods Managers and Chief Foresters employed in the United States and Canadian operations of Kimberly Clark Corporation, the company which operates the Coosa River plant under a management agreement.

John Raeburn, Manager of Woodlands for Coosa River, Harold A. Dickson, Assistant Manager and Chief Forester, and Calvin G. Stewart, Wood Quality Superintendent, represented Coosa River at the conference and were among the panel of speakers during the three days.

Raeburn discussed "Producer Wood and the Conservation Forester." Dickson's topic was "Regeneration on Cut-Over Lands" and Stewart spoke on the subject of "Land Acquisition in the South."

The first day of the three-day conference featured papers and forum discussion on silviculture—the establishment and care of new forests, preparing for the next crop and bringing that crop to maturity.

The second day's discussion dealt primarily with logging—the use of mature stands of trees to provide raw material for the mill. Emphasis was on planning, budgets and cost controls

Luncheon and dinner speakers during the conference included John R. Kimberly, a director of Coosa River and President of Kimberly-Clark Corporation, William H. Clifford, a director and treasurer of Coosa River and Vice in charge of finance for Kimberly-Clark, W. H. Swanson, Vice President in charge of research and Development for Kimberly-Clark and M. J. The eleven McNally children range in age from 14 years to 8 months.

50 MILLIONTH PHONE

The nation's 50,000,000th telephone in service was installed in the White House in President Eisenhower's office on November 18. The telephone is black, and around the base are 48 gold stars, one for each state. The presidential seal takes the place of the number plate, and the dial and numerals are finished in gold.

In advance of the territorial construction of Alabama, this region had been sought as a refuge by adherents of the British crown during the story days of the revolution. Other loyal Americans fled to Alabama to escape the horrors of war in the Carolinas.

From Recruit to Sergeant First Class in less than a year is progress few can claim, but Sfc. Joseph F. Dennis, Operations Sergeant for Second Student Regiment can.

Inducted in April, 1952, Dennis took basic training at Fort Dix. Arriving in Korea in late October he was made a squad leader with "Baker" Company of the 38th Infantry Regiment within two weeks and a stripe. He earned his second stripe three months later when at the Second Division NCO Academy where he graduated third in a class of over 50.

Returned to his old unit he took over as assistant platoon sergeant and got his third stripe. Finally, just a few days before celebrating his first anniversary in service, Dennis took over as platoon sergeant first class.

Dennis is from Maplesville, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Dennis, he attended and graduated from Maplesville High School. His wife and daughter, Carol, are living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Burnett in Stanton while he is in service.

It's a good thing to have money—and the things that money can buy, but it is good too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things that money can't buy—

Money can't buy real friendship,
Friendship must be earned;
Money can't buy the glow of health,
Right living is the secret;
Money can't buy happiness,
Happiness is a mental attitude
And one may be as happy in a cottage
As in a mansion.

Money can't buy sunsets, singing birds
And the music of the wind in the trees,
These are as free as the air we breathe.
Money can't buy inward peace,
Peace is the result of a constructive philosophy of life.
Money can't buy character,
Character is what we are when we are alone with ourselves in the dark.

Continue the list yourself. You'll agree that among the things money can't buy are some of the most valuable treasures life has to offer.

As bad as we have been needing and wanting rain, surely no one would stay away from church because of the rain. Our attendance was very poor both Sunday and Sunday night.

We are sorry we still have a good bit of sickness in our community. We hope all will soon be well and able to attend church again very soon.

Misses Evelyn Edwards and Myra Foshee visited Miss Kathryn Little on Thanksgiving.

All the members of the Intermediate class of Samaria are asked to be present Sunday to draw names for Christmas.

There will be a social for all the young people of Samaria Friday night if it isn't raining, at the home of the teacher, Mrs. Annie Mae Waites. All the young people are invited to attend.

Miss Fay Burks of Birmingham visited her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Burks this past week end.

We are glad to hear that Mr. A. B. Burks is improving from his illness.

Mrs. Hazel McDowell and Jo Ann of Brewton, Ala., visited Mr and Mrs. Edward Little last Saturday.

Let's all keep in mind a special offering will be taken the Sunday before Christmas for the Children's Home.

We are nearing Christmas time and let's all remember what Christmas really means, and that it is a time of giving rather than receiving. And too, let's all remember the less fortunate of our community.

The refugees from the storms of war who came to Alabama about 1777, followed the Indian trails when they could. But now and then they would have to plunge into the thick forests, pick their way as best they could through the tangled wilderness.

Localities in the present territory of the counties of Monroe, Clarke, Baldwin and Washington, were occupied as early as 1778. Some white men in this area married Indian maids, from which came some of the families most conspicuous in the annals of the state. Among these are the Weatherfords, Taits, Durants and Tunstalls.

Barbara Morrison celebrated her third birthday last Thursday afternoon with a birthday party at the Country Club. The club room was decorated with Christmas theme, using green foliage and large red bows for the windows, and a table at one end contained old Santa and his sleigh and red candles. The white birthday cake was embossed with "Happy Birthday" in green and held three green candles, and was encircled with multi-colored Christmas ornaments. Surrounding the cake was an arrangement of red berries and green foliage, and a red candle was placed at each end of the table. After opening the gift packages, and having the Happy Birthday sung, Barbara and her mother served ice cream and salted nuts, along with the birthday cake to the following: Susan Speaks, Ginger Alred, Susan Barton, Brenda LeCroy, Karla Snead, John Rockett, "Chuck" Wyatt, Ralph Crow, Steve and Vicki Crew, and Betsy Callen of Pensacola, Fla., along with a number of the mothers of the children. As parting favors, the children received red and green Christmas horns, candy and balloons.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

About 1721, a body of German colonists reached Mobile and settled near there. In the group was a woman of unusual personal beauty and rare charm of manner, who identified herself as the daughter of the Duke of Brunswick Wolfenbuttel and the wife of Alex Petrowitz, the son of Peter the Great. She said that she had fled to the wilds of south Alabama because she had been cruelly treated by the heir to the Russian throne.

The County governing body may agree in the proceedings authorizing the issue of school bonds and courthouse and jail bonds hereunder that it will, if and to the extent necessary to prevent default in the payment of principal or interest on such bonds, use for the payment of such principal or interest, or both, as a prior lien thereon so much of the proceeds of the tax of 2½ mills authorized by Section 215 of the Constitution as may be necessary. Further, after 30 days from the first publication in said County of the resolution authorizing and fixing the details of any bonds authorized to be issued hereunder, such bonds and the sources of payment provided therefor in such resolution shall be incontestible in any court in this State."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election on Tuesday the 15th day of December 1953, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 15th day of December 1953, in each county in the State of Alabama, in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed by the Secretary of State, at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery, on this the 13th day of October 1953. (SEAL)

Should a majority of the voters participating at this election vote for the repeal of the tax it shall cease as soon as the outstanding pledges against it have been paid in full. Should a majority of the electors participating in the election vote against repeal the question of repeal may not again be submitted to a vote for one year, but after the expiration of one year, and at intervals of one year thereafter, upon receipt of a petition signed by twenty per cent of the qualified electors of the county, the county governing body may order the question of repeal of the tax resubmitted to the qualified electors of the county.

"The election provided for herein shall be called, held, conducted, paid for, and governed otherwise in the manner provided by Code of Alabama (1940), Title 52, Chapter 10, Article 7, for an election on the special county school tax authorized in Amendment III to the Constitution of Alabama. "In addition to all taxes now or hereafter authorized by the Constitution and laws of Chambers County, Alabama, the governing body of Chambers County shall have the power to levy and collect, for a period of not exceeding twelve years, a special ad valorem tax on real and tangible personal property only, situated within said county, at a rate not exceeding five mills on each dollar's worth of said real and tangible personal property, as assessed for state taxation for the preceding tax year, the proceeds of said tax to be used solely for acquiring, constructing, and equipping public school buildings within said county, including public school buildings for any city school system therein; provided, however, that the special ad valorem tax authorized herein shall be levied only in the event that no other additional ad valorem tax is authorized to be levied by a constitutional amendment submitted at the 1953 regular session of the Legislature; and provided further, that before said special ad valorem tax shall be levied, the question as to whether said tax shall be levied shall have first been submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of said county at an election to be called by the governing body of said county, and shall have been voted for by a majority of said qualified electors voting at said election. Upon the expiration of any tax authorized pursuant to this amendment, no further tax shall be authorized hereunder.

"In the event the said special ad valorem tax shall be authorized by a majority of the qualified electors voting on said question at said election, the governing body of said county shall thereupon be authorized to sell and issue its tax anticipation bonds for the purposes for which said tax was authorized, which bonds shall be in such amount as the governing body of said county shall designate, and shall be subject to the provisions of the general laws pertaining to the issuance of county bonds except that no further election shall be required therefor. The revenue derived from the sale of said bonds shall be expended by the Chambers County Board of Education for the purposes stated herein. Any bonds issued pursuant to this amendment shall be payable solely out of the proceeds of the said special ad valorem tax hereby authorized which shall be pledged therefor, and after the issuance of said bonds, the proceeds of said tax remaining after payment of the cost of assessment and collection shall be used only for payment of the principal of and interest on said bonds, the creation and maintenance of a reserve therefor, and the redemption thereof. Said bonds shall constitute negotiable instruments although payable from a limited source and shall be eligible for the investment of trust funds. The said bonds shall not constitute general obligations of the said county and shall be in addition to all other bonds which said county has heretofore issued or is authorized to issue under the Constitution and laws of Alabama."

JEMISON NEWS

As we gather in our homes and churches this Christmas Season to honor Christ, Christians everywhere are pausing in reverent recollection of that Holy night of long ago. For weeks we hear the carols playing forth from radios, filling the air with lovely music. Christmas hymns are played and sung, trees are erected in our homes and lighted, cards are sent to friends carrying messages of peace, good will, salvation and eternal life. For hearts around the world the never ending miracle of Christmas glows warmly in the vision of the Infant Jesus in a lonely Bethlehem Manger. This story is warmer in the lives of Christians everywhere, filling the heart with new hope and the mind with peace. "For on this day was born in the City of David, a Savior, Christ the Lord."

Mrs. Stanley Cost Entertains Club—

The December meeting of the Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Cost Tuesday, December 1st, at 12 o'clock for a covered dish luncheon. The table, with a lace-covered cloth, was centered with a small sleigh, holding candles and tied with blue and white ribbons. Miniature sleighs, billed with hard candies, were used as place cards. Other seasonal motifs decorated the rooms.

Members enjoyed a delicious meal of baked ham, potato salad, assorted relishes, potato chips, cranberry sauce, hot rolls, pecan pie and coffee.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Edna McNeill. Mrs. Cost read the Scripture, Luke 2:8-16. She also read the story of the hymn, "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Mrs. W. J. Preston led the group in singing the hymn. Mrs. Tom Cost led in prayer. Members responded to roll call by naming a most unusual Christmas gift.

Plans were completed for a Christmas party to be held December 22. These ladies were named: Food, Mrs. Evie Pate; Clothing, Mrs. Edna McNeill and Mrs. Mettie Burnette; Food Preservation, Mrs. Winifred Jackson; Home Furnishings, Mrs. Bessie McNeill; Child Care and Family Life, Mrs. Stanley Cost; Consumer Education, Mrs. George Naish.

Golden Wedding Anniversary—

It was a lovely Sunday morning for the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, Sr.

While Mrs. Adams had not planned a special celebration on account of the health of Mr. Adams, the two sons, Walter of New Orleans and John, Jr. of Gadsden, and their wives, decided otherwise. After the exchange of many letters and messages, the two families met at a special place in Jemison, only three minutes apart, and drove to the parents' home. It was indeed a grand surprise. The daughters-in-law had the menu all planned and partially prepared, so in a short time after the greetings were over, a delicious meal of baked ham, a casserole of asparaus and mushrooms, potato soufle, two kinds of salad, olives and pickles.

The table was centered with a two-tiered wedding cake, decorated in gold roses and a small prelestal of gold leaves and wedding bells, decorated the top of the cake. Gold leave place cards held mints. Two large candles were used, one candle was decorated with a laurel wreath and the "50," the other was ornamented with a wreath of orange blossoms and double wedding rings. Southern smilax was used as greenery.

Walter had built a miniature gold tree with 50 limbs, on each limb was a "gold" dollar. As "gold" dollars were not available, silver dollars covered with gold goil were used.

This well known beloved couple received some lovely gifts. One a gold compact, fashioned like a watch of yesteryears, candies and other remembrances.

Mr. Adams is a native of Jemison, Mrs. Adams was reared in north Alabama. They have been residents of Jemison about 20 years. Mr. Adams is a retired L. & N. Railroad conductor.

We wish them many more happy years of wedded life.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

We were indeed sorry to learn that our good friends (and neighbors), the Bob Tabers, were moving away from us. Bob made many friends while in Clanton, and we all wish him well with his new position in Georgia. We'd also like to see him back in Clanton some day.

Saw an unusual piece of merchandise in Upchurch's window the other day. Don't know for sure if they'll sell it though, because after closer scrutiny of the object it turned out to be "Doc" Smith. Now we think the Doc's a fine pharmacist, but we do have our doubts as to whether or not he'd look good under the Christmas tree.

And speaking of Christmas, I sometimes wonder if we don't sorta misplace the correct meaning of the word. We see so much of this Xmas around we might be getting used to it. There is actually nothing wrong with Xmas, but like the fellow once said, "Aren't you leaving the most important part out."

Did you know that Alabama, called the Cotton State, is also recognized as the Lizard State. Now I can understand the connection, but I'll bet there are a lot of people who never saw a . . . cotton-picking lizard.

If a man fights for what he believes, some folks call him fanatical; if he doesn't, then folks say he's a coward or has no ambition—what can a guy do?

We were glad to hear of Joe Smith's recovery from his recent illness. Or we should say, is improving every day. Anyhow, Joe's letter and it you'd like to know one of the most likeable and genuinely honest gentlemen in our fair city, then Joe's your man.

* * *

If a fellow says too many bad things folks get to where they don't pay any attention to him even he says something good.

* * *

We've heard of unusual types and kinds of fruit before, but we never thought it would get this bad. However, we did hear a fellow say that the past season was not one of the better ones. Anyway, we saw a sign by the roadside the other day that read something like this: "Fruit Failure Just Ahead," then the next sign was "Minnows, Worms and Crickets." Shouldn't think we'd admit to having wormy fruit, but tell me this, who ever heard of finding a minnow or a cricket in an apple?

Experience is the best teacher, but it's often the most expensive.

One of the recent amendments passed by the state should have been to teach our convicts to read and write. Saw a sign (another one) that read COLUMBIAMA, 32 MILES. I may be all wet in my assumption that this is incorrect, but anyway, I'm from CLAMTON.

Short On Green Grazing? Then Feed Hogs Some Hay

Hay has long been one of the best feeds for workstock and cattle, and it's just as good for hogs," says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist, "especially when there's not enough green grazing for brood sows in the winter." Hog growers who don't have suitable green grazing for their brood sows can successfully use a mixture of alfalfa or soybean hay to add protein and vitamins to their rations. Place hay in a rack and feed it free choice.

Hogs probably won't eat more than a pound of hay each day, explains Phillips. But the little they eat will go a long way toward helping them into quality market hogs.

Pastures should be cleaned now of brush, stumps, and loose stone to make mowing easier next spring.

Take Time To Plan Your Christmas Decorations

Use your Christmas decorations tastefully and appropriately, advises Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishings specialist.

"Choose colors carefully," suggests the home leader. "If backgrounds in the room are dark, put up light-colored decorations; if backgrounds are light, try darker colors. Also, use decorations that blend attractively with the color scheme of the room.

"Be sure the decoration fits its location. A tiny wreath on a large door will be out of place as will a huge wreath in a small window. Don't over-decorate — too many greens, lights, etc., only clutter up the room."

Miss Peavy adds that particularly festive are carefully placed green sprays, wreaths, swags and fire-proofed branches used with candles.

NEW DEPUTY AT SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Sheriff J. Luther Kendrick announced last week that he had hired a new deputy sheriff. Crit M. Moore has been sworn in as a Deputy Sheriff and he will be stationed on the West Side of the County. Mr. Moore began his duties on November 7th.

December Farm Calendar Offered By Specialists

Auburn, Ala. — Next year's farming operations should begin right now. Here are suggestions from four API Extension farm leaders on insuring a profitable and economical 1954.

"Cut cotton and corn stalks and other crop refuse," advises Agronomist D. R. Harbor. Bed down stalls and barns with leaves, pine needles, or grain straw; the bigger the manure pile, the smaller the fertilizer bill next spring. Start preparing now for improvement of permanent pastures next year. Apply liming materials on pastures that need it. Order and accept delivery on fertilizers and insecticides as soon as possible."

Horticulturist John Bagby urges gardeners to order seeds now. Prepare hotbeds for sowing in January and February. If you haven't already done so, set fruit trees this month. Prune fruit trees and bunch grapes. Terrace all land to be planted to peaches before trees are set. Plant a strawberry patch this winter.

Kill rats, clean up breeding places, and make buildings ratproof to reduce losses, says Entomologist W. A. Ruffin. Destroy cattle grubs and lice. Apply sprays after fruit trees are completely dormant. Burn orchard prunings to destroy shothole borers and other insects. And burn pecan twigs severed by girdlers.

Agricultural Engineer J. T. Gaillard recommends checking all farm machinery and ordering needed repair parts now. Store cultivating machinery, and grease parts that are likely to rust. Use a disk harrow or plow to cut or turn cotton stalks and other vegetable matter. And plow up terraces so they will settle before spring planting season.

For Maximum Production Select Chicks Carefully

Auburn, Ala. — Broiler growers with an eye on maximum production and profits will make sure they select the right breed and strain of chicks.

"Buy the breed and strain that is popular in your area, will bring top prices on the market, and will make you 'the most profit,'" suggests API Extension Poultryman John Weeks. "The New Hampshire, the White Rock, the Delaware-New Hampshire cross, and the Cornish-New Hampshire cross are the most popular broilers in Alabama."

In choosing a satisfactory strain of chicks, concludes Weeks, look for these characteristics: Rapid feathering, rapid growth, good meat quality, vigor, uniform growth, light feather color, and attractive appearance.

SOIL TESTING AND THE 1954 AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM

Many farmers have expressed concern over the soil testing requirements of the 1954 A.C.P. program. The information below is offered as more explicit information concerning soil testing and its application to the 1954 A.C.P.

FIRST — What is soil testing? In practical language, "Soil Testing" is a more accurate method of determining the kind and amount of fertilizers needed on a given piece of land to reasonably expect satisfactory crop growth of a given crop. For years progressive farmers have followed the experiment station's general recommendations in determining how much of what analysis tertilizer to use for different crops. This has been based on carefully recorded scientific facts. The facts were found and proven through years of research. It has also been based on the assumption that all lands will react similarly to the land on the experiment station. A soil analysis tells to a major degree the amount of plant foods available in a field. With the available supply in the soil known, and the amount needed for a crop known then it becomes simple calculation to accurately determine how much of what kind to add. A soil test makes it possible to apply the findings of research directly to your field and eliminates the necessity of assuming that your field will react similarly to the experimental field.

Soil testing as a requirement for payment under certain 1954 A.C.P. practices falls under two main divisions:

1. Lime — A PH test will be required to determine lime needs. The PH test may be made by a simple field test or can be a portion of a detailed laboratory test. The test is more desirable, but not required.

2. Potash and Phosphates — The general recommendations used in past years are based on experiment station results. They are acceptable as basis of needs in the 1954 A.C.P. practices. Again the results of tests by the laboratory are more desirable, and if available will be used in preference to general recommendations. It also remains optional with the farmer whether he should use the laboratory or rely on general recommendations for phosphates and potash.

A complete soil test made by your testing laboratory in Auburn is very desirable and highly recommended as a more accurate method of determining fertilizer needs. But, let's keep the records clear—a laboratory test is not required in order to earn 1954 A.C.P. assistance.

Tempting Milk Dishes Very Easy To Prepare

Auburn, Ala. — For those who rebel at drinking their daily milk homemakers can serve any number of tasty camouflages, according to API Extension Nutritionist Mary Hulsey.

For example, one-dish meals such as casseroles and fondues offer many chances to use milk and cheese. Milk can also be used as the liquid in meat and fish loaves. It forms the base of dishes such as creamed chicken, eggs, and dried beef, and it can come to the table in custards, creamed pies, puddings and sherbets.

Fluid milk is available in many forms — raw, pasteurized, homogenized, evaporated, condensed, buttermilk, skim milk, or flavored whole or skim milk. And, concludes Miss Hulsey, many homemakers are now also making room in their pantries for economical whole and non-fat dry milk.

CHILON COUNTY'S TB GOAL IS $1,038.00

December 7th was Pearl Harbor Day, a day which saddened the hearts of every American.

But December 7th was the anniversary of another momentous event, one which brought hope and life into the hearts of thousands of sick people.

It was the 47th anniversary of the Christmas Seal, said Mrs. Ruby Willingham, Seal Sale Chairman, of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

"The American Christmas Seal was born December 7, 1907, when a welfare worker of Wilmington, Del., offered for sale the first Christmas Seal to raise money for the treatment of eight people who were very sick with TB. Her goal was $300, but she raised $3000 — and here started a crusade which has saved an estimated six million American lives since that memorable day."

Chilton County's goal in the 1953 Seal Sale is $1,038.00, the chairman said, "And we have a total of 73 known cases of TB right here in our county.

"The money you contribute will not pay for treatment for all these victims, but it will help. Money raised in the annual Seal Sale is never enough to offer a hospital bed and treatment to all those suffering with TB, but it is used to help some of them.

"The main job of the Seal is to focus attention on tuberculosis—to bring it into perspective as a community tragedy — to tell the facts to all the people so they will combine efforts to seek ways of providing hospital beds and money to give treatment to patients.

"Christmas Seal money prevent TB. It points the way to case-finding programs through X-ray facilities. It rings hope and faith to thousands who might have died of TB but who are alive and happy today because of the progress made against this killer since the first Seals were sold."

MAIL RATES RISE

These advances, which will amount to about 17 per cent, are in addition to a 36 per cent increase in parcel-post rates generally, which is expected to add about $153,000,000 a year to parcel-post charges.

On Christmas Eve—

Two small stockings hanging there,
Just below the open stair,
And beside them, fair to see
Is a wondrous Christmas Tree.

In the nursery overhead,
Fast asleep in dainty bed,
Two wee youngsters; and the while,
Angels watch, and smile and smile.

Two small stockings, old and torn,
In a room of gladness shorn,
No bright sparkling Christmas tree,
Only gnawing poverty.

Two wee youngsters in their bed,
Sadly shiver side by side,
And as restlessly they sleep,
Angels watch and weep and weep.

GOOD BUSINESS IN 1954

Jack I. Strauss, president of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., said in New York recently he expected little change in retail sales volume in the first half of 1954.

The president of one of the largest retail stores in the United States, and a store known not only in New York, but in all the country, said he did not look for a sharp decline in the level of employment in this country, and that is the accented gauge for retail sales.

Strauss' views are interesting, in view of the widespread predictions that a depression is inevitable. Like several other prominent business men who have been quoted in recent weeks, Strauss believes that some industries might experience a decline in activity in the first half of 1954, but that there will be no depression.

EISENHOWER AND ROBERT E. LEE

President Dwight D. Eisenhower recently accepted an invitation to speak before a meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy in Washington. The President told the group someone had asked him earlier in the day why any group should perpetuate memories of the Confederacy, or a lost cause.

The President said the organization had both "peculiar and personal" values to offer in honor of Generals Robert E. Lee and T. J. (Stonewall) Jackson. He said these two men were enduring symbols of his own conviction that men can rise to greatness without surrendering principles.

The President noted that, as a life-long soldier, he had been required to study the Confederate generals and he noted: "It became an inspiration." Among other things, the President said: "In my office I have obtained and put up etchings, or pictures, of a few great Americans, Washington, Franklin, Lincoln and Lee. Lee was one man who early showed to all of us that a man could be a soldier who could fight with all that was in him — and fight brilliantly for ideals in which he firmly and honestly believed.

"But still, at the same time, he could be a great and noble character, and not fall prey to the passions of the battlefield and to its contaminating filth and dirt. He remained always a pure soul and today makes us better people.

These remarks by a Republican President, would not have been uttered a decade or two ago. They are conclusive proof that the wounds of the greatest war ever engaged in by armies of this country have healed. Anyone who has ever studied the life of Robert E. Lee must realize that he was no ordinary American. He was a man who had freed his slaves before the war, and who deplored the strife and the war which followed, and it is gratifying to know that the time has come when his memory can be respected and honored by all Americans.

Around OUR HOUSE
by Kathryn Tucker Windham

What a busy week! Right in the midst of all the many preparations for Christmas, we're having a birthday celebration, the six-year-old is turning seven. For her, this birthday overshadows even the excitement of Christmas, temporarily at least.

There's to be a small party with some members of the First Grade coming after school to dress up and play lady. We've gathered up discarded hats, old evening dresses, costume jewelry and high heel shoes all over the neighborhood to provide the young ladies with adequate wardrobes for the occasion. There'll even be nail polish, lipstick, rouge, powder and creams for their use.

The four-year-old isn't very interested in the "sissy" party except for wanting to make sure that he's invited in at refreshment time. Nothing can take his mind off the nearness of Christmas. During the rain the other day, he stood on the porch watching the puddles on the walk. He called to me:

"Mother, do you know what the raindrops are singing? They're singing 'Jingle Bells'."

When you're four years old and December has come, everything, even raindrops, sings a song of Christmas.

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, had a Christmas party the other night for some of the neighborhood children.

For a table centerpiece, she filled a big fish bowl with colored balls, stuck tall green candles into the bowl and surrounded the whole thing with small pine branches in which nestled clusters of red suckers.

For an added festive note at refreshment time, she tied bows of narrow red ribbon, fastened tiny bells to each end of the ribbon and pinned the bows to the napkins. All the little girls present immediately unpinned the tinkling bows from the napkins and pinned them to their petticoats!

I've been going all over the neighborhood the last few days looking for simple and attractive holiday decorations to try out around our house. The next door neighbor, of course, has exquisite decorations, but they're too elaborate for me to try to copy.

On her front door, the neighbor around the corner has a round tube of wide-mesh chicken wire filled with colored balls. The tube is hung from a big red bow, and it has a few sprigs of greenery stuck in the wire.

The neighbor across the street has an evergreen ball on her dining room table. She sharpened the ends of green sprigs and stuck them into a big potato base in the shape of a sphere. She used small balls and bows of metallic ribbon for decorations.

We started making a gumdrop chain for our Christmas tree like the one the neighbor up the street made, but the gumdrops tasted so good to the seven-year-old, the four-year-old and the one-year-old that we had to abandon the project!

Our cook neighbor pleases her friends with gifts of candy at Christmas. One of her favorites is orange fudge squares made like this: Combine 2 cups sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ cup milk and cook to soft ball stage. Quickly add 1½ teaspoons grated orange rind, ¼ cup margarine, ½ teaspoon vanilla and ½ cup chopped pecans. Cool. Beat until creamy and pour into well-oiled pan. Cut in squares while still slightly warm.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—Did the U. S. ever have a Congress consisting of just one house?

A—The Continental Congress had a single house. The Articles of Confederation, delegated legislative power, for actions the states could not handle individually, to a Continental Congress of delegates from the 13 states. After the Revolutionary War, pressure for establishment of a stronger national government, led to the adoption of the Constitution, which was declared ratified on March 4, 1789. A compromise between the large in population, and small states, the document called for a two-house Congress, the House based on population (for the large states) and the Senate on equal representation (for the less populous states).

Q—How many current Senators and Representatives are not native citizens?

A—At least eight Members of Congress, including one Senator, were not born in the U. S. They list these birthplaces in their biographies in the Congressional Directory: Sen. James E. Murray (D. Mont.), Canada; and Reps. Noah M. Mason (R. Ill.), Wales; Thaddeus M. Machrowicz (D. Mont.), Poland; Steven B. Derounian (R. N. Y.), Bulgaria; Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. (D. N. Y.), Canada; Katharine St. George (R. N. Y.), England; Otto Krueger (R. N. D.), Russia; and Robert Crosser (D. Ohio), Scotland.

Q—Did the scientific committee appointed by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks to evaluate the National Bureau of Standard ever make a report?

A—Yes. On Oct. 15 the committee reported that the over-all work of the Bureau was "superior" and recommended increased appropriations for it. The Committee also recommended, among other things, that weapons research done by the Bureau for the Department of Defense be transferred to the armed services, and that non-technical procedures policy be the responsibility of the Secretary of Commerce. Weeks on April 3 had asked seven scientific groups to form a committee to probe operations of the Bureau, which, with its ousted-and-restored head, Dr. Allen V. Astin, figured in a controversy over the merits of a battery additive, AD-X2.

BRIGHTER CHRISTMAS MADE POSSIBLE BY V.F.W.

Montgomery, Ala. — Christmas is to be brighter for hundreds of children and needy families in Alabama as a result of community service programs sponsored by Veterans of Foreign Wars Posts and their Ladies Auxiliaries.

The overseas veterans make Christmas parties for youngsters and adults one of their leading community service projects.

Telfair J. Mashburn of Bay Minette, V.F.W. state commander, declared today that his organization's greatly expanded 1953 Christmas activities will highlight the 54 year old veterans organization's campaign designed to "honor the dead by helping the living."

Mashburn said that the V.F.W. men and women have assembled toys and candy for children's Christmas parties in many Alabama civic centers, Post Homes, orphanages and hospitals. Also areto be food baskets and other gifts for needy families and individuals in hospitals and institutions.

A wide variety of special entertainment programs, with Santa Claus as the center of attraction, are to feature the V.F.W. parties.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Ladies Auxiliary sponsor a nation-wide community service campaign throughout the year. Activities develop 700 types of direct assistance programs. More than 307,000 projects were reported in the 1952-53 campaign. Christmas holidays constitute te organization's busiest community service season, Mashburn concluded.

COMMANDER-INCHIEF OF VFW TO VISIT ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala. — Wayne E. Richards, Arkansas City, Kansas, Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will visit Alabama January 7th, according to an announcement today by Telfair J. Mashburn, Bay Minette, state V.F.W. commander.

Richards, a business executive and Air Force veteran pilot of World War II, will make a major network address during an evening banquet in Birmingham where John A. Jenkins, state V.F.W. Senior vice commander, is chairman of arrangements for the host Kelly-Ingram Post 668.

Richards will address a luncheon gathering at Decatur prior to coming to Birmingham. Bill Freeman, Commander of the Decatur Post 4190, is chairman of luncheon arrangements. V.F.W. and Auxiliary members from throughout the state will participate in welcoming their national leader.

Recently returned from a 27-day tour of Alaska, Japan, Korea, Okinawa, China and Formosa, the Chief is expected to report on conditions in the Far East in relation to V.F.W. programs for National Security and Foreign Relations. While in the Far East, Richards presented Korean President Syngman Rhee and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek with V.F.W. gold medals and Certificates of Merit for their distinguished leadership dedicated to the cause of liberating their people from slavery and communism. Richards accepted for the V.F.W. the Korean Medal.

The V.F.W. National leader will come to Alabama while on a tour of Southern states.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

Sinusitis

Normally everyone after a certain age has not one but eight sinuses, which are little canals or cavities in the facial bones of the skull. If an infection is present in one of these canals, it is called sinusitis. Interestingly enough, the frontal sinuses are not present at birth, but begin their formation at about the seventh or eighth year.

When an infection attacks any one of the sinuses, the complaint is characterized with symptoms much like the common cold—sneezing, tickling and itching of the nasal passages, draining of the nasal secretions, and a soreness in the affected areas. Because of the sweeling of the nasal tissue, there is difficulty in breathing.

It is believed that the function of the sinuses is to lighten the weight of the skull and give resanance and quality to the human voice. They also help in conditioning inhaled air by warming and moistening it.

Some of the newer medications have been beneficial in relieving sinusitis, particularly in the acute stage. However, very often the condition becomes chronic; and the passages swell and close thus preventing the drainage of the infectious secretions. When this occurs, instruments very often are required to open the passages. Strangely, the location of the sinuses in the head does not aid in easy drainage. It is by changing position when lying down that each set of canals is helped to discharge.

The victim of sinusitis is the target of many marketed "curealls." Inhalators, sprays, and pledgets containing medications are among products packaged to relieve the sufferer. Because the lining of the nose and its general makeup is sensitive, a person would be wise to refrain from their use unless recommended by a physician. Unless properly administered, more harm than good can be accomplished.

THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT

To many persons the approaching holidays mean little, a day or two away from work or a wish for the hurry and bustle to be over. But to the preponderance of people all over the world, the Christmas holidays loom as a very special time, a time to share and distribute happiness wherever possible. This is the way it should be, for happiness begets radiance and warmth of spirit.

Don't let illness or accident mar your holidays. Don't force yourself to do one more chore, because it may be that one last effort that will place you at the breaking point — too tired to enjoy yourself, much less to spread cheer to those who love you. And it's not fun for them if you're sick.

What about toys? Did you remember that some can be dangerous in tiny, unthinking hands? The rifle with its pointed muzzle. How could you know that it would be used to penetrate a child's eye? Or how could you know the little girl with her inquisitive fingers would loosen the bright-colored beads serving as eyes for her beloved teddy bear and swallow them?

Then consider your good health of mind. Are you too tired from all your activities to be mentally alert? Have you forgotten that a calm and serene spirit can enthusiastically spread happiness? Remember an excess of anything, whether it is food, drink or faulty attitudes, can spoil the holiday spirit rather than enhance it.

Make your holiday time a happy time, but remember too the Christmas season has special meaning, regardless of your creed.

Let the approaching festive season be full of happiness for you and your loved ones, free from illness and accident. And remember that your happiness will spread its warmth to others. The result will be a truly, happy holiday for everyone.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

A Christmas Carol

God bless you all this Christmas Day
And drive the cares and griefs away.
Oh, may the shining Bethlehem star
Which led the wise men from afar
Upon your heads, good sirs, still glow
To light the path that ye should go.

As God once blessed the stable grim
And made it radiant for Him;
As it was fit to shield His Son,
May thy roof be a Holy one;
May all who come this house to share
Rest sweetly in His gracious care.

Within thy walls may peace abide,
The peace for which the Savior died.
Though humble be the rafters here,
Above them may the stars shine clear,
And in this home thou lovest well
May excellence of spirit dwell.

God bless you all this Christmas Day;
May Bethlehem's star still light thy way
And guide thee to the perfect peace
When every fear and doubt shall cease.
And may thy home such glory know
As did the stable long ago.

Washington Report

Credit Buying Slows—U. S. Economy Sound—

Washington — In the last few months consumer credit has increased at a slower pace than it did in the corresponding months of 1952, and this indicates that warnings to banks and finance companies, about the growing volume of consumer credit, are perhaps not necessary after all.

The average American consumer appears to be applying his own brakes to the steady build-up of consumer credit totals, which includes installment purchases of things like refrigerators and automobiles. As a result of the slowdown, the future for lending agencies seems pretty sound.

In fact, there are those who argue that installment purchases and consumer credit are the safest form of investment in the ordinary lending field. They point out that such debts were paid off at a good rate even in the worst years of the 1929-33 depression. Most people keep up their payments on goods bought on the installment plan even if they must make major sacrifices in other things.

The consumer credit total reached its pre-war level in the past sixty days. That is, the total consumer credit total reached eleven per cent of the disposal income. That is where it was just before World War II, and few people were worrying about the economic picture at that time. Though it's true that since World War II credit buying had not pushed this figure up to eleven per cent before, there is disagreement whether a higher percentage would constitute an unsound condition.

At any rate, the increase in the total consumer debt has slowed in recent months and it may be that the average American buyer will take care of the budget problem all by himself, by keeping his own family budget in a sound condition. Meanwhile it is good to keep in mind that the consumer debt-disposable income ratio today is no higher than it was at the outbreak of World War II.

Pulpwood stumpage prices on marked stands vary from $2.50 to $7 per cord, depending on distance from the mill, thickness of the stand, and logging conditions.

Fight TB ---

Buy Christmas Seals Now Urges Mrs. Tucker

It was only a dirty dollar bill.

But it brought a warm sense of gratitude when it was received by Mrs. R. M. Tucker, president of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

This dollar bill was in payment for Christmas Seals. It was given cheerfully and voluntarily by a citizen who wants to do a good deed for his fellow man.

Christmas Seal money can mean the difference between life and death to many Alabama citizens. It is estimated more than six million American lives have been saved since the first Seals were sold 47 years ago.

Many people can afford and do contribute more than a dollar to fight TB — some give less. But every penny sent in payment for each little Seal plays a big part in a campaign to wipe out an unnecessary evil. Tuberculosis can be prevented.

Christmas Seals re a tradition of the happy, holiday season. They are a reminder to stop a bit and take thought of family, friends and neighbors. They help protect your home against a killer.

Don't forget the envelope you received to return your Christmas Seal contribution. Look it up and send it in now!

Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company is delivering new telephone directories to Prattville and Wetumpka. This will be the first time in recent years that they have not been included in the Montgomery directory.

W. L. Hinds, Montgomery District Manager of Southern Bell, said approximately 2100 of the new gray-colored books were being distributed to subscribers using approximately 4,151 telephones in the two cities. The growth of the Prattville and Wetumpka Telephone Systems in recent years is the reason for issuing separate directories.

Limited To Two Years-

Voters Pass Amendment To Cut Accumulated Poll Tax, By 3-2

Even though the Amendment limiting accumulated poll tax to two years was soundly defeated in Chilton County the State passed the amendment by a vote of 61,000 to 43,000. This count is of only about 1900 of the 2389 boxes in the State and is not complete. A final vote has not been released

Chilton County voted for Amendment No. 1, 430; against 869.

For Amendment No. 2, the local vote was for 524; against 478

Here is the tally on the other eight amendments:

Amenlment No. 3 (Franklin County) — Yes, 281; No, 571.

Amendment No. 4 (Talladega County) — Yes, 357; No, 485

Amendment No. 5 (Russellville)— Yes, 299; No, 526.

Amendment No. 6 (Lawrence County) — Yes, 418; No, 397

Amendment No. 7 (Mobile County) — Yes, 374; No, 419.

Amendment No. 8 (Marshall County) — Yes, 416; No, 383.

Amendment No. 9 (Chambers County) — Yes, 411; No, 390.

Amendment No. 10 (Chambers County) — Yes, 286; No, 487.

M. C. (Jack) Hayes, Tax Collector, is awaiting a ruling from the Attorney General as to whether or not a person 47 years of age is due any poll tax at all. The Amendment reads: . . "all poll taxes due . . for the two calendar years next preceding" . . the election at which they offer to vote. This could mean that a person who had never paid poll tax and who was over 47 years could, upon registering, vote without paying poll tax. However, Mr. Hayes says he will issue no statement until he has received orders from Montgomery as to what procedure to take.

In the meantime watch for the date the Board of Registrars will meet and be sure you are registered. The Tax Collector will notify Chilton County News as soon as instructions are received. So watch for an announcement in the next issue of your newspaper.

Man Seriously Injured In Accident Near Jemison

JEMISON HIGH DEFEATS WEST BLOCTON 52-32

On Tuesday night the Jemison Panthers upset the West Blocton High Basketeers by a 52 to 32 margin.

Pete Gothard, JHS center, was high pointer for the game, looping in 22 points. Rice was the best scorer for West Blocton with 12 points.

This was Coach Eubanks' initial win with his brand new team, with the exception of Gothard, only holdover from last year's team.

The Jemison team got away to a cold, slow start, leading only 10 to 8 at the end of the first quarter, but the second quarter saw them loosen up with a volley of shots that bounced them out into a 25 to 13 lead at the half. The Bibb County boys played a very conservative game, committing nine personal fouls against 18 for Jemison. However, the Jemison team capitalized on their foul shots, registering 10 points out of 15 shots, while the visitors could only muster 13 points out of 31 free throws.

The shining light of the Jemison victory was the rebounding of the ball off both boards. Lucas, Gothard, Porter, and Barrett really rode high in controlling the ball from the boards.

Coach Mac Smith's "B" team hung up victory number 3 of the new season by banging 43 points through the net, while the West Blocton "Bees" were held to 26. Joe Robinson and Ed Riggins tied with 14 points each, to lead the scoring for Jemison. Allen (9) and Cooke (8) led in pointers for the Bibb County boys.

The Jemisn "Bees" led 24 to 6 at the half. This gave Coach Smith an opportunity to use 17 players in this game. Their only loss this season was a 31 to 30 defeat by the Parrish High School Bees of Selma last week.

The Calera High School Basketballers will invade the Jemison gymnasium next Friday, December 18th.

Hunting Season Extended For 10 Days

Montgomery, Ala.—Hunting seasons in 26 North Alaama Counties were extended today by the State Conservation Department to compensate for 10 days when hunting was closed during November because of extreme forest fire conditions.

Earl M. McGowin, Director of Conservation, issued a regulation extending the squirrel, rabbit, coon and possum hunting seasons in the following counties only: Pickens, Tuscaloosa, Jefferson, Shelby, St. Clair, Calhoun, Cleburne, Lamar, Fayette, Walker, Blount, Etowah, Cherokee, Marion, Winston, Cullman, Franklin, Lawrence, Morgan, Marshall, DeKalb, Colbert, Lauderdale, Limestone, Madison and Jackson.

The squirrel season will remain open through January 11, 1954, rather than through January 3 as scheduled. The rabbit, coon and possum seasons will be open through March 2, 1954, rather than February 20 as scheduled. The bag limits and other regulations which applied to these animals in the regular season shall remain the same during the extension period.

McGowin praised the excellent co-operation given by hunters during the crucial period when closed hunting seasons helped fire fighters to bring under control the large number of forest fires in North Alabama.

"All of us in the Department are grateful for the excellent co-operation received during the period of emergency," McGowin said.

THIS CHRISTMAS SEASON

Like all other Christmas Seasons before it, Chilton County is going through all the growing pains necessary to a "Happy Holiday Season."

The solicitors are out collecting the contributions, the merchants are out with their trucks gathering toys and fruits for the needy, the churches are bright with lights each night preparing for their "White Christmas" program on next Sunday. The list could go on and on.

But those are the things that go to make up the Christmas season as we know it — thoughts of God, thoughts of the poor and the afflicted and thoughts of those who are not as fortunate as we.

You take a part this Christmas. You will find a real satisfaction in doing something for others. Although it seems at times your burden is a heavy one, just look around you and take notice of the other fellows. You'll come to realize how fortunate you are.

If you want a real happy Christmas this year, just go out and try to make someone else happy. That's the best prescription for happiness you can get.

BACK TO EASY MONEY

There are many indications that the Administration is turning away from its mis-named "hard money" policy, back to the "easy money" policies of Democratic administrations. For one thing, inflation has been checked substantially and there is no further need for many of the anti-inflation measures adopted by the Republican Administration.

For another thing, the problem of balancing the budget is continuing to defy solution and when the government is spending more money than it takes in, an easy-money situation is almost certain to develop. There are also indications that the Treasury, and Republican leaders, became somewhat disturbed this Spring when business seemed to be receding a bit unexpectedly. At that time, the Administration took its first definite action to ease the money supply, and since then, has shown it is highly sensitive to any reverse trends in the business world.

The recent news that the cost of living had reached a new high and that the debt ceiling of $275,000,000,000 was almost certain to be raised in 1954, lent emphasis to the easy-money policy, which is likely in the next year or two. A great deal of publicity has also been devoted recently to the theory that the government debt can be reduced most conveniently if a policy of gradual inflation is followed.

As a matter of fact, a policy of gradual inflation has persisted in this country since its founding. That is true with nearly every country in the world and seems to be an evolutionary financial development. In brief, the debt is reduced by the natural working of this system, as follows: The national debt is $275,000,000,000 in 1954 and the national income is $70,000,000,000. If a period of gradual inflation is followed, as has always been the case in the United States, thirty years from 1954, the national debt might remain about the same (barring a new World War) and the national income would have perhaps doubled. This, in effect, would reduce the ratio of the national debt to national income considerably.

Faced with continued heavy defense spending and an unbalanced budget in the immediate years ahead, the present Administration evidently prefers an easy-money policy, and possibly a normal amount of inflation, to a hard-money policy, and possible deflation.

Compensation Payments For War Veterans Are Clarified

Montgomery, Ala. — Veterans Administration today explained to Korean veterans that compensation payments for service-connected disabilities may be allowed retroactively to one of three different dates.

The dates are determined by three different sets of circumstances, one of which is the time the application for compensation is filed.

Harley A. Smith, manager of the VA Regional Office at Montgomery, listed the three dates as follows:

1. If the veteran files his application within a year from the date of separation from active service and VA finds that his service-connected disability was severe enough at separation to be compensable, compensation payments may be made retroactive to the day following the date of separation.

2. If the veteran files his application within a year from the date of separation, but his disability was not severe enough at separation to be compensable, compensation payments may be made retroactive only to the date the evidence shows the disability became severe enough to rate compensation.

3. If the veteran files his application later than one year after separation, compensation payments may be made retroactive to the date of filing.

Smith said this does not indicate there is a limit for filing. He said veterans may apply for disability compensation at any time during their lives.

Compensation may be paid monthly to veterans who have disabilities which are judged to have been incurred in or aggravated by service in the armed forces either during peacetime or wartime service. The peacetime rate is 80 percent of wartime rate unless the disability resulted from extra-hazardous service, in which case the wartime rate may apply.

Disability claims for veterans in the Montgomery office area, encompassing Alabama are handled by the Regional Office, located at 400 Lee Street, Montgomery.

SCANNING THE NEWS

BOTH REPUBLICANS and Democrats have some new campaign "wrinkles" as they prepare for the 1954 Congressional election.

At stake in this important mid-term contest will be control of Congress for the following two years and a favorable position for the 1956 Presidential race.

So neither party is going to overlook any bets. Each has plans to do some raiding of the other's private preserves. Congressional Quarterly was told in interviews with party planners.

Republicans are already engaged in a frontal attack on the Democratic South. They are also going after the vote in the big cities—a vote which has been pretty generally Democratic in the past.

The Democrats are preparing to do some intensive organizing in usually GOP territory. They want to cut into the huge vote the Republicans have been rolling up in the suburbs, and are after GOP rural districts of the Midwest.

As the major parties start the 1954 campaign they are on virtually even footing, so far as the House seats are concerned. The Republicans have 219 Members and control the House. There are 215 Democrats and one independent. All 435 House seats will be on the election block.

GOP strategy calls for a spirited 1954 Congressional campaign in the South. The Republicans plan to put up nominees in most of the 38 Congressional districts carried by President Eisenhower in the 10 Southern states and border Tennessee.

While the GOP leaders are inspecting voter prospects in the big cities, Democratic leaders are taking a long look at the rapidly growing suburbs. The Republicans jumped in quickly to organize solidly there.

Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell of the National Committee thinks Democratic prospects in such areas are good if they can minimize social pressures to "vote Republican."

Cutting down high GOP election percentages in the suburbs would pay off for the Democrats, particularly in tight, state-wide races. They were encouraged when they recently won a number of municipal elections in suburban Connecticut and New York communities.

The Midwest is getting special attention from both parties. The Democrats are confident that they have their best opportunity in years to score in farm districts because of falling farm prices.

Delighted to win the rura Ninth Wisconsin district for the first time in history, they interpreted the outcome of the recent special election there as a slap by farmers at the Eisenhower Administration's farm program.

Democrats also consider their chances excellent to pick up seats in Midwestern industrial areas, where their Congressional nominees did well in 1948.

The President polled over five million more votes than did the 1952 GOP Congressional nominees. He carried 295 Congressional districts; the GOP won only 221 House seats. GOP leaders will try to persuade all of those who voted for Mr. Eisenhower in 1952 to vote GOP in the 1954 Congressional contests, with a plea that the President needs a Republican Congress.

As for Democrats, they say it is already "time for a change" from "big business government," "give-away" programs and falling farm prices

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

IT'S a wonderful gadget and modern civilization would be in a much sadder state without it. But—I have discarded mine.

Because I have, I often look down my nose at the old-fashioned folks who still have to use one — the butcher who must arise and open his shop for the day; the milkman who is up even earlier and on his way; all of the workers and tradesmen, salespeople; our world really revolves around this important gadget—the alarm clock.

As I said, I don't own one these days. And, it's wonderful. Believe me, I had quite a time before, too I can remember when I had to put the alarm right next to my ear in order to be awakened. After so many times of turning it off and going back to sleep, missing my morning coffee and breakfast, and still being late for work, I took off the little button on the back, making it difficult and almost impossible to turn off the alarm. After many years, we grew accustomed to each other and the rasping sound of the alarm woke me, then lulled me to sleep once again.

Right, I purchased a new alarm clock, a loud one, which sounded much like a rhapsody from a riveter's dream. It was too much, so I had to place it clear across the room to save my poor eardrums. There was an advantage here, in that I had to walk across the room to turn it off before the window panes were shattered. This one eventually lost its magic ability to arouse me, so I did it—I got married.

This marked the end of my association with alarm clocks. For two years, I went on my merry way each morning, jet-propelled by two strong, daintily-shaped feet.

At the end of two years experience with this tried and trusted method, I was blessed by receiving my present alarm. It arrived one night around midnight. The noise it made, perhaps to some unpleasant, sounded wonderful to me. A sort of a long WAAaaaa!

BIBLE FACTS

God in the Old Testament is Jesus Christ in the New.

Jesus Christ is a lamb slain from the foundation of the world. The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophesy. The Elijah that was to come, did come, and brought the people back to the commandments of God, and the testimony of Jesus. He (Elijah) did this by miracles such as fire burning up the sacrifice, even licking up all the waters out of the trenches, the three years and six months famine, how God fed him, and how he restored life to the widow's son. The Elijah that is to come has come already (and ye did what ye would unto him). This time he came teaching and preaching repentance, bringing the people back to God's commandments and prophecies (which is the testimony of Jesus). He performed no miracles (not even one), but what he taught was true, and Jesus said he (Elijah) was the greatest prophet ever born of a woman, and if ye will receive it, this is Elias (Elijah) which was for to come.

Friends, let me beg you in the Name of the Eternal through the Name of His First Begotten, and first born Son (my creator, my redeemer, my precious Lord and Savior, my God) and through the Holy Spirit to repent; come back to God's commandments and the testimony of Jesus.

Then through obedience ye shall receive that unction from the Holy One and ye know all things. Man does not have to reach you any more. That unction is the Holy Spirit. God gives to all that obey Him, and it (the Holy Spirit) makes intercessions, reveals, and instructs (yes, teaches of all things we need to know.)

I challenge any one by the authority of God's Word to prove that these facts, I have given you, are not true and undisputable.

In conclusion, let me say once more that we must fulfill every point in God's spiritual law in our hearts and keep and teach every point for if we fail in one point we are guilty of all, for every word is righteousness and is spirit and life.

I left off books, chapters and verses to let you find, and if you are interested and cannot find in your Bible, then bring your Bible and I will read with you and pray with you that God will give you light. Goodbye. — Lee A. Popwell.

Harry Collins Honored By American Legion—

Harry Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Akins Collins of Thorsby, won the American Legion Essay Contest in the Fifth District. Harry is a student at Jemison High School and won his prize of $25.00 on his essay on the Constitution of The United States. He is the first of nine district winners in the state wide essay contest to be announced. He now has a chance to compete for the area awards of $50.00 each. The winner of this contest will then compete for the State finals which awards $100.00.

The Legion encourages young people to "acquire a more precise understanding of and appreciation for their fundamental rights and responsibilities as future citizens."

Collins' essay was chosen over several thousand essays entered in this contest and the three highest ranking contestants were from Chilton, Shelby and Jefferson counties with Collins' being judged the best.

This was quite a nice birthday notice for Harry as it was announced in The Birmingham News on his seventeenth birthday, December 10.

American Legion Post No. 206 sponsored Harry at the Boy's State last summer and encouraged him in his work whenever the opportunity came.

Legion And Auxiliary—

The pledge of the American Legion and the Auxiliary begins with the first four words of the Constitution of the United States: "For God and Country," and our post already has a contribution on it's way to help with the "Wooden Church Crusade" now in progress in the war torn areas paralleling the Iron Curtain in Europe. The drastic shortage of physical facilities for worship is almost nil in Western Germany. These churches will be built on or near the site of the churches destroyed in the war. Yes, we too believe and take an active part in Foreign Missions. We do not try to play God nor do we make any effort to "get ahead" of the churches of our great country in this crusade. To the untutored, the Legion and Auxiliary may not seem to be doing much good to those outside the membership, but it must be remembered that membership in this organization, the world's largest organization, has been purchased by someone (or yourself) who has been trained and defended our Country through blood, sweat and tears, and maybe life itself was lost.

"We are exclusive because it matters not who you are, how much money you have or who your ancestors were, you cannot buy membership in this organization.

The American Legion believes in "Peace" but it also believes in preparation.

Your local Post and Auxiliary's Christmas prayer is:

O Thou Prince of Peace, whose pitying heart bleeds for a warring, sinning world with it's pain and suffering, take from us the seeds of war and through us create peace, if it be Thy will.—Amen.

Mulberry Church—

We were proud of the good attendance at Mulberry Sunday. We had one hundred eleven in Sunday School. Our goal for next Sunday is one hundred twenty-five. Let us all attend and bring some one with you.

Have all you teachers contacted pupils this week? Let them know you are interested in them being present. A large congregation would certainly please our pastor, Sunday School superintendent and B.T.U. director. You will get a blessing when you attend church service. Bro. Jones delivered two of his best sermons Sunday.

Next Sunday we will have our regular services Sunday morning with some special Christmas songs. Sunday night we will have the Christmas Pageant. Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Jack Tucker and Mrs Ernest Lecroy has charge of this pageant. Most of our young people and some older people are taking part in it. We are expecting a large crowd to see it.

The Sunbeams will meet with David Cummings Saturday afternoon. Each one bring a gift for the tree.

As we approach this Christmas season, let us think of the true meaning of Christmas and why we have Christmas. Let us celebrate it in a way that will be pleasing to the One Who came into the world many years ago as a Babe to save us from our sins. Think of others, not of yourself.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish all my friends and readers a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Let's all make this a newsy year. Not too long ago, someone in another town or community stated they did not know anyone in Maplesville, but one or two, but just couldn't wait to get the paper to see what our churches were doing, so let's let them know this next year just what we are doing in our churches, clubs, school and all other organizations.

If each organization would appoint a reporter, an active one, I mean, and get this news to me on Mondays of each week, I could get all our news in. If all reporters were as wide awake as the Junior 4-H Boys and Girls Club Reporter are, we would get the news. They get theirs to me even if they are little fellows.

Again, I wish each any every one a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year!

FOOD for the holidays can wear a festive air almost as easily as a plain one and with so little effort. Your family deserves a bit of extra attention in this department, so try these tips

Pop some cranberry jelly into muffin pans after you've poured in about two tablespoons of batter. Add remaining batter to fill the cups two-thirds full. A nice red surprise when they bite into the muffin.

If you have some candied fruits left over from fruit cake making,

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Spiced Nuts

2 tablespoons cold water
1 egg white, slightly beaten
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon allspice
1 cup walnut halves
1 cup pecan halves

Mix together water and egg white. Dissolve sugar in egg white mixture. Add spices and salt, mixing well. Dip nuts in this mixture, then place them flat side down on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a very slow (250°) oven until golden brown, about one hour.

cut these fine and drop them into the quick coffee cake batter for a delicious hot breakfast bread.

Molded vanilla pudding does nice by with a garnish of thawed frozen red raspberries because it's a simple dessert and also in keeping with the holiday theme.

When you have folks dropping in to help decorate the tree serve a dip made of equal parts of cream cheese, roquefort cheese and shredded dried beef. Mugs of hot chocolate with a dash of spice on the whipped cream will be welcome.

Keep a jar of holiday cookies handy so they may be served with easily prepared packaged puddings or fruit-in-season for lunch and dinner desserts.

FRUIT-NUT BREAD

Rich in nutritive value and appealing to the taste, home-made fruit nut bread is one answer to the snack problem for the mother of active, growing youngsters, says Mrs. Sam Cox, Jr., Vocational Homemaking Teacher at Verbena High School. It makes a flavorful sandwich bread, too, for picnics or lunches, and needs only a spread of butter or magarine or cream cheese. Here is the recipe, developed in the U. S. Department of Agriculture:

Ingredients: ½ cup dried apricots; ½ cup raisins; ¼ cup orange juice; ¾ cup sugar; 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 1 egg; 2 ½ cups sifted all-purpose flour; ¼ teaspoon salt; 4 teaspoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon soda; ½ cup finely chopped nuts.

To make: Cover apricots and raisins with hot water and soak for 30 minutes. Drain and save water; grind fruit finely in food chopper. Add grated orange rind, juice, and water to ground fruit. Stir in sugar, melted butter or margarine, and vanilla. Beat egg and blend in.

Sift together the flour, salt, baking powder, and soda. Combine with the fruit mixture. Add nuts and blend well. Pour into a greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. for 1 hour. Cool and slice ¼ inch thick.

The official judges of the Alabama Power Company 1953 Fishing Contest met in Wetumpka last week and selected eighteen trophy winners.

A first, second and third place award was given for the three largest entries in each of the six contest divisions. The winner of entries having an equal weight was determined by the date that the entry was made. Usually the Smallmouth Bass Division gives the contest judges more concern than any other division. Last year the judges recommended that a change be made in the contest rules that would require all Smallmouth Bass entries, exceeding 3½ pounds, be accompanied by a clear snap-shot of the fish. As you know, this rule No 8, was inserted in the 1953 contest and resulted in an easier and more accurate judging of the entries.

The following contest winners will be advised, and the trophies will be delivered when engraving is completed:

4-H PROJECT RECORDS

Each 4-H Club member is required to have one or more projects to work on during the year. A record should be kept by the 4-H'er for each project so that he or she and others will know what has been done on the project. Once each year the 4-H records are turned in to the County and Home Demonstration Agents' office. These records are being collected now. Some records were turned in during November and all others should be turned in at the December 4-H Club meeting.

Project records should include a list of what has been done on each project during the past year. A separate sheet is used for each project. Each 4-H'er should also write a story about his 4-H Club work or what the Club has meant to him. These stories may be brief or several pages.

Projects that 4-H'ers may take include: Clothing, food preparation, canning, freezing, home improvement, room improvement, beautification of home grounds, farm and home safety, field crops, gardening, health, dairy, farm and home electricity, forestry, meat animals, poultry, ironing, and others. Most of these projects are suitable for either boys or girls. At the present time the majority of Chilton County 4-H'ers have the following projects: Clothing, food preparation, meat animals and field crops. Increased interest is being taken in some of the other projects.

Four-H members who work on their projects and keep good records have the opportunity of receiving special recognition for their work. Those who complete their projects receive a certificate at the County Rally each spring. The National Committee on 4-H Club work presents metal award to the 4-H'ers with the best record for each project. County contests are held for many projects and the County winner has the opportunity of entering State contests. Valuable prizes or trips are awarded to State contest winners.

Chilton County 4-H boys and girls have a special reason for working hard on their projects and keeping good records. A registered Jersey heifer, presented by Shelton Truck and Tractor Company, will be awarded to the 4-H'er who turns in the best record for the County. Last year's winner of the heifer was Joan Smitherman, 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Smitherman, Rt. 1, Maplesville, Ala. This is her third year as a member of the Maplesville Club. 4-H'ers are urged to have their records completed and turn them in at the December 4-H Club meeting in each school.

CRAZY CHRISTMAS

By Ona Freeman Lathrop

FOR YEARS Emily Kane had secretly told herself that she'd like to skip Christmas. She didn't want Clint nor the children to know how she felt about it, but it was coming to be such a commercialized rat-race and such a burden to deck the house and the tree, get all the presents ready, and plan and get the big dinner! Yet year after year she went through with it, inviting all the married children and their families home for the feast and gift exchange, making the traditional cookies and candies, working herself into a wreck.

Now at last it was going to be different!

"Emily, how would you like to go with me to our National Convention this holiday?" Clint had proposed a few weeks ago. "It's to be held in St. Petersburg and would be a nice break in the rugged winter for us. But I suppose you couldn't leave the family at Christmas, eh?"

"Why not?" she said surprisingly. "It's about time the children made Christmas in their own homes for their own families. I'll just tell them we've been selfish always wanting them here."

"Well!" Clint grinned "I never thought you'd take me up on that. But we'll have a wonderful time, Emily. Sure you don't mind being away from them?"

So it was arranged. She broke the news gently to their offspring, and she hurried and bought the gifts and left them at the various houses before they set out.

"Clint, I just can't believe yet that I don't have to stuff a goose and make plum pudding and salads and clean up all that Christmas wrapping trash!"

"Why Emily, you old traitor. Here I thought all these years that you loved all that excitement and clutter," he chuckled.

"Well, I did—in a way—but the last few years I've been so sick of it could scream."

She settled her nice new grey suit and her gay red hat and watched the flying scenery. But nagging little thoughts kept intruding. Would her daughter Edna remember to set up the bride-doll she'd bought little Emmy on its standard under their tree? Would Carl see that young Chuck's tricycle was put together properly? Carl's wife couldn't cook for snuff. She did hope Jane wouldn't burn the fowl this year. And Frances was planning store-bought pudding for dessert!

At the swank hotel she kept pinching herself to see if this could be she. Christmas eve and no stockings to fill! She and Clint strolled down to the ball room but decided to turn in early and get some sleep. Somehow this gaudy display seemed a little sacrilegious.

On Christmas day she awoke with one of her terrific headaches. "I think I'll just take a fruit plate for lunch," she announced.

"I will, too." Clint agreed "You know as delegate I have to go to a Board dinner tonight, so I won't overload this noon." They nibbled their lunch in silence. Emily stared out the window at the green grass and exotic flowers and waving palms. Certainly this didn't seem like Christmas. She loved snow.

Then suddenly she realized that this was Christmas dinner she was eating, and that she would be eating alone tonight and would probably just order a sandwich in her room. She choked on the avocado and gulped her black coffee. A tear rolled down her cheek.

"Hey, honey, what ails you?" Clint exclaimed. "Not pining for the kids, are you? I thought you were glad to get away from it all."

"Of course not," she scoffed. "Just choked a little, that's all." She'd never let him know how her heart was aching for the hubbub and the bustle and the smell of Christmas at home.

"Clint, seems to me January is a better time for a winter vacation. Breaks the winter more evenly in two," she avowed, and wondered why Clint smiled into his dessert.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

EMMA M. VICKERS, 5 S. Virginia Avenue, Atlantic City, New Jersey, was so worried and frightened one day at the age of seven that she almost lost her life.

She and her brother Archie were sliding on the ice covering a large salt pond. Archie wouldn't go on the ice because he knew it wasn't strong enough, but on went Emma. She slid across the pond and reached the other side where the ice was too thin. In she went up to her neck.

CARNEGIE

For some reason an iron stake had been driven into the meadows at the edge of the pond, and at the very spot where she went through the ice. She grabbed this stake, hung on and began to cry, "Ooooh Archie, I'm a gonner—run for help!" She was so frightened that she could hardly hold on to the stake.

As she saw Archie running across the meadows she began to pray. The only prayer she knew was Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep. She said that little prayer over and over, more fervently than she had ever said it. Suddenly her fear vanished and she became calm and was able to hold firmly to the stake.

Then she saw her father running across the meadows toward her. He pulled her out and took her home.

She says she is sure that her prayer conquered her fear and enabled her to hold on to the stake when she otherwise would have gone down under the ice. Ever since that day she has found prayer to be the best thing in the world for conquering fear and worry.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

The Price of Peace and a Warless World.

Lesson for December 20: Isaiah 2: 2-4; 9: 2, 3-7; Luke 2: 8-14.

Golden Text: Isaiah 9: 6.

On this last Sunday before Christman Day, we consider some passages from Isaiah and one from Luke. So confident is the great Isaiah about the events of which he writes that in some place he uses the present tense as if the events were actually happening.

But in the first passage, he writes that it "shall come to pass in the latter days" that the Lord's house shall be established. But in the following passages he writes of present fulfillment. Then, in the last passage, he again uses the future and writes of the increase of Christ's government that shall have no end.

We note that he writes first of the establishment of the church which, because of the exalted place ascribed to it, will overtop all the institutions of men and be the mightiest power for good in their affairs. And the influence of the church will be so great that it will bring world peace. Let us, in this time of wars and rumors of wars, strengthen the church as the institution through which we hope to outlaw war and bring peace to the world.

In Luke we read of the blessed fulfillment of prophesy in the coming of Jesus, which was announced by the angel to the shepherds who watched their flocks by night. And the angel was joined by a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, "Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace." In Christ we have the hope of a warless world.

Christmas—

There'll always be a Christmas,
To bring us hope and peace
And nothing can destroy it,
The joy will never cease.
There'll always be a Christmas,
Because upon this day

ideas from other editors

From the Seville Chronicle, Seville, Ohio:

"Why don't you write an editorial about . . ."—a good share of what appears in this column is the result of a remark like that made to the editor by a reader. And that is only right and proper; to us a newspaper is a device whose purpose is to let everyone express views and opinions, whether it is an elected official seeking adequate publicity for a tax-paid project, a private citizen whose rights have been abused, or the editor in a tantrum about something.

This week this will be an omnibus of things that aren't going to suit the editor.

Let's take that Demon Rum first: I don't like our Ohio set-up's face. Specifically, why have and occasionally enforce, laws against drunken driving, so long as licenses to sell liquor are at the same time given to roadside taverns by which the last interurban ran 20 years ago?

Evidently the state liquor licensing board expects bartenders in these places to sell drinks only to motorists accompanied by a dry chauffeur. The law is ridiculous.

Gambling also aggravates us. Bingo is illegal, but betting on the horses isn't. We read in an area daily, which exposes bingo and other forms of vicious gambling on days when world news is dull, that bingo is frowned upon because "gangsters and a hoodlum element have taken over those forms of dropping a buck on which they frown, but racing, for which they print a special page of results and odds for horse-lovers, is carefully controlled.

They may be right. Certainly we've never heard of any church group managing to muscle into a paramutual set-up like they have in bingo.

Finally there are, of all things, the ads. Some companies must think the public is as stupid as their vice presidents. Anyone who thinks they can convince us that any kind of cigarette is good for us; that a slice of their bread will replace, meat, eggs, butter and milk in our diet; that 'any sort of laxative will remove our financial worries and restore the bloom of youth to our cheeks, or that their soap or detergent will make clothes whiter than ever, dishes sparkle without drying, while hands dipped in it become young and beautiful overnight, has been smoking something besides tobacco.

Why don't you write an editorial? It's fun!

STANTON NEWS

This community was deeply saddened when the news reached here that Mr. Joe Graham of Maplesville had suffered a heart attack and died early last Friday morning. Mr. Graham will be greatly missed by all who knew him. He had scores of friends everywhere; both white and colored. He was a man that was ever ready to help his fellowman in any way that he could. Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved in their great loss.

JEMISON NEWS

(By MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

IT'S CHRISTMAS!

And time to think about Christ.
He shall be called Wonderful, because:
took the sinner's place
d died to save a guilty race;
cause He stooped to bear the shame;
rever wonderful His name.

Counselor—

cause he bids me come and ask
For guidance in my daily task.
In Him alone all wisdom's found;
So be His Name with honor crowned.

The Mighty God—

Because, tho veiled in lowly guise,
He came from far beyond the skies.
To all the world the tidings tell,
His name is blest Immanuel.

The Everlasting Father—

Because He lived a life below
That men might thus His Father know;
The spirit thence hears witness plain—
Now "Abba Father, born again."

The Prince of Peace—

Because as once my shepherd heard,
"Goodwill to men." This Blessed Word,
Proclaiming while angel chores sang
Till all the hills of Judea rang.
Will he proclaimed the world around,
Till he as King of Kings is crowned.
Then all earth's wars and strife will close
The world shall own Him, "Prince of Peace."

"A Christmas Card"

To Our Friends, Neighbors And Patrons:

We looked around for Christmas Cards that we could send to you, but we couldn't find a single one that somehow seemed to do.

They didn't say what we wanted to say—we thought we could do it better, so this is the reason you are getting today this simple Christmas wish.

Yes, this is Christmas time—we want to take this opportunity of extending to you the season's best wishes — A MERRY CHRISTMAS & A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

And we would feel that something had been left undone were we to overlook this opportunity of thanking you for the business you have given us in the past. Your patronage has been very much appreciated — and we hope to serve you often in the future.

You are cordially invited to bring your children to see our NATIVITY SCENE AND OTHER CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS, which were constructed for your pleasure and good will. Also don't fail to see the beautiful decorations at the Box Office and Concession Building.

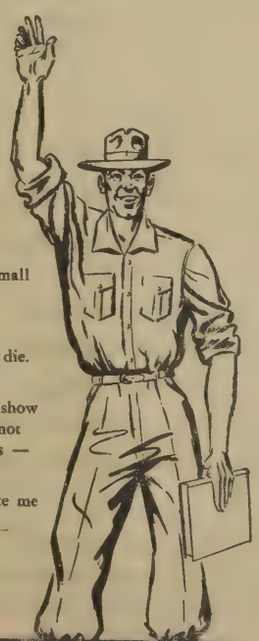
ANOTHER MESSAGE FROM YOUR FRIENDLY FORESTER

Your Woods Need A THINNING?



Growing trees often get so thick that the small younger trees are crowded out.

They need sunshine in order to grow.

Trees so crowded out become stagnant, and die. There's no gain in that.

My job, as one of your neighbors, is to help show you how to thin your woods properly. It's not only the best way to conserve younger trees — it gives you a cash income, too.

For advice that's sound — and free — write me a note. Then I'll be seeing you soon.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Engelbert Widman, Avon, Minnesota: I can remember my father telling me about the days when farmers used butter for greasing wagons and binders because it was cheaper than axle grease. Eventually, butter prices went up and we did not have it at home since my parents sold all they could to get money to pay the bills. Money was so tight that pork and eggs and chickens wouldn't be sold and were worthless

From Lizzie Hester, Pain Lick, Kentucky: I can remember when I use to go to my grandmother's house when she would bake sweet potatoes, corn bread and biscuits in the old ovens in front of the fireplace. Sometimes she would have two or three of them covered with hot coals, all baking at the same time. I believe the biscuits she baked that way were the best I have ever eaten.

A BIG WHEEL

By F. L. Rowley

JACK PHILLIPS was an important man in Shelbyville. His little machine shop had grown so rapidly, and his mail order business had reached such proportions that he was well known not only in our town but throughout the state.

Sad, then, was news that Jack had been offered a job as an executive in a manufacturing plant on the East Coast. We were happy for him of course, but we were reluctant to see him leave Shelbyville. That's why I could have done a jig the day his wife Dorothy came into my store to buy a pair of shoes. She laughed when I offered half-hearted congratulations.

"We're not going," she said.

"But — but — I heard — "

"I know what you heard," said Dorothy Phillips smiling, "and it's true—the part about the job, that is. But Jack loves Shelbyville, and so do I. He doesn't know it yet, but we're not going to leave. I'll think of something."

And I knew she would too. Mrs. Phillips was as smart as she was pretty.

Well, about a week later a chap named Bill Richards checked in at the Shelbyville Arms. He was a distinguished looking man who wore a crisp, black homburg over gray sideburns. Everyone knew that his brief-case contained the fateful contract that Jack Phillips was to sign. Few of us in Shelbyville knew anything about the mysterious processes of big business.

My shoe store is directly across the street from the Shelbyville Arms. I dropped all six of the shoe-boxes I was carrying when I spied Dorothy Phillips sauntering out of the hotel on the arm of this Bill Richards. I was waiting on Mrs. Peters at the time, but I wasn't able to get between her and the window fast enough.

"Well—!" snorted Mrs. Peters towering her glasses to get a good look at the couple across the street, "now fancy that!"

This Mrs. Peters is a talkative soul and even as I fitted her eight-D shoes I knew she was cranking up her mouth. Poor Dorothy Phillips was in for it.

My attempts to detain Mrs. Peters failed. I held my head in my hands as she sprinted through the open door to collide with none other than Jack Phillips himself. Jack's warm smile vanished as he stared incredulously at Mrs. Peters snapping jaw. I never felt so helpless.

"Jack—Jack Phillips!" I shouted. Jack turned to look at me. "Come into my store," I said, "and bring Mrs. Peters with you. I'm in this too, you know. Now don't go away. I'll be back in five minutes—with Bill Richards and your wife—"

Luck was with me. Mrs. Phillips and Richards were only a block away. Dorothy looked like she was going to faint when I explained what had happened.

"Of course we'll have to go back with you—I guess my little plan failed," she said evenly.

Jack Phillips and Mrs. Peters stared in amazement a few minutes later when Bill Richards doffed his disguise. It seems Dorothy had hired an actor to pose as a representative of the company out East. His task was to convince Jack Phillips that he had everything to lose by leaving Shelbyville.

"Looks like I lost," said Dorothy bravely trying to regain her composure. "I'm sorry I gave you such a fright, dear. Bill Richards and I were just going to get our story straight over a soda."

Then I discovered why we all think so much of Jack Phillips. He turned to Mrs. Peters, saying:

"Thank you Madam! You have done us a real service."

And Mrs. Peters, red as a ripe apple, left without a word.

Then Jack opened his wallet to extract Richard's fee. This done, he took his wife in his arms saying with a grin: "On the contrary darling—you won. I sent the contract back two weeks ago — unsigned. We're staying here in Shelbyville. In the big city I'd be a nobody, while here—why here I'm a big wheel."

And he is too.

LEARN...and LIVE!

When your boy or girl is old enough to take the wheel of the family car, their chances of becoming a safe driver are three times better today than a few years ago—if they have had the opportunity of becoming a high school-trained driver.

Last year nearly 700,000 students—more than one out of every three eligibles—were enrolled in driver training courses given by 8,000 high schools. There is hope that in the not too distant future every boy and girl will receive driver education before taking the wheel.

How is it working? In one state, a check of 800 trained and 800 untrained drivers after a year's experience revealed that only 100 of the trained ones had run afoul of the law in accidents, violations and warnings. Of the 800 untrained, 769 had some kind of black mark against them. Other state reports confirm this progress through driver education.

Here lies one of the most encouraging answers toward reducing the tragic death and injury toll on our highways. If your community's schools give driver training courses be sure your children enroll before they attempt to drive. If not, find out why your schools do not participate in this vitally needed life-saving training. The cost of driver [illegible] the community is small—the reward great.

Give your children the chance to—Learn and LIVE!

Important Farm Measures Approved

While Alabama's farm income during the current year is uncertain pending congressional action on new legislation and other factors, farmers will be better off financially than they would have been if the 1953 legislature had not approved a number of important farm measures, it was declared this week by James H. Kincaid, president of the Chilton County Farm Bureau.

"Several of these Farm Bureau-sponsored measures meant actual dollars and cents in the farmer's pocket," Mr. Kincaid asserted, "and this meant the merchant's pocket, too, because increased farm income always means better business in town. Our business men feel the effects of any rise and fall in farm prosperity, just as the industrial centers are affected by work stoppages and production levels."

Farmers and merchants are reaping the full benefits of the sales tax exemptions on feedstuff, while the full import of the exemptions on insecticides and fungicides will begin to be felt as farmers lay in their year's supplies of these materials, he said. While the legislation was passed in 1951, it did not go into effect until mid-1953, when the legislature beat down attempts to retain the double tax.

"Add these cash benefits to those already resulting from previous exemptions on baby chicks, farm tractor gasoline and other farm needs, and we can readily understand that it pays us well to have a strong Farm Bureau to work with our legislators in Montgomery," Mr. Kincaid continued. "The Farm Bureau's legislative program for the past year also brought many other tangible benefits, including broad protective measures for our swine industry, a Bang's disease program, more strict inspection laws, seed laws, and others.

"Our 67 county Farm Bureaus, united into a state Federation, can get a great many things done if we will keep our membership strong. The legislators welcome our help in marshalling sentiment in behalf of progressive farm legislation, and against measures that we believe would be against the state's interest. We need a strong Farm Bureau to protect appropriations for rural roads, schools and other services. Through a strong state organization we can also contribute to the formation of a national farm program."

The county president said the annual membership drive was now under way. He urged all old members who have not already done so to sign up for this year, and others to add their voices to the organization.

American Farm Bureau Passes Cotton Program

Auburn, Ala. — The board of directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation has endorsed a proposal to increase cotton acreage for marketing quotas.

According to Walter Randolph, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau and chairman of the national resolutions committee, farm leaders hope to get the present 17,910,448 acre allotment raised to 1,374,000 acres.

"At our recent annual convention in Chicago," says Randolph, "we also approved allocating the increased acreage to states and individuals. If enacted into law, this proposal will relieve many hardship cases.

"The program will be presented to Congress immediately after it convenes next month in hopes that favorable action will be taken before the 1954 cotton crop is planted."

COTTON PRODUCTION UP IN COUNTY

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

A visit with Earl Cox of Enterprise Community found him constructing a fence around some oats to graze some brood sows on. As Earl raised up and fired up his pipe he said, "I am glad you came by, I want you to look over my place and help me decide what we need to do to furnish more grazing for my hogs." We walked down by the barn where the hogs were grazing on reseeding crimson clover and rescue. Earl pointed out his three brood sows and twelve shoats, and said, "I was in the beef cow business, but I learned that more profit could be made from hogs on a small farm if properly cared for than cows." "Sericea, if properly cut and fertilized, will keep hogs going during the summer months," Stated Earl.

After discussing his hog program and fertilizer recommendation for his clovers and grasses, we journeyed back to the house where we enjoyed a feast of raw sweet potatoes. As we ate our potatoes Earl said, "Soil Conservation is doing a good job and I would appreciate your coming back any time and helping me with my terraces and pasture arrangements."

A visit with Clarence Robinson of Poole's Cross Roads found him busy pruning and cleaning up his orchard. Mr. Robinson is using manganese bur clover for cover in his orchard. Clarence said, "I believe I could turn this clover two years in succession without it making seed and still get a stand to reseed." Clarence said, "I have had the clover in my orchard for four years and I like it." It doesn't reduce my crop of peaches and it sure does protect the ground from these heavy rains."

These rainy, wet days are ideal for doing farm forestry work. Several acres of land on most farms are best suited for production of timber and should be set to pines. This practice is being done by Dr. W. L. Parrish, Raymond Calloway, W. E. Wilkins, Alton Culp and several others. On farms where there is already a good stand and some thinning is needed for maximum production, the trees to be cut should be selected instead of clear-cut, as this is bad practice and you have ruined the future cutting operation. B. S. Mullins has marked and cut 60 acres selectively.

Fire Ant A Pest In United States

Auburn, Ala. — The fire ant, so named because of its powerful burning sting, is a relatively new pest in the United States. First discovered in Alabama about 1918, the insect is now found in 25 Alabama counties and in eight other Southeastern states.

Fire ants feed primarily on sprouting seed. They also collect seed of grasses, weeds, forest trees and many kinds of field crops. Vegetables such as cabbage, cucumbers, okra, and tomatoes are often damaged too. These pests will attack and may kill young animals, birds, and poultry. They will also feast on dead or live insects.

The imported fire ant builds large mounds above the ground around a bunch of grass, fence posts, log, or stump. A mound may be 18 inches high and as much as three feet in diameter. The top of the ant bed is usually rounded and covered with a hard crust of soil. The inside of the nest is filled with well constructed and defined galleries about the size of a lead pencil. Tunnels, apparently used in the search for food, often extend 50 feet or more from the nest.

Fire ants are social insects. Each ant bed contains one or more queens, thousands of workers and males, and immature stages that include eggs, larvae, and pupae. For three or four weeks the queen has to gether food and look after the young alone, for the males die soon after mating. The young queens fly from the nest from February to June and migrate as much as five miles before they drop to the ground, shed their wings, dig a small hole, and start laying eggs.

Little is known about the life history of the fire ant in this country. No one has discovered how long it takes a colony of ants to build up a large nest. However, it is known that hundreds of new nests measuring from four to six inches in diameter can be established in a new area within a year.

Fire ants can be controlled by treating individual mounds or by mixing insecticide with fertilizer and broadcasting it over infested fields or pastures. Chlordane is probably the best chemical to use.

For individual mounds fill a three gallon sprinkling can with water and add six tablespoons of 45 per cent emulsifiable chlordane. Mix this well. Then remove the top of the mound and slowly pour each mound full of the insecticide mixture to insure a good kill. To treat each infested acre of land, mix two to four pounds of pure chlordane with fertilizer, broadcast it on the land, and work it into the soil.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO PAY FOR CHRISTMAS SEALS SAYS MRS. WILLINGHAM

"If you've done a little bit to help someone else, this Christmas Week will be a happy one for you and your family," said Mrs. Ruby Willingham, Seal Sale Chairman of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

"The volunteer tuberculosis workers throughout Alabama expresses sincere good wishes for a bright and happy Christmas for all.

"Even our citizens with tuberculosis can view this holiday season with the spirit of hope and faith in the future. Much progress is being made to conquer TB—to save lives.

"Christmas Seals are on the job. They are a traditional feature of the spirit of Christmas."

The chairman expressed thanks and appreciation for all who have bought Seals and used them on holiday mail.

But a plea was sounded that "it's never too late to pay for the little Seals."

If you forgot to send your contribution in before Christmas, it will be just as welcome later on. All funds contributed even through March 31 will be counted on the 1953 Seal Sale Drive.

History Of U-A Comes Off Press

University, Ala — "University of Alabama History, Vol. 1, (1818-1902)," a definitive work by Dr James B Sellers, professor of history at the University, has been published by the University Press.

The book tells the story of University development from a boarding school for planters' sons to a modern coeducational state university. How the University survived poverty, riots, political interference, wartime destruction, and attacks by clergy and laymen is colorfully described by Dr. Sellers.

Interwoven with the accounts of the campus life, extra-curricular activities, early intercollegiate athletics, and building programs is the history of a long-sustained effort by many devoted presidents, faculty members, and citizens to raise educational standards and improve the instruction provided for the youth of the state.

Dr. Sellers has been working on the history of the University under the auspices of the University Research Committee since 1946. The 649-page book is profusely illustrated.

Heat Dried Products Before Storing Them

Before storing dried food products, heat them for 10 or 15 minutes at a temperature ranging from 160 to 180 degrees Fahrenheit, says Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservationist.

"All sun dried products should be heated," she explains, "to destroy any insect eggs that might have been deposited during the drying process.

"Be sure to cool the products before storing them in moisture-proof containers, such as glass jars, tin cans, or tin buckets."

SAVE YOUR LIFE THIS CHRISTMAS

One of the unbelievable tragedies of the Christmas season every year is the number of deaths which occur on the highways, as the result of preventable automobile accidents. Unfortunately these sudden deaths often snuff out the lives of loved ones just as they are coming home to celebrate the annual Christmas festivities.

Statistics show that the month of December is a grim one from the standpoint of automobile accidents. Weather conditions are likely to be poor, and there is a maximum of darkness, in which automobile accidents are more likely to occur than in daylight. Therefore, driving conditions are close to their worst in the month of the year when the major holiday season occurs.

Some few accidents are unavoidable and even if all drivers exercise maximum care and caution, some fatal accidents would occur on our highways. However, highway records have proved that over ninety per cent of all accidents are preventable and need never occur. It is genuinely disturbing to realize that during the Christmas holidays this year Americans will be killed on the highways at the rate of perhaps a hundred a day and injured at a rate even far greater.

Glancing over figures like these, one realizes why foreigners sometimes express amazement at the carnage on U. S. highways. Although the United States is, without a doubt, the world's most advanced nation, perhaps representating civilization's farthest advanced age, it is a black mark against our present-day culture that we cannot reduce highway accident deaths to a lesser figure.

We urge every reader and driver to exercise care and good judgment this holiday season and save his or her life for many future Christmases. And, if that is not important enough, saving the lives of those you may injure or kill, through carelessness, should be a proper incentive.

COST OF JUVENILE DELINQUENTS

The National Educational Association said recently that broken homes, unworthy parents, poverty and other cause factors, were costing the country more than is generlly realized. Pointing out that it was ten times cheaper to pay for a child's education than to let him become a delinquent, the NEA called upon parents to see to it that children of school age are sent to school.

The Association reported that school attendance records for 1953 showed that fifteen per cent of the children in the 14-to-17-year age bracket were not enrolled in any school. This is a surprisingly high percentage in view of the fact that all of the states now have compulsory attendance laws.

Stressing the fact that schools prevent delinquency, the NEA calls upon parents to invest in their children's education, as the moral thing to do and as the economical thing to do. The juvenile delinquent, the Association said, cost society about $2,500 a year. However, it costs only about $228 to keep that same juvenile delinquent in school, according to the NEA report.

Virus Pneumonia

With the onset of winter and its accompanying increase in the cases of common cold, a similar rise can be anticipated in the incidence of virus pneumonia.

The pneumonia, in which the elusive virus is involved, is called atypical or irregular because it differs in pattern from other types of pneumonia. In lobar pneumonia, for example, the condition is caused by the invasion of bacteria into the lung and develops suddenly and dramatically. Virus pneumonia begins insidiously in the person who has had a simple cold for four to five days. Such symptoms as nasal congestion, mild sore throat and general debility, which have not been considered severe enough to keep the patient in bed, will be followed with a generalized sensation of chilliness, a low-grade fever and a severe distressing headache. In addition there is a marked loss of appetite; and within a few days a dry, hacking cough develops. The cough is often worse at night and is particularly disturbing because it interferes with the patient's sleep and aggravates the persistent headache.

Virus pneumonia appears to be self limited, running a course of from ten days to two weeks; but convalescence is accompanied by days or weeks of continued poor appetite, marked loss of energy, and extreme fatigue.

There are no known methods, vaccines or immunizing agents which prevent virus pneumonia. But if a cold persists or if a cough becomes distressing with accompanying chills and fever, medical help should be sought immediately. While virus pneumonia does not carry a high mortality rate, the morbidity rate is severe. Weeks and even months of lassitude may be expected.

The best way to prevent virus pneumonia from developing is for the victim of the common cold to stay in bed and get plenty of rest.

NEGLECT—A CUNNING THIEF

"As we therefore have opportunity, let us do good." — Galatians 6:10.

Paganini, so the story goes, bequeathed his famous violin to his native city of Genoa, on condition that it should never be used again. A later historian wrote, "This magic violin which might now be thrilling the multitudes is becoming worm-eaten in its grand glass case, and will soon be a bit of worthless dust."

The crumbling of the distinguished artist's instrument affords a vivid picture of the fading out of any unused talent encased in a human body. The Apostle wrote that we have differing gifts, which statement carries the assumption that nobody is lacking in at least one talent or another. It is not a question of possession, but of investment. How diligent are we in the use of what we have?

What are we doing with the endowments and opportunities given to us by the Creator? The answer to that question will prove to be the judgment test when we hand in our final report. We will then discover with dismay that failure in life was due simply to the fact that we stubbornly and persistently kept our eyes closed to the importance of using our capacities as God would have us do. And more's the pity, for the Lord Himself loses by one's negligence; for our behavior involves not merely the welfare of mankind, but the glory of God Himself. That is what Jesus meant when He was asked, "Lord, w saw we thee an hungered . . sick, or in prison, and did not m ister unto thee?" You will rem ber that He replied: Inasm as ye did it not unto one of least of these, ye did it not u me."

Regret is a lash on the back negligent. And yet how easy it i neglect! How about that letter I failed to write that might b brought cheer and encouragem to some lonely old woman wat by the winter fire? Or how ab the care that I might have given some afflicted neighbor, and not? Or how about a whole ca logue of kindly ministries that might have performed in the na of the Lord, but waited too lo "Too late" is a smiting indictme

Our intentions may be most co mendable, but we are all inclin to forget the Scriptural admoniti that the King's business requir haste. It is therefore well for ery Christian to paste at the of his daily calendar, "As we h therefore opportunity, let us good unto all men, especially m them who are of the household faith."

Campaign Started For Funds For Huntingdon College

Under the leadership of Bishop Clare Purcell, Birmingham, Alabama, and A. F. Delchamps, a layman of Mobile, Ala., 1500 Methodist Churches of the Birmingham area, composed of the North Alabama and the Alabama Conferences, are rapidly setting up lay organizations in an area-wide campaign to raise a fund of $1,500,000 for new buildings and endowment at Huntingdon College in Montgomery.

The overall campaign will be divided into three distinct units, viz: The City of Montgomery, the Alabama Conference, and the North Alabama Conference. Each will have a layman as general chairman and assisting him will be an Executive Committee composed of ministers and laymen.

The College celebrates its 100th anniversary on February 2, 1954, with appropriate ceremonies in which members of the Alumni Association from many states will participate. By that time the campaign will be in full swing with ministers and lay men and women serving in committees and on teams in the 19 districts of the area, in each of which a District Superintendent and a Lay Chairman and Co-Chairman will be the campaign in each of the districts, and a comittee of laymen will direct each local church campaign.

Many non-Methodists of Alabama and Northwest Florida, particularly in and near Montgomery, are showing as much interest in the success of the campaign as Methodist since Huntingdon College has served students of other religious groups as well as of the Methodist faith.

More than 750 citizens of Alabama and Northwest Florida are members of the Sponsoring Committee.

A special called session of the Alabama Conference will be held in Montgomery, Alabama, at the City Auditorium, on Tuesday, January 12, from 10:00 A.M. until 5:00 P. M. and a similar called session of the North Alabama Conference will be held at the First Methodist Church in Birmingham, Alabama, on Thursday, January 14, at each of which over 1000 ministers, lay delegates, and special guests will be present to inaugurate the active campaign, receive information and inspiration and be sent back into their local churches and communities to complete their final organizational set-up. Bishop William T. Watkins, of the Louisville area, Bishop John Branscomb, of the Florida area, and Bishop Purcell will be the principal speakers. In each District, under the leadership of the District Superintendent, a rally of all the team workers, pastors, committeemen and other key lay people will be held during the period January 18 to January 28 in the Alabama Conference and from January 27 to February 10 in the North Alabama Conference.

The active intensive campaign dates in all the local churches of the two conferences are February 26 through March 7.

Plans Being Made For Deep Sea Rodeo

Mobile, Ala. — The 1954 Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, one of the nation's great sports events, is scheduled on the week end of July 16-18 in the Gulf of Mexico with headquarters on historic Dauphin Island, near Mobile.

With fishing prizes totaling about $8,000 and some of America's finest game fishing offered sportsmen who go on the Rodeo, a record-breaking attendance is expected for this 22nd annual deep sea fishing festival.

Andy Wiik, '54 Rodeo president, has indicated wide interest is already evident in the schedule for next year even thought the Rodeo is several months away.

During the 1953 Rodeo there were 1025 registered fishermen using 293 boats and these caught fish grossing a total of 7,500 pounds in weight. The fish caught included, tarpon, ling, cavalla, red fish and many other varieties. Sportsmen who caught them were from fifteen states.

Wiik, a veteran member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the organization which each year sponsors the big sporting event, points out present indications are that the week end selected for the 1954 Rodeo is probably the best possible from the standpoint of weather, tides, etc., and "all in all we should have a great 1954 Rodeo."

Full information on the rodeo may be obtained by writing Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, P.O. Box 172, Mobile, Ala.

Kudzu And Sericea Are Good Drought Insurance

Many Alabama farmers had an ace in the whole during the dry spells of 1953.

"Kudzu and sericea furnished grazing for their livestock when pastures failed because of drought," says API Extension Soil Conservationist S. R. Doughty. "And the time is ripe for other growers to take out some of this insurance."

He advises farmers who already have established stands of kudzu and sericea to remove sprouts, bush stumps, etc., early in January to make mowing easier next summer. And it's also a good idea to go ahead and apply fertilizer on these crops early next year.

Democrats Sure To Win 1954 Majorities --- Kirwan

By FRANK VAN DER LINDEN

(Chilton County News Washington Correspondent)

Washington—Representative Michael Kirwan, of Youngstown, Ohio, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, says he is confident of electing a Democratic House in 1954.

Kirwan hails the party's recent victories in Wisconsin and New Jersey as indicating that the voters think it is time for "another change." He isn't getting his information from any expert surveys, either, he said in an interview with this correspondent.

"I'll tell you where you can find out how business is doing, and what the people think," he confided. "Ask the bartender."

"He will tell you, Tom, Dick and Harry aren't stopping by at the tavern, on their way home from work. They are going straight home to dinner. Then they ask their wives, "Did you forget to put the potatoes on for dinner?" and the answer comes back, "No, I did'nt forget. I didn't have the money to buy any."

Kirwan said there have been layoffs in the factories at Youngstown. Workers are naturally tightening up on their spending, he says. Another result of the uncertainty, he said, is the list of Democratic victories in Ohio city elections. Normally Republican Columbus, Akron and several smaller cities, as well as normally Democratic Cleveland, elected Democrats as mayors.

"That same trend could be seen in 1947," the Congressman remarked. "The next year the Democrats took everything."

Kirwan said he thiinks the voters realize they should not have elected a military man as President, because, in spite of his achievements in his own field, General Eisenhower lacks experience in politics. His inexperience has enabled the Republican party leaders to run the administration, and their record, is not pleasing to the voters—or so says Michael Kirwan.

WISH YOU WERE HERE

By Ona Lathrop

JOE DOLAN had to keep his eye on the black-top as he swept his car around the curves, but his old side-kick, Rex Allison, only glowered at the passing scenery.

"Come out of it, man. You'd think you're afraid Helen will cut your head off for dropping your good rod and reel in the lake. Probably she'll be glad of it—keep you from going fishing again maybe."

"It isn't only the rod and reel," Rex whistled through his missing bridge-work. "She'll kid the life out of me for laying my plate in the cabin window-sill where the storm blew up and smashed it to the floor. Not to mention leaving my new hat in that cafe back there where we ate breakfast. My old absent-mindedness!"

Joe chuckled. He recalled the morning they packed up to go on this trip. Helen had been pretty edgy about Rex going off and leaving her at home with the kids.

"But honey," Rex had argued, "you wouldn't like this trip. Joe and I are really going up in the wilds this time—maybe a canoe trip overnight even. We couldn't take the kids along, and you wouldn't want to stay alone in the cabin with them."

"I'll bet you lose half your belongings," she threatened. "You're such an absent-minded nut."

"I'll be a mother to him," Joe had assured her. And he had taken a last scour about the cabin this morning, finding the gun, the flashlight, sun-glasses and coverall that Rex had overlooked. But he hadn't been quick enough to grab the expensive rod and reel which Rex had carelessly laid on the prow of the boat and then knocked off shuffling the tackle box around. They'd rigged up all sorts of grappling hooks and even got a kid to dive for it, but that should be a lesson to Rex.

"Helen will never get done talking about how she should have come along to look after me, and we'll probably never get to do this again, Joe. And it sure has been fun," he mourned.

"Yeah, I know. Too bad women are that way. That's why I've never married, I guess. Not that I don't envy you, Helen and the kids sometimes," he hastened to amend. "But it's true you oughta be more careful. You depend on her too much."

Rex only grunted They stopped for lunch and Rex paid the bill He sauntered on out ahead and Joe came out grinning "Nice waitress back there. Honest, too," he commented. "Here's your jacket."

When they arrived home. Helen greeted them at the door "Well darling, what did you leave behind this time? Got any money left? I hate to tell you but I bashed in a fender and I hoped it could come out of the vacation money—my part, you know."

Rex groaned a little but reached for his wallet. "Sure thing, honey I had $210 left. Think nothing of it." Joe knew that was to balance up the score. Rex patted all his pockets, then moaned.

"I—I guess I must have left my wallet where we ate. All my identification, my driver's license, my fishing permit!"

"I knew it," Helen gloated "I just knew you should have taken me. I always watch that You see he's just not responsible I guess that ends separate vacations, doesn't it? From now on—"

Joe said, "Look in your jacket pocket." And there it was. But Joe couldn't keep him on the hook any longer. He took him out to unpack the car and laid it on the line "Look here, I found your wallet, old man. That waitress called me back and gave it to me. And your new hat is in the trunk—I picked that up after you went out this morning. And that kid brought in your rod and reel last night. But I figured it might teach you a lesson if I didn't tell you till we got home Now don't tell Helen any of this or we'll never get to go again. But you've got to promise me to turn over a new leaf before we do."

Keep Those Costs Down And Make More Profits

Auburn, Ala. — In these days of the price-cost squeeze it pays hog producers to use every good management method in the book, says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

He lists these steps in efficient low-cost production:

"First, feed sows carefully before and after breeding. This will help insure a thrifty litter of pigs, the first requirement in a profitable hog enterprise. Bigger and stronger litters get you off to the right start.

"Raising more pigs per sow and getting them to market weight in the shortest time possible at low cost is the key to high profits. And saving the most pigs per litter depends on good feeding and proper care—using farrowing jackets, pig brooders, guard rails, and heat when necessary.

"Another important rule for low cost production is to keep pigs growing fast right from the start. Pigs gain best when they're young. When animals are two weeks old start them on a good creep feed—any reputable commercial pig starter is a good investment at this period. If your pigs learn to eat young, wean them early and rebreed the best sows for another litter or sell them on the market.

"Sanitation pays off too. A disease-free pig not bothered by internal parasites will gain faster on less feed. Also, castrate all boar pigs when they're two to four weeks old. There is less loss of blood and less shock when the operation is performed at an early age. To prevent costly disease, vaccinate suckling pigs against hog cholera. It costs less when they're young and the pigs are easier to handle.

Alabama Students Go On Vacation

YOUR FARM PROBLEM

By EZRA TAFT BENSON
Secretary of Agriculture
(First of a Two-Part Series)

This nation has a serious farm problem.

It does not affect agriculture alone. It is everybody's problem.

Take your government has approximately $5 billions of your money invested in farm commodities.

You own outright more than $2.5 billions worth of wheat, corn, cotton and other surplus farm products. You have outstanding loans on agricultural commodities totaling about the same amount. This figure is growing daily.

You are paying more than $14 millions each month just to store these surpluses. This bill is growing, too, as additional inventories are accumulated by your government.

The losses which your government sustained in disposing of just a small portion of your holdings during the first three months of this fiscal year amounted to $47 millions.

But, you ask, don't we have a farm program designed to insure agricultural prosperity and prevent the very situation we find ourselves in today?

The answer is that we are operating under the same farm program we had last year and for several previous years. Actually we have strengthened it in several important respects to permit farmers to take broader advantage of its provisions. Existing legislation binds us to a continuation of price supports at 90 per cent of parity on basic commodities through the 1954 crop year.

Nevertheless, farm prices have declined steadily from the record peaks established under the impetus of the Korean War in February, 1951. During the 12 months immediately before I became Secretary of Agriculture, the farm price parity ratio slid from 113 to 95 per cent. Since February of this year, prices have been more stable than in 1952, averaging about 93 per cent of parity.

This story of declining farm income and mounting agricultural surpluses is the best evidence that our present program is not functioning effectively.

For more than a decade, our farmers have been producing under pressure. To meet the war-time needs of ourselves and our allies, they turned out record amounts of food and fiber between 1941 and 1946. With the end of the second World War, they were asked to provide the commodities required in the rehabilitation of Europe and other sections of the earth. Then came the Korean War, with new and heavy demands for farm goods of all kinds.

Suddenly this situation was radically altered. World food production had been climbing since 1946. By 1952 this was exerting strong pressure in the market places. Our wheat exports dropped by one-third in a single year, cotton by even more. Not only had importing nations increased their own production, but they found that they could supply their reduced needs at lower prices from exporting countries which had no farm price support programs.

Just as many American consumers have turned from butter to less expensive spreads, so have other nations sought cheaper wheat, cotton and other products.

We have learned through sometimes bitter experience that when the farmer is in trouble, there is likely to be trouble ahead for everybody. This year, net farm income is expected to be nearly $1 billion less than it was in 1952. And in 1952 it was more than $1 billion below the preceding year. While farm income has been dropping, our total national income has actually increased.

This disparity cannot continue in an economy such as ours. When the farmer can't buy the products of industry, there are certain to be serious dislocations.

How we got into this situation is not as important, at the moment, as what we propose to do about it. I have outlined here some of the major problems facing agriculture. In a subsequent article, I should like to discuss some of the possible solutions.

Fourth Of State's Deaths In Three Largest Cities

Montgomery, Ala. — More than a fourth of all the deaths from all causes which were reported in July, August and September occurred in the state's largest three cities.

The State Department of Health announced today, on the basis of provisional reports prepared by its Bureau of Vital Statistics, that Birmingham reported 015 deaths during that three-month period, while Mobile reported 382 and Montgomery 259. That makes a three-city total of 1,596.

Fashions Sold By U-A Students

University, Ala. — Two advanced students in clothing and textiles in the School of Home Economics at the University of Alabama have sold original designs for modern high fashion wearing apparel to Peerless Pattern Company of New York.

The coed designers are Ann Lightfoot, senior from Birmingham, and Pat White, graduate student from Florence, S. C. The fashion patterns will be offered through the women's department of the Progressive Farmer magazine.

This is the second consecutive year that patterns by University students have been purchased by Peerless Patterns.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Boze Texino, San Antonio, Texas: Since we have more stores and the larger ones have enlarged we don't have the knock down and drag out bargain sales like we used to have in the big city department stores.

Like way back yonder when you could buy a gallon jug of wine; a loaf of bread and a shade tree all for 80c The newspapers used to run whole section ads about the sales. I remember going to one about 40-years ago to buy a pair of overalls. I was pushed around the store until I got stranded in the ladies ready to wear department. Whoever said the female is the species is the weaker sex must have been John L. Sullivan or some heavyweight champion, as I got two black eyes and a cauliflower ear at this sale.

When I finally got home I had something like a pebble in my pocket and when I pulled off my shoe with the wide open space at the top you can imagine my surprise when a ladies earring fell out that had been slapped off some fair ones ear and landed in my shoe.

By returning this diamond heirloom earring to the rightful owner I was forced to accept a reward more than pay for my overalls and the rough treatment I suffered at the sale. The earring belonged to a very wealthy lady and was over 100 years old.

P. S. I was born about 10 miles from the Wolf Creek Dam in Clinton County, Kentucky. I read your column in the Pleasanton, Texas Express—my wife's home town newspaper—and enjoy it very much. I have lived in Texas over 10 years.

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

I'M STILL looking for the perfect guest. As the old saying goes, I'm convinced they are as scarce as hen's teeth.

Recently we received a call from some friends. They were on the way to a distant football game, would be passing through our town, and would stop off and see us. We were delighted.

They wouldn't be there for dinner they said, but would arrive not later than 8 p. m.

So—the wife and I went to the market and bought all the little things that make a snack tray. refreshments were ordered. all kinds of mixes I could think of swelled the bill until I thought it was the national debt.

At seven that night my wife fixed the snack tray, polished the best glasses, borrowed ice from the neighbors, and gave the living room one last dusting with her dress tail as she swished through.

Meanwhile, I had given the pup a bath, settled the boys in their room, dragged in several logs and had the fire going in the living room.

By this time grandmother was disgusted and had retreated to her room with a snort about a "lot of nonsense" some people will go to for just a couple of "folks."

Eight o'clock came and departed. So did nine, ten, and eleven. At twelve the telephone rang. Our friends said they had stopped off a few minutes to see some other people, became involved in a party and could not make it. They were so sorry, but they knew we wouldn't mind.

No, we didn't mind! God, but I sure am tired of eating pickles, olives, fancy crackers and cheese, and all the other things we splurged on. You see, we spent all of the next weeks grocery money!

Books Cost $25 A Term At Bama

University, Ala. — Students at the University of Alabama spend an average of $25 for textbooks each semester.

This was revealed in a survey taken by Chi Alpha Phi, honorary statistical society at the University. The findings will be included as part of a national survey by the Student Marketing Institute.

The survey showed that $25 will purchase five to six books. Freshman, sophomores and juniors buy five to seven books, averaging about $4 each, and offer more of their books for resale. Seniors and graduate students require fewer books—three or four a semester, but pay about $5 for each volume.

PROBE JUVENILE CRIME . . . Mary Ribble, Senate judiciary committee secretary, sorts 7,500 letters received in Washington on teen-age crime, as senators investigate causes of youth delinquency.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

CHILD LABOR

Half a million more children were employed in 1950 than in 1940, and their total was 1,300,000 at the last count, according to the National Child Labor Committee. Most were part-time workers. The increase was greatest among the 14 and 15-year-olds, with one child in eleven earning money, against one in twenty-three in 1940. Eighty-three per cent of this age group are part-time workers, still in school.

TO SUBSIDIZE WHEAT EXPORTS

A new subsidy program designed to increase wheat exports has been announced by the Agriculture Department. The Commodity Credit Corporation will offer for immediate sale "a limited quantity," of Government-owned wheat for export, in addition to the wheat moving under the International Wheat Agreement. As of Oct. 1, the CCC owned about 464,000,000 bushels of wheat acquired through price support.

WHITE HOUSE SOCIAL WHIRL

For the first time in some years, the White House is planning a gay social season. Six state dinners and five state receptions have been announced, beginning this month and running through February. The six state dinners will entertain the Cabinet, the Supreme Court, the Vice President, and the Speaker of the House and two for the diplomatic corps.

CUTS ARMED FORCES . . . Assistant defense secretary John A. Hannah orders U. S. army, navy and marine corps to cut their manpower ten per cent, in line with airforce reduction.

MASS POLIO TESTS

A vast nation-wide program to vaccinate from 500,000 to 1,000,000 children with the new anti-polio triple-vaccine will get under way in the week of February 8, 1954. More than 200 counties throughout the nation will be involved in the mass vaccination program, one of the largest of its kind ever undertaken. In general, second-grade school children will be vaccinated in the non-epidemic period and then observed in the polio season to evaluate the protective effects of the vaccine.

POSTAL OVERTIME

The Post Office Department has announced that it will handle the Christmas mail rush largely through letting employees work overtime instead of hiring outsiders. Assistant Postmaster-General Norman A. Abrams said, "We think it's good business, fair business, and we think it will add to our overall efforts to improve morale among employees."

SECURITY RISKS

A total of 1,456 Government employees have been fired or asked to resign under President Eisenhower's new security program since it went into operation on May 27th. Philip Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said they included 862 persons dismissed for security reasons and 593 resignations.

The Korea war veteran "has a clear picture of where he is going and how he plans to get there," according to the VA, which reports that fewer than two per cent of 230,000 Korean war veterans taking GI training courses, have changed their programs. The law permits a veteran taking classroom, on-the-job or on-the-farm training under the GI Bill of Rights to switch programs only once.

KOREAN CASUALTIES

Final casualty figures for the Korean war, still clouded by uncertainty over the fate of thousands missing, who may be dead, indicated that both sides suffered a toll of more than 3,000,000. Total casualties for the United Nations, figured at 1,474,269, included: Republic of Korea, 1,312,836; The United States, 144,173; and the fifteen United Nations allies 17260. The Pentagon estimates Communist casualties killed and wounded, at 1,420,000, and prisoners at another 120,000 for a total of 1,540,000.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Val Peterson, Civil Defense Administrator, has announced that he would ask Congress for $650,000,000 next year, which is fourteen times the amount appropriated for Civil Defense in 1953. The money would be spent to build up supplies of medicine and equipment to help citizens put out fires if their communities were attacked and to match expenditures by states and localities.

INCOME TAX

About 8 1-2 per cent of total family income in 1950 was absorbed by Federal income taxes, according to the Commerce Department, which said some 49,500,000 "consumer units" of families and persons living alone in 1950 had $217,000,000 in income before taxes and that Federal income-tax liability on this income was somewhat over $18,000,000,000.

MANUFACTURERS' SALES

The Commerce Department reports that manufacturers' sales rose in September, but the rise was less than usal. Inventories held by manufacturers also made a slight rise, which was less than in recent months. During September manufacturers sold $26,000,000,000 worth of products by comparison with $25,500,000,000 in August, but, on a seasonally adjusted basis, September sales represented a 2 per cent decline from August. Inventories at the end of September were valued at $45,000,000,000 — $200,000,000 higher than at the end of August after seasonal adjustment.

The Segregation Fight— Political Overtones—

The Supreme Court will get into a political issue when it hears the Justice Department's arguments on segregation in the public schools. The Republican Administration has to deal with this potato because the high court refused to dispose of the cases during the term of the recent Democratic Administration.

The Supreme Court actually handed the ball very neatly to the new administration when it posed the Justice Department with these questions: 1. What evidence is there that those bodies ratifying the Fourteenth Amendment thought it abolished segregation? 2. If Congress and ratifying bodies did not think the amendment immediately abolished segregation, was it the thought of the amendment's authors that Congress would later abolish it or that the judiciary could use the amendment to abolish it?

3. Is it within the judiciary's power to abolish segregation? 4. If so, must the court strike down all segregation immediately or can it set up a system of gradual abolition? 5. If the court decides segregation is unconstitutional, should it hand down a degree for correction or appoint a special master to handle the transition?

This question, put to the Justice Department by the high court, accomplished two things. First, it threatens the Republican administration with a loss of political support from either minority groups or Southern states which supported President Eisenhower in 1952. Second, it really shifts to the Justice Department the burden of deciding many of the questions the court itself would normally decide which is highly unusual.

The indications are that the President will go along with Herbert Brownell of the Justice Department, who fought both anti-segregation and FEPC fights for the Negro race in New York State under Governor Thomas E. Dewey. This risks the loss of support in the South which Eisenhower has been steadily building, but another course would risk the loss of votes from Negro and other minority groups, so it is a close question from the political viewpoint.

It's possible that the President doesn't wish to consider it at all from a political viewpoint, and that he is content to let the court decide the case on its merits alone.

Some of the mail of the near future may be electronically sorted into piles for various destinations, according to postal officials, who say one device, developed by the Bureau of Standards, is "amazing" and may do much of the work now performed by 125,000 clerks. It requires the services of one operator scanning the mail.

CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR EMPLOYEES OF GUARANTY LIFE INSURANCE CO.

A real Christmas present for the employees of the Guaranty Savings Life Insurance Company was the new building shown above. Santa came a little early this year for the forty officials and office workers in this Alabama-based firm, however. They moved into their new quarters shortly before Christmas. But with all the merriment, you would have thought old Santa himself was driving the moving van that transported them to their new offices in Montgomery.

Brand spanking new, the structure is one of the most modern in Alabama. The building is brick and steel construction, and is completely air-conditioned for year-around comfort. The front will be covered with marble slabs especially imported from Italian quarries. Executive offices, which extend across the front of the second story, are shielded by an overhanging aluminum canopy. Other executive offices extend around three sides of the top floor, while the entire center area is used for clerical and accounting purposes.

The insurance firm will occupy the entire second floor (10,000 square feet), and will also use the central portion of the first floor for electronic accounting machines and printing equipment. Parts of the downstairs areas will be leased to other business firms.

The home office of the company has been located in Montgomery since 1931. Prior to that time it was located in Gadsden, where the company was organized in 1948. Now operating in five other states, the company is doing business in Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina and Mississippi, as well as Alabama. Over seventy-five field representatives are employed in these states.

Press Association Meets in January

Brewton, Ala. — The 83rd annual convention of the Alabama Press Association, one of the state's oldest associations, will be held January 21, 22 and 23 at Montgomery.

Announcement of the convention dates and selection of Montgomery was made today by APA President William E. Brooks, Jr., editor of The Brewton Standard. Headquarters for the convention will be at the Whitley hotel.

Program arrangements being made, President Brooks stated, are designed to present the Alabama editors and publishers of the daily and weekly newspapers with timely news, information and trade practices. Included on the program will be two luncheons featuring well-known speakers and a banquet program which will highlight current news subjects vital to Alabama's future.

The convention will open with a past-president's dinner, meeting of the APA board of directors and informal party January 21. Newspaper trade information will be included on the January 22 program. Association activities will be discussed, a photo clinic will be held and the election of 1954 officers will be concluded at the January 23 sessions. The convention will close with a luncheon Saturday noon.

Present officers of the APA are: President Brooks; Vice-President, Steele McGrew, Alabama Courier, Athens; Vice-President, George H. Watson, Shades Valley Sun, Homewood; Board Chairman, Cecil Hornady, The Talladega News, and Secretary - Treasurer - Manager, Jack Leisner, Tuscaloosa.

Directors of the APA are: Ben G. George, The Demopolis Times; J. W. Oakley, The Centreville Press; James E. Mills, The Birmingham Post-Herald; Jack Langhorne, The Huntsville Times; Robert Burgess, The Opp News; Herve Charest, Jr., The Tallassee Tribune; Paul E. Cunningham, The Elba Clipper, and John B. Stevenson, The Roanoke Leader.

Insulated buildings last longer because insulation helps eliminate drafts and keeps framing members dry.

President Lee Roy Ussery announced that an open house was being planned for the latter part of January. "At that time," he said, "we will welcome our stockholders, policyholders and friends to come and inspect our new offices."

NEW PONTIAC WILL BE IN SHOW ROOMS DEC. 18

Pontiac, Mich. — Pontiac will introduce a completely new line of cars for 1954, it was revealed today at an exclusive press preview of the new models here today.

Although details cannot be disclosed at this time, it can be said that the new line will be called the Star Chief series, is on a new chassis, and is bigger, longer and more luxurious than anything ever previously built by Pontiac.

It will be shown for the first time, along with a newly-styled Chieftain line of cars, at dealers' showrooms on December 18th.

It was also noted that the '54 Pontiacs will again be available with the most widely used of all automatic transmissions — the Dual-Range Hydra-Matic. It will be offered as optional equipment with both Six and Eight cylinder engines on any car in the line. Pontiac introduced Dual-Range Hydra-Matic in 1952 and it was being installed on more than 85% of all Pontiacs sold until production was cut off last August by the fire at General Motors' transmission plant in Livonia, Mich.

H. E. Crawford, General Sales Manager, told the press that all 1953 models received excellent reception in the field and that Pontiac dealers faced no special clean-up problems considering the current competitive market.

"Pontiac produced and sold more cars in the 1953 model year than in any year except 1950," Mr. Crawford said. "We showed the largest increase in sales in our price class and made the greatest penetration of our market. In addition, our dealers sold the largest number of used cars in history, even exceeding the record year of 1941."

While saying that he expected a highly competitive year in 1954, Mr. Crawford emphasized that he expected the car market to be a good one and stated that the Pontiac organization was in an excellent position, with its new line of cars in addition to the newly-designed regular line, to make an even greater penetration of that market.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Heard that a prominent Maplesville merchant walked out of the Gulfpride Service Station rest room and left a billfold containing some $700.00 laying on top of the nearly always. Lucky he was too.. The honest personnel of the Gulfpride Service Station looked inside, fainted, and then discovered that the man's name was in the billfold. Then immediately got in touch with him and returned his money. Everything ended fine and of course the merchant was more than glad to get his papers back you know—those green papers.

WKLF has a program wherein a jingle is given that gives hints to a local business man's identity. This program is given daily and each day the prize becomes more valuable. The other day Mrs. Cliff Klie was called and the hints were read to her and she was given the opportunity to make a guess as to who the person was. Well, for the sake of her, she couldn't think of a business man in town who might be the "Mystery" Man. And no wonder! When the mystery man was guessed, it was Cliff Klie—her husband.

Five-year-old Susan was helping her daddy at his work bench in the basement. Finally, he got tired of her incessant chatter and questions. He asked her to be quiet for a while. "I don't have to be quiet," she replied importantly, "I'm a woman."

CHILTON'S GOOD CITIZENSHIP GIRLS

Pictured here are the girls selected by the five high schools of the county as Good Citizenship Girls.

Each member of the graduating class of each high school is allowed to vote on three girls in the class for the honor. From the three, the faculty selects one to represent the school. One is selected to represent the county by lot under the supervision of the county superintendent of education. The final selection is made in Montgomery under the supervision of the State Superintendent. All Good Citizenship Girls will be invited to the ceremony in Montgomery and to a pilgrimage in February with Huntingdon College as host. This pilgrimage will carry the girls to many points of interest in Montgomery.

Miss Sue Varden of Jemison High was drawn as representative of Chilton County.

In order to qualify, girls must be seniors and most excell in the following qualities:

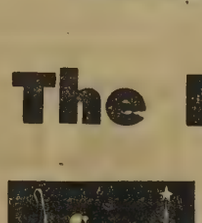
The Birth Of Our Saviour



And she brought forth her firstborn Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the fields, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the Angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone about them; and they were sore afraid.

And the Angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day, in the City of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

LUTHERAN CHURCH TO HAVE MID-NIGHT SERVICES ON CHRISTMAS EVE

The public is cordially invited to attend services at the Lutheran Church on Christmas Eve night beginning at 11:00 o'clock and lasting until the mid-night hour. Student Pastor Luther Fulmer of Augusta, Ga., will conduct the service during the summer of 1951, and made a host of friends in Thosby and the surrounding community, who will be most happy to have him back and to hear him as he brings the Christmas message. THE HOWARD COLLEGE EXTENSION SCHOOL

The Howard College Extension School will close its Fall semester at the Clanton center on Tuesday night, January 5th. The enrollment reached 8 including 13 ministers. The Howard College Extension Division for Christian Training, as you can see, is not for ministers only, but for anyone who has a desire to learn

The school will begin its second semester here at the First Baptist Church on Tuesday night, January 12th, at 7 o'clock. We will continue to have only two periods of about 50 minutes each. The courses will include the Old Testament (Jeremiah) and the Sunday School review for the first period taught by Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Hutchinson respectively. Dr. Hutchinson will also teach a course in the New Testament (I and II Thessalonians), the second period.

We especially urge all ministers, if possible, to take advantage of this great opportunity not only for the sake of their own learning and inspiration and fine fellowship together, but for the influence they naturally wield on their own flock and others. It is very noticeable that most of the pastors who take a keen interest in the Extension Schools enjoy the presence of a group of their members who share the great blessings along with their shepherd.

The Sunday School review especially for teachers and for others as well, seems to be taking on momentum day by day. We must admit that the greatest need in the average church is TRAINED LEADERSHIP. Yes, spiritual training. Now, pastors, if you want your church to experience new energy in the Sunday School, Training Union and other teaching capacities, urge them to attend the next semester of this school. Our superintendent has been attending along with some of the teachers and all of our people have sensed the difference.

No special training of any sort is necessary in order to attend this Extension School. However, anyone who has finished High School can receive college credit by presenting his record to the Registrar who is always present to help anyone. Even if you have no previous school record at all and have a desire to learn, you can receive Certificate Credit which will enable you to join with the graduating class at Howard after earning 24 Semester Credit Hours. Each course provides a credit hour per semester.

The entire cost for the whole semester is only $11.00 plus books. Each course is $4.50 and the registration fee only $2.00. The only thing required to be paid at the beginning of each semester is the registration fee. You can pay the balance any time during the following 12 weeks. Each semester embraces 17 weeks. The spring semester closes on May 4, 1954. The school meets only one night in each week, which is Tuesday night at 7:00 o'clock.

You will probably be interested in knowing that there are 48 centers over the state with an enrollment of nearly 4,000.

We would like to have you visit our center and sit in on the classes for the closing night of the Fall Semester. Don't forget the opening night for the Spring Semester is Tuesday night, January 12, 1954. Come and register and help us to make it one of the best. We also especially urge each pastor to make special announcements from their pulpits concerning the school.

WIDER USE OF APPLIANCES

The electrical industry's publication "Electrical Merchandising" recently compared the number of electrical appliances in use immediately after World War II and those in use at the present time. The comparison makes interesting reading.

The study showed that the number of major appliances had increased in the last seven years at a breathtaking rate. The number of electric refrigerators went from 19,700,000 to 37,750,000 and the number of washing machines rose from 17,217,000 to 32,200,00. The number of vacuum cleaners shot up from 13,700,000 to 25,145,000, and electric ironers almost doubled, going from 1,924,000 to 3,910,000. These major appliances only reflected the same trend which was taking place with many other appliances such as air conditioners, mixers, dish washers, and many other things.

Among the reasons advanced for the huge increase in the number of appliances are rising wages and salaries which must be paid to servants under today's economic standards. Also, rising wages have brought the price of many of these appliances into the reach of many families for the first time.

A SWEET STORY

Sue White is a pretty girl from Big Springs, Texas. Her father is a cotton farmer in Big Springs. But things haven't gone so well for Mr. White this year. A drought hit the Texas cotton crop and the White's fortunes sagged accordingly.

Sue quit college because of the poor state of things around Big Springs, but she didn't stop raising top steers. She took one she had bought for less than two hundred dollars to Chicago, for the stock show, the other day.

Her beef steer did all right too, winning first place over all the others entered. That gave her the top steer in all North America, according to many estimates, and also gave her $1,000 prize money. When they told her she had won first place, Sue broke down and cried like a pretty girl oughta'—and the top stock show official, Jess Andrews, tried to comfort her.

Amid sobs, Sue said she might be able to go back to college now that she had won top prize in the stock show. And she was sure to get more money than that, out of the sale, and any other benefits which might result. So things are looking up for Sue White, a gal who doesn't seem to know what the word defeat means. Our hat is off to her. It is great to see things like this happen in the U.S.A., still the land of opportunity for all those who would persevere.

BIG THREE AT BERMUDA

One reflection which we pass on, in connection with the Big Three conference at Bermuda, is the need for more meetings between the heads of western governments.

Though most people didn't realize it, the Big Three conference at Bermuda was the first between the top men in the governments of Britain, France and the United States since World War II. That is, eight years have passed since the heads of these governments sat down together and talked over their problems in all frankness and in off-the-record conversations.

Off-the-record conversations cannot occur between these heads of state unless they meet face-to-face because all diplomatic cables, notes and personal exchanges are a matter of record and the head of a government cannot afford to put down any off-the-cuff thoughts on official paper.

Also, the heads of government can express themselves, off the record, on many subjects on which they would never comment in any form except orally. Thus the personal meetings of government leaders from England, France and the U. S. are invaluable in several ways, promote better understanding, personal friendships, and mutual agreements. It should not be eight years before another such meeting is scheduled.

WITH THE bell poised to ring for the second round, political observers, both Republican and Democrat, are speculating as to what shall be the degree of President Eisenhower's success with Congress

A look at the records show that Mr. Eisenhower has established a much higher percentage as regards approval of measures or proposals sent to Congress However, any comparison must include the reminder that Mr. Eisenhower placed only 44 specific proposals before the 83rd Congress, while Mr Truman's first session proposals were a much heftier 253 requests

Of the 44 legislative proposals sent by Mr. Eisenhower to the 83rd Congress during its first session, Congress acted favorably on 32, which gave the new President a respectable score of 72.7 per cent Mr. Truman's highest percentage, 47.7 per cent, was in 1947 His average for his last six years in office was not too different—42.9 per cent.

Truman received the nod of approval from Congress most often on legislation concerning military and veterans matters, establishing a 61.8 per cent score during his entire tenure in the White House President Eisenhower made only one proposal in this category, which was approved.

Both presidents were more successful with Congress in matters of foreign policy than they were in the domestic field, although Eisenhower fared better than Truman in both. Mr. Eisenhower scored 75 per cent in foreign policy against a mark of 72.2 for domestic policy. Mr Truman's record was 59.2 per cent on foreign policy during his first sessions, compared with 40.1 for domestic policy

Labor proved a tough field for both Presidents, although, like in military and veterans matters, it's too soon for true comparison. Mr. Eisenhower submitted only one request—revision of the Taft-Hartley Act—which failed to win action. Mr. Truman received favorable action on about 25 per cent of his labor proposals during his first sessions.

The complete story of President Eisenhower's success with Congress will not be available until completion of the second session, convening Jan. 6 and any special sessions that may prove necessary. Several proposals, including Hawaiian statehood, already partway through the legislative mill, will improve his average if they receive a friendly nod from Congress

● The Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, under the chairmanship of former President Hoover, has appointed a 12-man task force to delve into the activities of Government lending agencies.

The unit, under the chairmanship of Paul Grady, who led the first group in a study of Government reorganization, will study a number of agencies engaged in lending and should come up with recommendations on coordination of the Government's financial policy in this field

It is also expected that recommendations may be made to eliminate or relocate some of the agencies in the interests of efficiency and economy.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

AS THIS IS written we are in the middle of Christmas decorating. The boys are screaming, the wife is demanding I stop writing this column and hand her ornaments, Grandmother is shouting her advice, and the two cats are chasing the dog around the living room like mad.

In addition, the radio is going full blast. It seems to be a murder story and the boy in anticipation of the gun shots just threw two ornaments against the wall to give the noise a more realistic blast.

I am continuing to ignore the noise. The wife is on a stepladder at the moment and it is rocking like the masts of a schooner under a gale. TIMBER! There she goes. She's up again and grandmother is screaming that she's going to have a nervous breakdown.

The dog and cats have just reversed their chasing. He is after them. There. They're safe on the mantle. Oh boy! Pocahontas—the mother cat—has just knocked off one of those ugle vases I have been wanting to throw away for years. The wife is diving for it Ah—she missed.

Grandmother has just retreated to her room and slammed the door The house will shake for another two minutes at least.

The living room looks like a cyclone has hit it. But, they're having a good time. This sure is a happy season of the year MERRY CHRISTMAS!

"Thy Kingdom Come."

Lesson for December 27: Matthew 5: 9-10; 28: 16-20; John 17: 18-21; Acts 1: 6-8; Revelation 11: 15b.

Golden Text: Revelation 11: 15.

The first passage of the lesson text is a part of the Lord's Prayer and includes the address and petitions that refer to the kingdom. In these petitions we find the substance of all prayer—"Thy kingdom come and thy will be done." They commit one who prays to all the work of the kingdom and bring him into a covenant with God to do his will.

In the five last verses of Matthew we see Jesus with the disciples just before his ascension. Then we hear his last command: "Go ye." They were to make disciples of all nations, set up the kingdom.

In what has been called the "high-priestly prayer" of Jesus just before he went into the garden of Gethsemane, he prayed that his disciples might be one in him and witness to the world that Jesus was sent of God

After the resurrection, the disciples asked Jesus if he would at that time restore the kingdom to Israel There was some thought or doubt, of the earthly kingdom Jesus told them it was not for them to know the times and the seasons. But they would receive power after the Holy Ghost had come upon them. And not many days thereafter the Holy Ghost came upon them and prepare them to go forth to turn the world upside down. Finally, we read in Revelation that the kingdoms of the world will become the kingdoms of the Lord and his Christ

"And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea . . . with Mary, his espoused wife, being great with child" . . . according to St. Luke.

Hatchery Production November 1953

Alabama: Commercial hatcheries in the State produced an estimated 2,314,000 chicks during November. This is 7 percent above November 1952 and 112 percent more than the 1947-51 November average. Hatchings for the period January through November totaled 6,711,000 chicks compared to 27,874,000 for the same period in 1952.

The average number of layers in Alabama farm flocks during November is estimated at 5,402,000, down 1 percent from November 1952. November egg production totaled 48 million eggs. With less layers than last year, this indicates an increase of 17 percent in production per layer.

United States: The number of chicks produced by commercial hatcheries during November was the largest of record for the month. Chicks produced totaled 106,961,000 22 percent larger than the 87,838,000 produced in November last year, the previous high for the month, and 74 percent larger than the 1947-51 average of 61,551,000 chicks. A record high December hatch is in prospect, as the number of eggs in incubators on December 1 was 22 percent larger than a year ago. The demand for chicks for commercial broilers has been strong. Also a considerable number of hatcheries have set eggs much earlier than usual for next year's flock replacements.

The number of chicks hatched during the first 11 months of this year totaled 1,737,433,000, compared with 1,644,784,000 during the same period last year, an increase of 6 percent and a record high production for these months. Through November, 582,355,000 chicks were placed in 11 principal broiler producing areas, 7 percent more than during the first 11 months of 1952.

All parts of the country showed increases in chicks hatched during November, compared with last year. The increases reported were 54 percent in the Mid-Atlantic, 51 percent in the East North Central, 33 percent in the New England, 22 percent in the West North Central, 20 percent in the Pacific, 17 percent in the East South Central, 12 percent in the West South Central, 11 percent in the South Atlantic and 9 percent in the Mountain States.

The average cost of the United States farm poultry ration in mid-November was $3.68 per 100 pounds, compared with $4.09 a year ago and the average of $3.39. The egg-feed, farm chicken-feed and turkey-feed price relationships were all more favorable than a year ago.

"And she brought forth her first born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn." . . . according to St. Luke.

For Quality Select Heavy, Firm Fruits

Auburn, Ala. — With the coming Christmas season more and more citrus fruits are appearing in grocery stores. Particularly plentiful are oranges, grapefruit and tangerines.

Dorothy Overbey, API Extension consumer education specialist, suggests that homemakers use these colorful, health-giving fruits in their holiday meals and offers these hints as a guide to satisfactory buying.

Choose fruits with thin, smooth skins that are firm and heavy for their size. These qualities indicate a high juice content. For sweet flavor and little waste, select those free from soft or moldy spots. Surface scars don't affect flavor and juiciness unless they're soft and wet. To avoid over-ripe fruits, choose those with a pleasing odor.

"When you bring citrus fruits home from the store, put them in the refrigerator," concludes Miiss Overbey. "If any develop soft or moldy spots, remove them before the damage spreads."

Bienne, Switzerland — Gentlemen may prefer blondes, but Swiss watchmakers are partial to red-haired girls, for purely scientific reasons. Each watch jewel—smaller than a pinhead — has an almost invisible hole bored into it and a red-haired girl's hair is just the texture needed to polish the inside of this hole to near perfect smoothness.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Nathan Cooper, Phil Campbell, Alabama: When duck hunting was a fine sport, as well as profitable they paid $3 a dozen for mallard ducks and many times you could kill as many as six with one shot. Some hunters constructed a duck blind and shot from them when the ducks flew over. I have seen ducks so thick on the water you couldn't see the water and when they rose, it looked like a big black cloud. This was on Horseshoe Lake in Arkansas in 1903. Now the lake exists, but the hunter's paradise that surrounded it has become a cotton plantation.

From Ira G. Bedell, Mill City, Peansylvania: I remember my experiences in the mountains of Northeastern Pennsylvania, in Wyoming County before the turn of the century.

In those days the teacher of the "one-room schoolhouse" had the pleasure of furnishing her own transportation in boarding around. Boarding around allowed the teacher to spend one week, Monday through Friday, at the home of different pupils. From Friday evening till Monday, the teacher provided her own board and lodging.

No college education was required. All persons of good character, suitable age, who could pass the examinations given by the county superintendent could get a license to teach.

IS YOUR NET FARM INCOME GETTING THE SQUEEZE?

The prices of most farm products ARE DOWN. The cost of what farmers have to buy HAS NOT declined. The margin of profit is LESS. These are facts faced by many farmers—

A PRICE - COST SQUEEZE!

Because of these very conditions, farmers may need MORE CREDIT — LONG-TERM CREDIT — the kind that is available in a LAND BANK LOAN. These loans are made for terms of 5 years up to 40 years, at 4 PER CENT interest—the LOWEST rate in the history of farm mortgage lending.

LAND BANK LOANS carry other special benefits, in addition to the low interest and long time in which to repay. A LAND BANK LOAN may be REPAID IN FULL at any time WITHOUT CHARGE for that privilege. You only have to pay the principal, and interest earned to date of payment.

LAND BANK LOANS are made through and serviced by your local NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION, which is managed by your own neighbors and friends.

The Spirit Of Christmas Time

(By ARCHIE M. TAYLOR)

"Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod, the king, behold there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen His Star in the east and are come to worship Him. When Herod, the king, had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him." Matt. 2:1-3.

When we pull ourselves away from the hurried tempo of today's living, and seek the solitary of our homes, and open the golden pages of the Scriptures to read the wonderful story of the Birth of our Lord Jesus these verses strike a special chord in our heart.

The story of Jesus Christ, when applied to the heart of man, will cause a feeling of joy and peace, or it will bring fear and disturbance.

Found in the verses we have read are the feelings of the people who lived in the day our Saviour was born. Let us who are about to celebrate that sacred day, look at these people and compare ourselves to them and see just how much we in our day resemble them.

. . . ."and are come to worship Him."

Throughout the pages of our Bible we find those people who seek to worship in spirit and in truth. Sometimes along through the years, the number of these people were very small, but there can always be found a group of people who love and fear God. These people can be found in the House of our Lord when ever there is a worship service of any kind, whether it be Bible study, revival services, or any of the activities their church may use to worship and serve their Lord. There are those who are willing to study the Bible, to pray, and give themselves wholly unto Christ, in order to teach their fellowman the truths found in the most wonderful Book ever written. These people are willing to tell the people of their community and wherever they go, the wonderful Gospel of Christ and what He will bring to their hearts and lives. They are willing to sacrifice the time that they would love to spend in their own homes, and go out into the homes of others who are in sorrow or trouble of any kind, to bring to these homes the peace that can come only from the "Prince of Peace."

In the night that Christ was born, there came those who had been studying the signs, and the prophecies, that they might know when Christ would come into the world. God has always, and will forever, provide the unmistakable sign and guidance to those who seek to know and to follow His way. Today we have those who are looking to Him for guidance, and are following in the paths that He is providing. Let us recognize the fact that were it not for these people, we would not know the America we live in today.

May we pray that all the people of our country, and of the whole world, will come to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ, and know in their heart "the peace that passeth all understanding."

. . . ."he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him."

Many people do not want to apply the Gospel to their hearts and lives, because of personal reason.

Herod was afraid of his position as king. He was afraid that the Birth of the "King of the Jews" would put him down from his throne, and he would have to give up his pomp, and all his servants would be taken away, and he would have to step down and submit his throne to Christ. His itterest in seeking the Child born in Bethlehem was to put down a rival for his position in Jerusalem.

We have around us in the world today people who know the truth and plan set forth in the Gospel of Christ, and know what they should do toward God, and the plan by which they should pattern their lives, but they are afraid it might interfer with the position they hold in their town or community. They are afraid to say "I am a Christian," because they would be left out of the plans of some of their friends whom they wish to use as stepping stones for personal gain.

The people of Jerusalem were disturbed in their hearts because of the message that Christ was born in Bethlehem.

Down through years the Jesus had taken the laws given to Moses and added man-made laws to them. Paul had this to say concerning the form of religion of the Jews:

"For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." Romans 10:3.

Forgiveness of sins was bought with gold and silver. One man who was indebted to another could pronounce the amount of the debt "Corban" and it would go to the temple as an offering. The Jew would not allow the Gentiles the privilege of worshiping God in the temples.

The coming of Christ into the world would condemn all these practices. A man would be required to have a true religion of the heart, and true repentance would be the only means of forgiveness of sins. very man would be required to deal honestly with his fellowman, and love him as himself. The Gospel would be given to the Gentiles and the Jew would be responsible for teaching and leading them to worship God.

When we celebrate the birthday of Christ this year, may we realize the meaning it should have for each of us, and be thankful that God through His love, gave His Son that we might have the peace and happiness of Christ in our hearts.

"A multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying . . . 'Glory to God on the highest and on earth, peace, good will toward men . . .' " according to St. Luke.

The Christmas Chimes—

The Christmas Chimes, though ...ght in the air, and out of sight, ...ere set ringing in town clear and ...weet, by the simple kindly deed ...a little child. Do not our hearts ...so awaken to music, as the spirit ...Him who gave us Christmas, sub-...touches and thrills to life the ...visible keys of Him of our better, ...uer natures. And these are the ...ue Christmas Chimes that keep ...laying on and on in the soul of ...en. One named PEACE; One ...amed GOODWILL; One FAITH; ...ne HOPE; and, behold, they melt ...to one sweet strain, they play ...e "Angel Carol of Love."

May the Christmas Chimes be set playing in our own hearts. May the blessings of Christmas descend upon the homes in abundance.

Henry Van Dyke has said: "There is a better thing than the observance of Christmas Day and that is 'Keeping Christmas.'"

The Legend of the Ponsiettia—

In Mexico on a certain Christmas Eve many years ago, little Rosita was on her way to church to honor the Christ Child. Other boys and girls walked with quick steps and smiling faces, but Rosita was sad and she could hardly drag her feet along, for she had no gift to lay at the foot of the altar for the Holy Child.

Suddenly she remembered that she had not prayed to the Lord for help in her trouble. So She knelt down on the cold ground, closed her tear-filled eyes and offered her prayer. Hardly had she finished and opened her eyes, when there before her a beautiful plant was springing up from the ground, with bright red leaves like a flower.

Her prayer had been heard. Here was her gift. She quickly gathered the flame colored flower and with a light heart she hurried into the church and placed it as her present on the altar. It was the Ponsietta—the flower of the Holy Night.

Sunbeam Band Enjoy Party—

The Sunbeam Band was entertained with a Christmas party by their counselor, Mrs. J. O. Cobb, on Friday afternoon at the home of the young people's leader, Miss Mary Clements.

The children were received in the living room, but there was not a sign of a party. They were soon led into another room. There sat Santa in a rocking chair, gently rocking to and fro. A Christmas tree was near.

Each child had a chance to talk to Santa as long as he desired. The children showed him some things a Sunbeam could do. They stood in a circle and repeated their watchword, gave their rally cry, sang a song and repeated the Lord's Prayer.

Cookies made like Christmas trees were served with ice cream. The children could hardly eat, so anxious were they to get at the presents.

Each child received a gift from their counselor, and one from a child whose name they had drawn. Favors were apple Santas and soon they were being eaten. Several members were absent on account of sickness. Twelve attended: Peggy Reynolds, Jane Ellison, Donald Davenport, Julian Cobb, Sandra Rogers, Linda Clements, Connie and Wesley Sorrell, Michael, Randal, Larry and Sidney Chandler, two visitors, Carolyn Clements and Janelle Lenoir. The children brought nuts, candy and fruit to carry to a colored family. They were to deliver the basket, but the weather was so bad they just trusted the leader and Santa to deliver it.

Mrs. A. A. Beaman Hostess To Club—

On Tuesday night, December 15th, the members of the Quest Club met with Mrs. Beaman. The president, Mrs. Marvin Dawson, called the meeting to order. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

After the usual business was concluded, Mrs. Leo Langston, program chairman, presented Mrs. Elvin Dawson, who read a Christmas story, "The Small One."

A period of laughter and fun followed when Mrs. Stanley Cost conducted several contests and games. Gifts were exchanged when the games were over.

The Beaman home was lovely with Yuletide decorations. The living room table was centered with a white Christmas tree lighted with red and beneath were gaily wrapped Christmas packages. The mantle was banked with greenery and red candles burned in silver candle sticks. These motifs added to the holiday spirit.

Fifteen members enjoyed this occasion. Among them was Mrs. C. W. Bethany, who has been away for several months.

Meeting of Junior G.A.'s—

The Junior G.A.'s met at the church Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Tom Cost, counselor, was with them. The title of the topic for discussion, "The Gift of God's Love." Mrs. Cost read the story, "If it were not for Christ," and led in prayer.

These girls gave parts: Willie Lee Blackkmon, Lois Ann Woodley, Betty Watson, Carol Brasher, Norma Jean Collins. These told phases of "Is America A Christian Land?"

The meeting was closed with sentence prayers.

SECOND SECTION

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

All morning long we've been struggling with a stubborn string of tree lights, tryin to coax it to burn properly. We'd have given up in disgust long ago if the seven-year-old hadn't prodded us on by asking:

"What will Santa Claus think if he comes and finds our tree only half lighted? I want him to have plenty of light so he can see how to put out all my toys."

And so we keep on struggling with the lights until they are all burning. The seven-year-old nods approval and calls the four-year-old and the one-year-old to come and see. The three of them stand in the glow of the tree, their eyes shining with the magic brightness of Christmas.

Watching the happiness of the children, it's plain that Christmas isn't just for children, it's for us adults who need it most. It's for us adults who long to recapture, if only for a little while, the innocence of childhood. For in the happy faces of the children is reflected the voice of the angel saying:

"Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy."

And the happiness of the children is the priceless gift they bring us adults at Christmas time.

Already underneath the tree are mysterious packages, gifts from family and friends far away. The seven-year-old and the four-year-old have felt them and shaken them and guessed about their contents until the wrappings are beginning to look battered.

When the first of the "Do Not Open Until Christmas" packages arrived, the four-year-old was eager to tear off the wrappings at once. The Head of the House curbed his eagerness and explained the packages were Christmas presents and could not be opened until then. The four-year-old was indignant.

"They shouldn't have sent us Christmas presents," he exclaimed. "They should have sent just plain presents so I could open them now."

To tell the truth, I'm almost as eager to open those presents as the four-year-old is. I particularly want to see one that hasn't yet made its appearance under the tree, one that the seven-year-old and the four-year-old have been working on in secret behind closed doors.

I haven't even been given a hint as to what it might be. All I know is that it has taken an awful lot of time and an awful lot of paste to make. Whatever it is, it will be my most treasured gift.

At night after the children have been put to bed, there comes from their room the music of soft, sleepy voices singing the old Christmas carols. "Silent Night, Holy Night," they sing and "O Come, All Ye Faithful." And listening to them, there's a sudden lump in the throat and glasses need wiping. You find yourself wondering why you let the hectic rush of busy days hide the beauty of this peaceful, holy season.

* * *

The Head of the House, the seven-year-old, the four-year-old and the one-year-old join me in wishing you and the folks around your house a holiday season filled with real happiness.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Since my accident November 29, we had so many, many cards and letters from the people in Clanton and Chilton County. Words cannot express my appreciation for all this. I wish I could answer each card and letter, but that would be rather hard as I stay in a wheel chair all day.

I'll be so glad when I can be in the classroom once again. I love all the boys and girls.

Sincerely yours,
(Miss) Ethel A. DuBose.

Wishing You A Safe Holiday

Christmas gaiety was marred—in many cases tragically—last year in hundreds of homes in all parts of the country by costly fires and accidents, nearly all of which could have been averted.

Most Yuletide tragedies happen simply because many of us fail to use the good common sense we ordinarily display for 50 weeks out of every year, the home service bureau of Employers Mutuals of Wausau, Wisconsin, declares.

No one would be foolish enough to bring a dead tree into his home in the middle of July and place lighted candles on it—it would be an open invitation to the Fire Department. And yet there are still literally scores of fires that start exactly like this each Christmas Season, the bureau points out.

Nor would many of us give serious consideration to throwing the wrappings from several dozen boxes (and the boxes, too) into the fire-place all at one time—but fires start just for this reason in almost every state in the union on Christmas morning.

While fires are the most common and most dramatic of Christmastime mishaps, they are by no means the sole source of accidents during this season, the bureau warns.

Men who never touch a step-ladder for months on end, still insist on clambering up on an icy roof-top to install a Santa Claus figure, usually with unhappy results.

Employers Mutuals has prepared a "Ten-Point Check Plan" designed especially for the Christmas Season. There isn't anyway yet devised whereby all kinds of accidents can be eliminated at any season of the year, but the tremendous increase in accidents — particularly home fires — during the Christmas Season seems particularly tragic. Why not check off your Christmas preparations against this list? It will cost you a couple of minutes and may save your home:

1. When you pick out your tree, make sure to get one as fresh as possible. Snap a twig or two. If they break off with an easy snap, they're an easy target for fire. Also, the bigger the tree, the greater the hazard. Pick one no larger than you really need.

2. If you have a fireplace: Don't put the tree in front of it; don't leave the fire unguarded (use a protective screen). And don't try to burn up all your Christmas wrappings at one time.

3. If you're a smoker, swear off while you are decorating the tree and wrapping and unwrapping packages. And be sure to keep an extra supply of safe ash trays around the house when you are entertaining over the holidays.

4. When you are decorating the tree, use fireproof — or at least flame-proof — ornaments and trimmings. This applies to everything from the wires for the lights to the cotton beneath the tree.

5. Don't under any condition, overload your electrical outlets. Overloaded circuits cause more Christmas fires than any other single source next to the tree itself.

6. If you go in for fancy and complicated outdoor lighting schemes, get a qualified electrician to make the installation unless you are entirely qualified to do the job yourself. This is no time to experiment in electrical engineering.

7. Don't use candles to decorate the tree and keep them away from curtains and blinds if you use them in your windows. Better yet, use electric candles. Your neighbors won't know the difference and you'll still be around to entertain them the day after Christmas.

8. If you're not accustomed to using ladders at other times during the year, stay off them now. This is particularly true of you are planning a Christmas display on your roof. If it's icy up there, stay off no matter how qualified you may think you are.

9. Keep your tree fire-proof while it's in the house and don't keep it up too long. Be sure to maintain an adequate water level around the base of your tree as long as it is in the house. And remember, the longer it stay indoors, the more dried out it will become and the more susceptible to fire.

10. Above all, watch out for the children this time of year. There's more temptation for fire and accident around the house at this season than they will see for another year. They don't know all the do's and don'ts of Christmas — You Should!

Wants Camp Site

American Youth Singers want to buy 200 to 1000 acres of land to build a singing camp. We hope by June 1 to be able to care for one thousand boys and girls. Our work is to encourage boys and girls to learn to read a gospel song correct.

Our plans is a three-months singing school in the summer at our camp. Morning program: One hour theory, one hour practice, two hours mountain climbing, horseback riding, lunch. Afternoon: One hour theory, one hour practice, two hours playing tennis, basketball.

At night one hour theory and one hour practice then a good night's sleep. Up at six o'clock for devotion.

It will be our purpose to teach and admonish boys and girls to live above useless habits. Every teacher and counselor must be a good influence for boys and girls. We know three months spent in this camp will bring out the best in any boy or girl. Respect for God, love for country, how to read a gospel song correct, inattivitive, attitude, cooperation and respect for others.

Our work is as eternal as time itself. To this end we want land. If you have land, and would love to see it used to build character in boys and girls, write us at 4-A So. Perry Street, Montgomery, Ala.

Preferably this site would be near the center of Alabama. Must have water, lights and would like to have phone and gas.

1953 CHEVROLETS HAVE MANY NEW FEATURES

More power, an extension of the automatic transmission option to all cars, and design revisions to accentuate the low, flowing beauty of the three body series highspots the 1954 Chevrolets.

The latest models went on display at dealer showrooms nationally Friday, December 18th, will benefit j day, December 18th. The new car has re-styled interiors, a wider choice of rich colors and color harmonies and chassis advances to assure quieter operation with increased performance.

Power brakes, adding safety and driving control, become optional for the first time in the low-price field with the introduction. As still another "first" in Chevrolet's market, electric front seat and window lifts are also available. This convenience provides passenger car comfort through push button control.

Given special prominence in the presentation is the Bel Air Series, which Chevrolet's pioneered so successully as a luxury line a year ago. An eight-passenger station wagon brings to five the number of Bel Air body types. The company has also announced that convertibles will be hereafter concentrated in this series.

Another departure in the lineup of 43 passenger car models is the introduction of a utility sedan in the "One-Fifty" or lowest priced series. This body, replacing the former business coupe, offers an amazing 54 cubic feet of storage space.

Again in 1954 Chevrolets will be powered by a choice of two engines, each more powerful and responsive than its 1953 counterpart. The 115-horsepower "Blue Flame" engine is used in gearshift models. An engine of 125-horsepower couples with the Powerglide automatic shift, now available on all cars, including the sedan delivery.

Other chassis advances cover improvements in the clutch of gearshift models, a longer, deeper-toned and sound deadening muffler, and nylon rear spring inserts to eliminate the necessity for lubrication.

In appearance the 1954 Chevrolets have a longer, more rugged look. Designed for a broader, lower effect, the front bumper has been curved farther around the fender. The grille, bumper guards, parking lamps and hood ornamentation have been modified to conform with the new motif. Although the brightwork of the individual series profiles remains much the same, design touches at the rear re-emphasize the distinction of the line.

Of prime interest are the two-tone interiors of the bodies. Stylists have taken full advantage of new fabrics to combine eye-appeal and practicability. A lavish use of vinyl, an easily washed material, is apparent. In the Bel Air Series interior fabrics are nylon-faced cloth and vinyls while in other series tasteful complements of vinyls and new, modern fabrics have been worked out.

Nine of the 14 solid exterior colors are new. The 13 two-tone combinations, featuring such exotic partnerships as ivory and turquoise and beige and an unusual tan, are perhaps the most striking yet unveiled by the industry. Totaling the number of body types and colors, the customer has 161 selections from which to draw when he buys a Chevrolet.

The Powerglide automatic transmission, now in service on more than 1,500,000 Chevrolets, is continued with modifications for improved high speed acceleration. The new engine with which Powerglide is teamed will appreciably boost performance, particularly in the higher speed ranges when emergency power may be required for passing or hill climbing.

The power plant in the Powerglide option uses the time-proven valve-in-head six cylinder principle with 125-horsepower available at 4000 revolutions per minute. An innovation is the installation of high-lift cams and improvement in valve mechanism to make possible a freer intake of combustion mixtures and a more complete expulsion of exhaust gases. The result is increased breathing efficiency at the same compression ratio of 7.5 to 1.

Improvements in valve mechanism were adopted not only to conform with the higher cam lifts but to make all parts stronger and more durable. Hydraulic valve lifters have been redesigned for more reliable operation. A composite camshift drive gear, having an aluminum alloy ring, a synthetic rubber insulator and cast alloy iron hub, replaces the bakelite and fabric gear with steel hub. XCR alloy steel is utilized for exhaust valves for greater strength at high temperatures and resistance to scaling and pitting.

A new cast alloy camshaft in the "125" has greater resistance to twisting at higher speeds. More strength is built into rocker shafts by a reduction in the diameter attachment holes at each end. A cast alloy iron distributor drive gear replaces the former steel type to reduce wear on the camshaft.

Another mechanical improvement in the Blue Flame "125" is applied to prevent stalling following cold starts. To allow for heavy acceleration demands during warm-up, the thermostatic spring in the automatic choke has been stiffened and the vacuum piston increased in diameter.

The Blue Flame "115" engine introduces into the so-called standard power train such features as full-pressure lubrication, aluminum pistons, insert-type connecting rod bearings and a more rigid crankshaft and connecting rods. As true of the "125", displacement is 235 cubic inches with the engine reaching 115 horsepower at 3700 rpms. Compression ratio lists at 7.5 to 1. Better economy and smoother, quieter operation are characteristics.

Pistons are of the same lightweight type familiar in the 1953 Powerglide engine, but the piston pins have been offset, contributing to quiet operation under all conditions.

Smoother acceleration is provided by a carburetor change to afford a better balance in fuel mixture. The result is a double step in the fuel valving into the carburetor power jet which maintains peak efficiency in mixture during changing load conditions.

The new clutch assembly which Chevrolet has engineered for gearshift models has smoother operation and greater reliability. In the previous design the pressure plate was driven from the clutch cover by three lugs. With the re-engineering of the part, the lugs are replaced by three equally spaced, spring steel straps. The straps are riveted to the cover assembly and bolted to the pressure plate always makes a full pressure contact with the driven plate for transfer of torque to the drive train.

Also in gearshift models changes have been incorporated in the synchro-mesh transmission for increased durability and ruggedness. All gears are now shot-peened after hardening and needle bearings have been introduced on the counter gear shaft.

The new 30-inch muffler compares with the earlier 16-inch length on closed body models. Three resonant chambers increase the range of vibration damping and minimize body resonance.

NEED a quick soup for supper? Use rich chicken broth with pieces of chicken in it, a tablespoon or two of rice to cook in the broth, then a touch of curry powder for just right seasoning.

Ham sandwiches, especially from the remainder of the ham you've had for dinner are excellent when you use them with sliced apples, mayonnaise and lettuce.

You can stuff leftover chicken, ham or turkey into parboiled green peppers. Mix the meat with rice and include a bit of basil in the seasonings. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake with undiluted or just slightly diluted canned tomato soup until heated through.

Chicken sandwiches are wonderful when company drops in unexpectedly and you have some roast chicken in the refrigerator. Spread the buttered bread with chutney before putting on slices of chicken if you want a real treat.

For a new twist to pinwheel roll, fill with a mixture of mincemeat (1 cup) to which has been added ¼ teaspoon ground cloves and ¼ cup coarsely chopped walnuts. Roll and cut dough as usual, and bake in buttered muffin cups at 375°F.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Raisin-Peanut Clusters

½ cup pure, dark molasses
½ cup corn syrup
1 teaspoon vinegar
3 tablespoons butter
2 cups shelled peanuts
1 cup raisins

Cook molasses, corn syrup and vinegar until a hard ball forms when a small amount is dropped in cold water or reaches 250°F. on a candy thermometer. Remove from heat and add butter. Stir until combined with syrup, then add nuts and raisins. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased pan. If candy hardens while you work with it, place pan over very low heat and stir vigorously until it softens.

Before scalding milk, wipe the bottom of the pan with a piece of butter to keep the milk from scorching.

Ellen-Haven Gould Died Last Saturday

Montevallo, Ala. — Miss Ellen-Haven Gould, head of the speech department at Alabama College died at her home here Saturday evening at 5:30 p.m.

A member of the Alabama College staff for 29 years, Miss Gould developed the first speech department in Alabama; was the first to offer teacher training in speech; and established the first speech therapy clinic in Alabama.

Before coming to Alabama College in 1924 Miss Gould served on the faculty of Coe College, Washington State College, and Occidental College, Los Angeles.

Participating in numerous professional speech and theatre organizations, Miss Gould held membership in the American Education Speech Association; Southern Speech Association; Educational Theatre; National Society for study of Communication; Southern Theatre Conference; Zeta Phi Eta; National Collegiate Players; Pi Kappa Delta, national Forensic fraternity; and the American Association of University Women.

Second Half Of Dove Season Opens

Montgomery, Ala. — The second half of Alabama's split season for hunting doves will open throughout the state at noon December 27th and extend through January 10th.

Dove hunting will be legal from 12 noon to sunset each day of the 15 days of open season. Hunters are allowed a bag of eight doves a day and may not have more than eight birds in possession at any one time.

Records of shooting success during the first part of the dove season, which was open from October 17 through October 31, showed that the majority of the State had good shooting. According to biologists of the Conservation Department indications are that the dove population is good, and shooting in the last half of the season should be better than that in October.

Lancaster, Pa. — Roy Houtz is foreman of a crew of workmen that put up a safety fence recently on Route 230. Driving along the highway a few days later, Houtz's car was hit from behind by a trailer truck and headed straight for a 15-foot embankment. The only thing that saved him was the fence.

Seattle, Wash. — Police are mystified by the report from John E. Trimmer, who told them that the night before he put $40 in his sock, bolted the door of his apartment from the inside, put the sock on his foot, climbed into bed and went to sleep. When he woke up the next morning, his $40 was gone but the sock was still on his foot.

From the Barnesboro Star, Barnesboro, Pennsylvania: There are many people who do not approve of Senator McCarthy's probing into private lives for Communist activities. But it is a result of the tacit approval of Communists in office by men in high offices that have brought about the activities of Senator McCarthy. The people have a right to know officeholders when they involve their loyalty to the United States.

The rottenness of many officeholders in the past administration is being brought to light. The people have the right to know. An informed people is the biggest asset a Democratic nation can have.

From the Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties, New York: The Program for returning to the states the powers usurped by the Federal government during the past 20 years is moving ahead.

President Eisenhower told the recent meeting of governors in Seattle that his "indestructible conviction" is that state governments must hold their traditional place in our country. Already the president has re-established a concept of Federal-state relations that was largely discarded during the New Deal and the Fair Deal.

But Federal-state relationships are in such a tangle that cutting a path through them is slow-going. The important thing is to keep going.

From the Seville Chronicle, Seville, Ohio: We're glad to see a renewed interest in Civil Defense springing up in the Country.

America today is in the position of a poker player sitting in front of a wall mirror; its opponent can see every card in our Nation's hand, while we see nothing but an iron curtain. Civil Defense is an ace in this game, and we want Russia or anyone else who feel belligerent, to see enough of them that they'll want to go home. After all, we don't really want Ivan's shirt.

For some of our aces we must depend upon the judgment of our government, and upon our Army and Navy. But Civil Defense is a job for you and us; upon an adequate CD organization will fall the responsibility of forestalling panic in event of attack, handling of refugees, laying in stocks of foodstuffs and other necessities, providing emergency power and fuel supplies.

Towns like Seville which are not logical primary bomb targets are the places to which more seriously stricken areas will look for help, should a sneak attack ever come. Maybe it's time we looked seriously into our responsibility. It's the biggest one we'll ever have.

DOCTOR JIMMY

By Maud M. Welch

IT WAS four a.m. when Jane heard the phone. Snow on the ground, the wind howling and Jimmy would have to go out on a call.

He was dressed when she got back to the bedroom. "George Snetcher, indigestion, gas pains." Jane found Jimmy's old overcoat and rubbers, handed him his satchel.

She had breakfast ready when he got back. Jimmy took the hot coffee with a big smile. "George is all right now."

The phone rang. Jane answered. A call from Minnie Lacey. Her little girl had a high fever.

Jimmy swallowed the last of his coffee, got into coat and rubbers.

It was nine o'clock when he got back. Three patients were waiting. Little Lissie Stokes had cut her wrist when she'd reached up to get some glasses from a high shelf. Jimmy had to give her a shot while he probed the wound. "Be more careful, honey," he said when he'd finished.

"I will, Doctor Jimmy. Thank you," Lissie said in her sweet girlish treble.

There wouldn't be any fee, Jane knew. Lissie's father wasn't working. Jimmy said, "I'm trying to find a place for him now."

Jimmy helped in the community wherever he could. Children brought their sick pets. He went out in the fields to doctor cows and horses. Good things he was a vet as well as a doctor.

Sometimes there were accidents on the highway and Jimmy had to turn his cottage into an emergency hospital. A year or two ago, an elderly man had lost control of his car not far from Jimmy's office, had been seriously injured. Jimmy and Jane had nursed him for more than a month. He seemed to be alone in the world.

"He didn't pay you either," Jane had once reminded Jimmy. She didn't often do this. Jimmy always insisted that his patients pay him when they could.

After supper Jimmy leaned back with his pipe, going. "One of these days when my ship comes in, I'm going to quit and buy us a truck farm. We'll raise chickens."

Jane smiled. She'd heard that before. The phone rang. Mrs. Bascom's husband was having an attack of asthma.

Jimmy started in a down-pour of rain. Jane hoped the old car would behave. She also remembered that she'd forgotten to give Jimmy his mail. Two letters, a medical journal.

Jimmy didn't get to the Bascoms. Mrs. Bascom phoned uneasily. Jane was uneasy too. She phoned Sam Godwin at the filling station, and they started out to look for Jimmy in Sam's truck.

The car had slid off the road and Jimmy's arm was pinioned by the door. When they got him free at last, his arm hung limp, but Jimmy insisted on making the call, saying he would give the hypodermic with his left hand.

At last they were home again. Jane dressed Jimmy's arm. It wasn't hurt much. She brought his mail. After a minute Jimmy said, "Who's Benjamin Tucker?"

"He's that old man we nursed so long when he had an accident on the highway."

Jimmy said slowly, "He died and left us forty thousand dollars."

Jane sat up startled, then said, "Now you can buy that truck farm."

"Who said anything about a truck farm?" Jimmy exclaimed. "I'm going to build a clinic with hospital rooms. People who can pay will; those who can't won't have to."

Jane smiled. She knew her Jimmy. She knew something else too. The Lord was on Jimmy's side. That's why his good right arm hadn't been badly hurt.

THIS WEEK in Washington

U. S. By-Passing Recession—
U. S. and Business Forecasts—
Airlines Hike Prices—
Ike Losing The South—

Washington — There is considerable debate among the economic experts today as to whether 1954 will really bring with it a recession. Ever since 1951 the predictions have run strongly on the pessimistic side. But by late 1952 they were almost unanimously pessimistic.

For instance, in October of 1952 McGraw-Hill predicted an eight per cent drop in manufacturers' investment programs. Instead of a drop, though, investments kept going up in 1953. McGraw-Hill said the election changed things, which might be true. But even so, the same business predictions have been heard for twenty-four months now, and they have all proved incorrect.

Government figures so far show little indication of a recession. There is a definite leveling off, since defense expenditures have reached a peach and are settling to a constant level, and since supply has caught up with demand in such trades as the automotive.

But government figures for the first nine months show general business activity continued to rise despite all the spring predictions that summer and fall could see a definite downturn, in business activity. Just recently several prominent business experts have changed their tunes — they now see good business in 1954.

Some economic experts continue to say there will be a drop of as much as ten per cent in business next year but some are now predicting there will be an increase of as much as five per cent. No doubt there are many signs of a leveling-off, but the question is whether they are signs of a recession.

Some of the forecasters, and some publications, are striving to prove that their predictions from far back, correct. They may not be able to put it over. There is a chance that continual harping on the recession theme will result in reduced inventories. This could cause an artificial recession in itself and did have much to do with the 1949 slump.

The administration refuses to view the business outlook gloomily. The government forecast is one of continuing good business. Some private forecasters in agreeing with that diagnosis, have set off a good debate, and the guessing range seems to have settled between a 10 per cent dip and a 5 per cent increase for the coming year.

Eastern and National Airlines hiked day coach fares recently, just as tourist traffic to the south began between New York and Miami. The move came so suddenly some passengers who already had tickets bought at the old price couldn't use their tickets without paying more money.

The increases amounted to almost fifteen per cent, and came as a surprise to those who thought increased volume was the answer to the airlines desire for increased revenue. The increases are not in harmony with recent trends in the airline passenger fare field that trend being one of increased volume and lower units costs.

The two airlines which ordered the price hikes left the lower rates in effect on some night coach flights, but eliminated these low prices for the most desirable flights. Considerable concern over this move will probably be evidenced in coming months. It has been the popular conception that as the airlines increased their passenger volume and lowered unit costs with newer aircraft, fares would go down, not up.

The Civil Aeronautics Board was informed of the purposed fare increase November 9th and interposed no objection. Eastern, which proposed the hike, waited a month and when no objection came from the CAB, ordered the increases into effect. The increases made the old $44 coach fare from New York to Miami something over $50, and increased other rates accordingly.

The President's policy of a free-hand for Herbert Brownell has him in hot water on several counts. The Brownell attack on Truman, for promoting Red spies got the President into hot water with many of his cronies who were in high positions in the former administration — as was the President himself.

The Chief Executive tried to patch up this situation and finally attacked Senator Joe McCarthy openly on the communism in government issue. This alienated some of the President's right-wing Republican friends. The Brownell attack had alienated some of his left-wing supporters.

Then the next week, the Attorney General went before the Supreme Court and asked that the state school system in 17 states and the District of Columbia be forced to end their dual school systems. The President's support for the states rights principle thus went by the boards, and as a result, his supporters in the South, who carried four states for him in 195, dwindled fast.

But evidently Brownell thought he could win more lemt-wing supporters than he would lose on the other side. That formula worked for Harry Truman, so it will be given another test by the new administration.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—How is the meeting date of Congress determined?

A—The 20th Amendment of the Constitution required that Congress meet each year on Jan. 3, "unless they shall by law appoint a different day." That's what the first session of Congress did before the last adjournment—scheduling the second session for Jan. 6, since Jan. 3, 1954, fell on a Sunday. Special sessions may be called by the President at any time.

Q—What provisions does the law make for succession to the Presidency in case both the President and Vice President die, resign, or are impeached or incapacitated?

A—From 1886 until 1947, the cabinet officers were in the line of succession according to the seniority of the departments they head, led by the Secretary of State, provided they fulfilled Constitutional requirements. The Presidential Succession Act of 1947 inserted first the Speaker of the House and then the President Pro Tempore of the Senate ahead of the cabinet. If a cabinet officer should rise to the White House, he would serve only until a Speaker or President Pro Tempore became available, and the President Pro Tempore would step aside upon qualification of a Speaker. Although officially "Acting President," the Speaker or President Pro Tempore would complete the unexpired Presidential term.

Q—Could a person other than an elected Representative serve as Speaker of the House?

A—Yes. The House, according to the Constitution, is empowered to choose its Speaker and other officers, without restrictions. In fact, the Speaker has always been a Member of the House.

Q—If Washington were attacked, could the President convene Congress elsewhere for a special session?

A—Yes. The Constitution provides that the President "may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them" in special session. Place is not specified, and the rules have been interpreted to grant the President the right to move Congress from Washington.

Two Jailed Here On Robbery Charge

Reports from the sheriff's office indicate that the Christmas holidays went by with but one attempt at unlawful doings.

Two persons, Charles Knight and a companion, Lettie Baker, were arrested December 24, Christmas Eve night, for an attempted robbery.

The victim, a Mr. Moore, of Montgomery, testified that the two invited him up to their hotel room and there slugged him over the head twice and took his wallet. The pair was caught in an alley trying to escape with their loot.

Arresting officers were local policemen C. J. Turner, Marshall Williams and J. W. Pitts.

18,000 Vets In Alabama Trade Schools

Montgomery, Ala. — Nearly 18,000 veterans are enrolled this Fall in Alabama's schools and training establishments under Veterans Administration training programs.

Harley A. Smith, VA's Alabama were caught in an alley trying to day that as of November 30, total enrollments in the various programs had reached 17,661. This figure, he said, includes a record-breaking 8,322 veterans taking training under the 14-month-old Korean G.I. Bill. Another 8,525 are World II veterans still enrolled under the original G.I. Bill.

Of the rest, 607 are disabled veterans of World War II, studying under Public Law 16, and 207 are are veteran-trainees disabled in service since fighting started in Korea.

The current number of Korean GI trainees has shown a considerable increase over the previous peak of the new GI training program, which was reached this past May, with 5,295 veterans.

College training has been the most popular choice among Korean veterans, VA said. Forty-three percent of the total, or 3,629 veterans, are enrolled in institutions of higher learning.

Another 3,757 are in schools below the college level; 778 are training on-the-job, and 158 are taking institutional on-farm training, a combination of classroom work and actual farming experience.

The increase in the number of Korean veterans in training has been more than offset by a decline in enrollments under the original World War II GI Bill, Smith said.

The 8,525 World War II trainees represent the lowest GI Bill Fall enrollment figure since 1945, when the World War program was just getting under way. In fact, it is less than half of what it was a year ago.

A 1951 cut-off date, under the law, has virtually put a stop to new enrollments under the World War II GI training program. Veterans still in training, for the most part, are those who started before the deadline and who have remained in training since. The World War II program ends, for nearly all veterans, in July, 1956.

Among the World War II veterans in training this Fall, below-college schooling continues as the number one choice. This type of training accounts for 58 percent of the veterans, or more than 5,375. College students number 1,811; on-the-job trainees, 232; and on-farm enrollees, 1,713.

MAKE PLANS NOW FOR QUAIL FOOD PATCHES

Auburn, Ala.—Large partridge peas and bicolor lespedeza are excellent quail food.

And Earl Kennamer, API Extension wildlife specialist, reminds landowners and sportsmen that January is the time to select patches for these crops and to break and harrow the land. In the past too many bird food plantings have failed because the seedbed wasn't prepared until spring.

"Since bicolor lespedeza seeds and seedlings will not produce abundant seed for quail for from two to three years," he explains, "plant partridge peas next to each bicolor patch. The peas will provide seed next fall and winter. All patches should be located next to 'birdy' cover, such as pine and plum thickets, and all plantings must be protected from grazing animals.

"Common lespedeza is a good quail food crop anywhere except on deep sandy soils in southeast Alabama. Florida beggarweed is good in the southern third of the state."

Chilton's Choice

MISS SUE VARDEN

After winning the award as Good Citizenship Girl at Jemison High School, Miss Sue Varden went on to win the title for Chilton County. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Varden of Jemison, she is editor of the school annual, vice president of the Beta Club, president of the local chapter of Future Teachers of America, and a former president of the Glee Club at Jemison High School.

JANUARY PROCLAIMED "MARCH OF DIMES MONTH"

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons has proclaimed the month of January as 1954 "March of Dimes Month" in Alabama.

And in his proclamation Governor Persons disclosed that since the start of the "March of Dimes program, Alabama had received over one and a half million dollars more in return than the state had put into the program.

Persons said that according to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, there were 250 Alabama cases of polio in 1952, and 444 cases in 1953.

His proclamation said that "since the establishment of the National Foundation, Alabamians have contributed $1,304,448, and received in return that amount plus an additional $1,750,478 in epidemic aid, professional education grants and assistance to hospitals. . ."

He pointed out also that in 1953 some 33,000 Alabama youngsters received injections of gamma globulin. He said that during the period of January 2-31, volunteers throughout Alabama would join other American citizens in the drive for funds to fight polio.

SCANNING THE NEWS

WITH JAN. 1 and a rise in Social Security tax rates on payrolls only a matter of days away, the House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Social Security released letters from persons over 65 asking that something be done about raising the ceiling on the amount of money a person can earn before benefits under the Old Age and Survivors Insurance System are stopped. The present limit of $75 a month for work covered by Social Security apparently is not enough to get the job done, citizens believe.

Rep. Herman P. Eberharter (D Pa.) turned loose a few barbs to indicate that he felt the Committee's minority members weren't being properly recognized. He termed it "very unusual procedure" that testimony of Philip Vogt, administrator of the Douglas County, Neb., Welfare Administration, was released to the press before Vogt actually testified.

In answer, Subcommittee Chairman Carl T. Curtis (R Neb.) said the Vogt release had been prepared in advance of the hearing after a conference between the Subcommittee staff and Vogt. Angier L. Goodwin (R Mass.) also a Subcommitteeman member, defended the Committee by stating that the hearings were conducted "to bring out the facts as to the workability of the system." The record will speak for itself, he said, and will prove "there is no intention of breaking up social security, but of trying to improve it."

All this manuevering interested Mr. Average Citizen, who will see more of his paycheck go into social security taxes in the days ahead. Of great interest also were the findings reported by an insurance company after a study of what happens to the social security dollar. According to this report, 17 billion dollars, or roughly two-thirds of the 24 billion dollars collected in Federal payroll taxes during 16 years of the Social Security program, has been used to pay general expenses of the U. S. Government, from lead pencils to submarines.

This is, of course, strictly according to law, but, as the report states, "means that Uncle Sam's multi-billion-dollar Social Security reserve fund for old age pensions and benefits consists of a bundle of his own "IOU's".

Records show that Old Age and Survivor's Insurance benefits paid from 1937 through 1952 amounted to about eight billion dollars—one third of the money actually collected. As prescribed under Social Security regulations, the payroll tax money left over was invested in U. S. Government bonds, to build a reserve fund for the increased claims of the future.

The catch is, the report states, that the Treasury has taken the money turned over in payment for bonds and used it, along with other Government income, to pay current Government bills and expenses.

Sooner or later the payroll tax money must be raised all over again by the U. S. Treasury, if it redeems its outstanding bonds.

25 Killed Over State-

No Fatal Mishaps In Chilton During Christmas Holidays

With but a few hours left in the three-day holiday period of Christmas, 1953, 614 lives had been taken, either by traffic accidents or other mishaps. The traffice toll late Sunday evening was 453 persons. California leading the nation in traffic deaths with a total of 34 persons killed.

Alabama's total mounted to 25 killed with 14 in traffic accidents and the remainder in numerous other mishaps.

These figures gratifyingly did not reach an all-time high mark. The record death toll for any holiday was a four-day period on the Fourth of July in 1950 when 793 persons were killed. The highest for a traffic week end was a four-day period on Christmas in 1952 with a death toll of 556.

These facts by no means indicate that we had a safe and sane week end. The only consolation being that we didn't break any records.

In our own territory in Chilton County not a single traffic death was reported. With the number being so great in other places we should consider that fact alone one to be proud of and try to attain it throughout these holiday seasons.

The New Year week end traffic will possibly be worse than the one we have just finished, so let's all try to keep our clean slate and start the New Year of 1954 off right without a single traffic mishap for both Christmas week end and the New Year week end.

PLAN THAT 1954 GARDEN WISELY ADVISES EXPERT

Auburn, Ala.—Demand for fresh vegetables is expected to run about the same next year as in 1953.

On the other hand, says API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby, a much of the acreage taken out of row crops is diverted to vegetables, some surpluses may result to cause marketing difficulties. Production costs will also probably remain high.

"To meet this situation," continues Bagby, "farmers should carefully consider market outlets in planning their 1954 gardens. And they should make every effort to get the highest possible yields at the lowest cost per unit. Here is the present outlook on a few crops.

"After disastrous prices for 1953, potato acreage will be decreased. Prices will probably improve over those of 1953 but will not approach the 1952 level. Plant normal acreage.

More sweetpotatoes will be planted because of cotton acreage reductions. Good quality sweetpotatoes should show a profit. So plant more of the Gold Rush variety and strive for higher yields.

"Pimiento pepper was a good crop in 1953—sold for $100 per ton. And processors will no doubt want more peppers from Alabama farmers next year. Rotate the crop so it will not follow other vegetables, especially tomatoes, beans, or sweetpotatoes. And plant peppers after small grain or corn or on land which has been laid out.

"For other crops, follow this general rule. Plant only as much acreage as can be cared for and marketed profitably, use high rates of fertilizer, and irrigate where possible for high yields."

If your gravy is a little too salty, add a sprinkle of brown sugar; it won't sweeten the gravy or spoil its flavor in any way.

General Ike Lowers Boom On His Military Friends

By EDWARD H. SIMS

(Chilton County News Washington Analyst)

Washington — President Dwight D. Eisenhower is a life-long military man, but this isn't making it easier for service chiefs to bilk the Federal Treasury. In fact, Ike seems to know money can be saved in the military machine and shows little inclination to be patient with rivalry among service chiefs for more and more money.

The President has every reason to understand the military process. He saw the Army operate at close quarters for many years and watched the service chiefs' annual fight in Washington (Army versus Navy) for the biggest slice of the appropriations pie. Now it's a three way fight for the money, the Air Force actually getting more than either of the other two services.

One of the ways Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson thought he could save money was through cutting non-combat personnel. He ordered such a cut. Maybe he hadn't been around long enough to know that such a cut actually causes more of a ruckus than a cut of combat strength. The desksitters become very vocal when their jobs are threatened.

Such wailing resulted from the order, especially from the Army, that pressure built up on Wilson, and even Ike himself—to rescind the personnel cuts. Instead, Ike backed his defense chief to the hilt and the orders stood. The personnel cuts are due to be carried on Recent studies have shown the U. S. Army requires more men behind the lines and in easy chairs back home, per combat man on the front, than any other army in the world. While we may have a higher standard, and give our men better protection and equipment and services, the ratio is still too high.

The Navy has long maintained duplicate facilities and airfields in numerous places — where savings could be effected if the services had joined in the use and upkeep of a joint installation. And personnel cuts are in order in the Navy just as in the Army — especially since that service saw little combat in the Korean conflict, and since the Communists possess little in the way of naval strength.

These cuts will be made — or at least have been ordered — and there is no chance that the present administration will back down on this count. The services will have to tighten their belts.

NOMINATIONS IN ORDER FOR ALABAMA'S HALL OF FAME

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's Hall of Fame Board is again inviting the public to nominate illustrous Alabamians for election to the State's Hall of Fame.

Nominations should be submitted on forms obtainable without cost from the Alabama Hall of Fame Board, 1918 First Avenue, North, Birmingham, Alabama, Chairman Joseph N. Greene stated.

To be eligible for election to the Hall of Fame the person nominated must have been deceased not less than five years prior to the date upon which the nomination by the public is made and must have been a worthy citizen of Alabama who rendered outstanding service or who won fame on account of his or her achievements.

The Hall of Fame was created in 1951 by the Legislature. The first election of the Board was held in October, 1953, at which time the following were elected: Clement Comer Clay, Samuel Dale, William Crawford Gorgas, John Tyler Morgan, Daniel Pratt, Raphael Semmes, James Marion Sims, Eugene Allen Smith, Julia Strudwick Tutwiler, Joseph Wheeler, Augusta Jane

Dewey Influence Rising In Ike's Administration

By STANLEY JAMES

(Chilton County News Washington Correspondent)

Washington — When Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York had a conference with President Eisenhower the other day, two of the reporters covering the White House met in the lobby and one said to the other:

"Why are you here covering Dewey?"

"I wanted to see if the President approves of the way General Eisenhower is running things," came the wisecrack reply.

The exchange underlines the truth in the old saying, "There's many a true spoken in jest."

To more than one Washington correspondent, the events of the past few days have indicated that Governor Dewey has more influence in the administration than he has had before. Dewey is the spokesman of the Eastern, internationalist Republicans who won the presidential nomination for Eisenhower at Chicago, snatching it out of the hands of the Midwestern, isolationist Republicans who favored the late Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

These same Dewey-type Republicans have been urging Eisenhower to lead as a "strong" President in the tradition of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, the two strongest Republican Presidents of the past. In particular, the Dewey group has wanted Ike to take the initiative against the Russians and to make a firm stand against Senator McCarthy.

On both counts, the President seems to have followed their advice. First, in his bold proposal for an international pool of atomic energy for peaceful purposes; second in his defense of the State Department against McCarthy's call for a boycott of all nations still trading with Communist China.

It is also quite possible that Dewey has influenced other administration decisions through his lieutenant, Herbert Brownell, who managed both of his own unsuccessful races for the Presidency and now is Attorney General. Brownell took the lead, for the administration, in the hunt for "Communist spies" by stirring up the Harry Dexter White case; and he placed the Justice Department firmly behind the administration's stand against racial

THE NEW YEAR

The year 1954 enters the world's stage with the United States and Soviet Russia two giants competing for influence in every section of the world. The new year brings with it as much hope as anxiety, for a change, and the outlook today is certainly an improvement over that of a year ago, two years ago, or even three years ago.

In the first place, the United States is better prepared today to meet a challenge or aggression than at any time since World War II. The armament program begun hurriedly in 1950 is nearing completion, and therefore comparative armament advantage enjoyed by the Communists in recent years has been considerably whittled. The U. S. Army today is supplied with modern tanks modern guns and is large enough, and well enough trained, to be expanded rapidly.

The United States Navy has, to a large extent, been de-mothballed and work is underway on several modern carriers and atomic submarines. In addition, the air arm of the Navy has been greatly modernized and is being expanded. The United States Air Force packs more power as 1954 enters the world stage than it has ever packed before. The year 1954 promises the first quantity deliveries of the newest heavy jet bomber, the B-52.

In addition, the Air Force has new fighters on the way an impressive supply of F-86 fighters, and a number of medium jet bombers. This country's atomic stock pile is said to be tremendous, and quantity production of hydrogen bombs is sure to get underway during 1954.

We dwell on U. S. military strength to point out this strength improves chances for world peace. Had the United States undertaken such a rearmament program in a peaceful world, such strength might constitute a threat to peace. However, in a world with aggressors active, the only sure way of keeping the peace is for the democracies to pack power enough to retaliate against aggression.

This year, for the first time in three years, the United States enters a new year without having its sons dying on the battlefields. The year, then, brings with it more hope than any since World War II.

STEVENSON ON THE FREE PRESS

Adlai E. Stevenson, speaking recently in New York, called attention to the fact that the freedom of the individual in this country is the key to progress in these troubled times. Expressing his belief that the United States would continue to lead the way to a better life for its people, the defeated Democratic candidate of 1952 said:

"But reason will not triumph unless the mind is free. The struggle of our times is a struggle to preserve integrity and creatively of the free mind. It has many enemies. The most menacing of these foes have been the annihalistic political system, like facism, nazism and communism — the secular fanaticisms of our time."

The theme expressed by Stevenson is one which Americans must hold dear to their hearts if intellectual achievements are to bring continuing progress in the various fields. Our citizens must be able to speak freely, read freely, organize freely, so long as this activity does not violate the Constitution.

Throughout the history of man, the rate of progress achieved by various races is in direct proportion to the amount of individual liberty and freedom existing among them. As long as the average American is free to read what he pleases, listen to whom he pleases, travel freely, speak his mind and enjoy access to all sources of entertainment, news and propaganda he desires, communism will make no significant gain in the United States.

FIRST TRANS-ATLANTIC TELEPHONE CABLE

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company recently announced that the first telegraph cable system across the Atlantic Ocean will soon be laid. The project, which has been under study and planning for some twenty-five years, will cost $35,000,000.

The AT&T, British Postoffice and Canadian Overseas Tele-communication Corporation will jointly own the cable. Until this cable is in operation, trans-Atlantic telephone service will continue to be by short-wave radio.

The longest telephone cable yet to be laid across the ocean floor is that between Key West, Florida, and Havana, Cuba.

The cable to be laid will be able to handle thirty-six simultaneous conversations, although it does not carry a wide enough band for television transmission. There will be more than 100 underwater repeaters along the cable, which will be protected by a wrapping of copper foil, over which there will be jute and steel wire wrappings.

Although it is estimated that some 75,000 calls were completed between the United States and Great Britain last year, the new cable will allow AT&T to expand its service and improve it. The project, however, will not be completed until 1957 or 1958. At its completion, Overseas telephone service will have been available for approximately thirty years, since it was on January 7, 1927, that a single radio telephone circuit connecting New York and London was initiated.

The new cable will mean that telephonic communications to London and other overseas points will be completely reliable and readily available. The new cable will be the longest undersea voice achievement in the field of science for American, British and Canadian engineers.

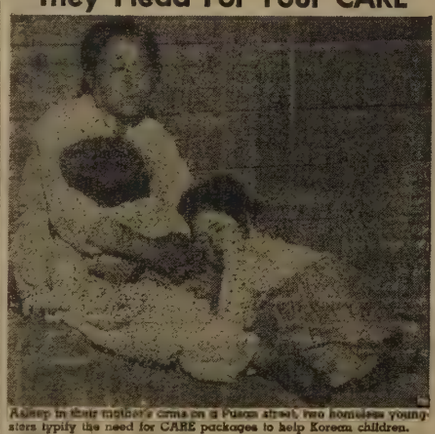
They Plead For Your CARE



Asleep in their mother's arms on a Pusan street, two homeless youngsters typify the need for CARE packages to help Korean children.

Moved by the suffering of 1,000,000 destitute Korean children, a committee of nationally prominent women is asking every American to rally behind the slogan: "Send a CARE package to a Korean child."

With Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Honorary Chairman and Mrs. Myron M. Cowen as Chairman, the CARE - for - Korean - Children Campaign Committee has issued an appeal for contributions to provide the relief packages of food, textiles and other supplies for South Korean orphanages, hospitals, schools and impoverished families.

The war left 100,000 orphaned infants and young children; some 500,000 children who have lost their fathers, and another 400,000 children in need of emergency aid, Mrs. Cowen, wife of the former U.S. Ambassador to Belgium and the Philippines, pointed out. Four months after the armistice, she stressed, thousands of children are still living on city streets.

"We must move quickly if our help is to reach Korea's boys and girls before the cold of winter increases their distress," Mrs. Cowen declared.

Contributions in any amount sent to the CARE-for-Korean-Children Campaign, 660 First Ave., New York 16, N. Y., or any local CARE address, will be applied toward food assortments, at $5 or $10 each, and blanket, clothing, textile, medical and school supply packages, $4.25 to $10 each.

URINARY TRACT INFECTIONS

Infections of the urinary tract are common to everyone, afflicting children and adults alike. Some are controlled by the sulphonamide and antibotic drugs through medical management, while others require surgical correction.

The urinary tract includes both kidneys, the passages or tubes which run from the kidneys to the bladder, the urinary bladder and the passage or tube which runs from the bladder to the exterior. Chronic infections may produce high blood pressure, decrease the patient's usefulness, and may produce a slow destruction of kidney substance leading to loss of one kidney or, when both are involved, eventually lead to insufficient kidney function. When this occurs, uremia or poisoning develops and death is the result.

Infections of the area are usually caused by bacteria which are filtered from the blood stream by the kidney. These bacteria are almost continually being absorbed from such locations as the nose and throat, the bowel, breaks in the skin and by the blood stream. A number of these are filtered from the blood stream by the kidney and, under normal conditions, leave the body. Any condition which slows up this process and gives these bacteria a chance to multiply makes infection possible.

Other causes of urinary tract infections are the development of tumors or growths which may arise anywhere along the urinary tract or in structures adjacent to the the tract. These form obstructions which slow up the excretion of urine containing the rapidly multiplying bacteria. The formation of stones in the kidney may also be a cause.

Enlargement of the prostate gland either by infection in the gland or by benign or malignant enlargement of the gland is a common cause of obstruction in men. Diseases or injuries which involve the nerve supply of the bladder may produce incomplete emptying of the bladder which, in turn, could result in infection.

The value of a periodic medical examination including a urinalysis cannot be overemphasized. As in other conditions, early detection of abnormal conditions is essential. Infections of the urinary tract, if neglected, not only can prove painful but may have long-range debilitating effects. Once extensive damage to the kidneys is established, the outlook is dim indeed.

From the Suburban Press, Shaker Heights, Ohio: No matter what happens in the interchange of unpleasantries between writers on both sides of the border between Canada and the United States, there will be no permanent ill-feeling between the peoples of the two nations.

In the first place, citizens of both lands have entirely too much in common to get permanently mad at one another. Each year Canadians come south to the United States on visits of business and pleasure. Each year even greater numbers of our own citizens go north to Canada for the same reasons, although probably the tourist lure is responsible for the greater number.

No nation has a monopoly on blabbermouths, an undeniable truth long accepted throughout the literate world, and no nation is going to permit a cordial entente of many years standing to be disturbed. We like the people of Canada and they like us, with the usual exceptions on both sides. We see no more reason for becoming irritated with Canadian comment than we do with some of our own sounding off.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

WILLIAM B. LYLE, JR., 4136 Washington Avenue, Baton Rouge Louisiana, was building a boat. The framework had been completed, and he was stretching the plywood around the curved surface of the prow when he discovered that a gap existed between the lower surface of the plywood and the framework. Plywood has its limitations for bending, and this was one of them. It simply would not pull down to fit the boat framework.

He had been working on the boat in his spare time, which was usually rather late in the evening, and he was tired. He probably should have been in bed an hour before. He sat down and looked at the situation with thoughts of despair—and worried for half an hour. He visualized having to rebuild the whole front end of the boat and he did not want to spend this time back-tracking.

CARNEGIE

He stopped and asked himself the question, "Bill Lyle, how big a fool can you be? You know the problem; the plywood won't fit the boat. What are the facts in the case? If the plywood won't fit the boat, you have to make the boat fit the plywood." There was no other solution, so he went to work at the task of changing the framework. Immediately he felt better because he had conquered his worry by deciding on a course of action and acting on the decision.

This case made him think of all the times that he had been in similar situations where there were other small things from day to day causing him to worry.

Now when he has occasion for worry he simply stops a minute and thinks each little worry through. He gathers the facts, analyzes them and decides on a course of action. Then he follows the course of action he believes to be best.

That simple formula has saved him endless worry.

FALL BEEF CALVES MEAN HIGHER MARKET PRICES

Now's the time to turn bulls back in with the cow herd to get a big crop of high-priced fall beef calves.

If bulls are not in good flesh, feed them daily a ration of oats mixed with two ounces of cottonseed meal, advises API Extension Livestockman W. H. Gregory.

"If winter grazing is plentiful, turn the cows on it one or two days each week when the ground is not too soft. This practice will keep cows healthy and prevent trouble calving time.

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

THE STORY I read the other day set me to doing a lot of thinking.

It was one of these forecast deals, you know, where the writer gives us a preview of what the world will be like a hundred or so years from now.

As this fellow saw it, there will come a time when we no longer have feet. That's right, no feet. The appendages upon which we now rely so heavily to take us to the dinner table and out to the garage where we step into the car —they just disappear because, by that time, we will have ceased to use them for anything at all.

Now, this idea fascinates me. Of course, as this writer foresees things, we will push back our chair from the coffee cups and toast, press a little button, and the chair glides smoothly into the blue yonder, settling down in front of the office desk. Fascinating, isn't it?

But, this is not the best part of it for me. Living on the second floor of a three-story apartment building, as I do, one gets to the eventual opinion that feet are the first thing that should be done away with, come any kind of a revolution.

The wife and I have "pet" names for the feet upstairs. The worst are the "get-up" feet, which start at the crack of dawn, are hesitant, faltering, and seem to wander all through the house, kicking over chairs or baby toys that ring and rattle. Next are the "water" feet, which never come at a certain time, other than between 11 p.m. and 4 a.m.

COLLEGE STUDENTS

The 1953-54 enrollment reported by 1,871 institutions of higher learning showed a total of 2,250,701 students, a 4.8 per cent rise over last fall. The increase in new students was 6.5 per cent.

TIME FOR CHANGE, SAY CAR MAKERS

It's time for a change in license tags as well as automobiles as the new passenger car model season reaches its peak. The 1954 state plates, says Chevrolet, will furnish the final touch of up-to-the-minute styling for its latest passenger car line.

ADMIRAL RIDES RICKSHAW . . . Rear Admiral Robert [illegible] USN, enjoys Chinese rickshaw jaunt on flight deck of aircraft carrier USS Kearsarge, off Hong Kong.

SPORTS CORNER

HEADS AAU . . . Louis G. Wilke of Bartlesville, Okla., was elected president of U. S. Amateur Athletic Union at convention in Washington, D. C. Wilke is a noted football and basketball authority and a leader in amateur and Olympic sports.

Bowls and Goals

Now that the bowl picture has been developed, we are hearing around the country from the arm-chair quarterbacks who have much to say about the relative strength of the teams to be involved in these annual football extravaganzas . . . and some of the press and the public in the Southern part of the nation have hinted that this year's Sugar Bowl offering of Georgia Tech and West Virginia could be a repetition of the Alabama-Syracuse mis-match of last year . . in another bowl. This may be whistling in the dark, for many have asked if Southeastern Conference teams of 1953 were up to conference teams of late years. And, the argument that the Mountaineers have not enjoyed so rigorous a schedule as their formidable opponent may be offset by the reality that one platoon football brings back the 60-minute player; that a fine football squad is making its first trip to the Sugar Bowl; and finally, that this has been a year of upsets. But, we'll have to wait and see.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Lydia May Dearborn, San Pablo, California:

I was born in Illinois,
In the year of 1869;
We moved to Nebraska,
'The Trip' was just fine!

I sat upon that old 'Corn Planter'
And planted Hills of corn;
At times, I wished with all my heart—
I never had been born.

When I was just eighteen,
I married a handsome man.
He died, left me all alone,
I said, 'I'll do the best I can.

Came to California in 1939,
I married another, he died.
I am 84 years old now,
And have a home besides.

From Mrs. Frank Kasten, Watkins, Montana: I remember when we came to Montana 38 years ago, to live in a one room house. We had two apple boxes stacked together and one shelf which we used as a cupboard. In the mornings, we had to chop wood and pick up buffalo chips for two hours before we could cook breakfast on our old-fashioned cook stove.

From Mark Legters, Mt. Vernon, Illinois: I remember 70 years ago, in Clymer School, the nice teacher, Mrs. Nora Blodgett, told a bad little boy to make a rhyme or he would be punished. She had a stick. He said: Here I stand, before Mrs. Blodgett. If she tries to strike me, I will dodge it." He went free.

DEFENSE CUT

A ten per cent cut in the armed services has been ordered by the Defense Department, with the approval of President Eisenhower. The Army would be chiefly affected.
